Freeman Rand Helping To Clean Egyptian Minefield

Navy Mess Management Specialist Seaman Apprentice Freeman G. Rand, son of Mrs. Ellen Rand of 1092 Sea St., Houghs Neck, is participating in "Operation Nimbus Stream", which involves the clearing of explosives from Damietta Minefield off the Egyptian Coast.

The mine field, laid during hostilities in the Middle East, covers 35 miles of coastline near the Suez Canal, presenting a hazard to navigation and local fishing.

Rand is a crewmember aboard the amphibious landing ship USS Inchon, which is supporting Egyptian minesweepers during the operation. Helicopters from the Inchon are helping clear the area by towing electronic sleds through the area. The sleds generate a magnetic field which neutralizes any nearby mines.

Shriver Says Public Beginning To Doubt Ford's Competency

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

In a recent sweep of the Quincy South-Shore area, Democratic Presidential candidate R. Sargent Shriver blasted the Ford administration for "reeling from crisis to crisis" without providing the nation any solutions.

Interviewed by The Quincy Sun enroute to several scheduled appearances Friday, Shriver said the President's greatest asset - the people's belief in his honesty - is being eroded by what Shriver called Ford's "non-management" of crucial issues. He said:

"People are beginning to believe he isn't competent for the job - that he doesn't know how to handle the Presidency. We have been moving from crisis to crisis without a solution - the food crisis, the energy crisis, the cabinet crisis, the New York crisis.

"People are seeing the government is not solving these problems but just reeling from crisis to crisis. He [Ford] is in danger of losing some of his credibility."

Guarded by an entourage of 14 Secret Servicemen, Shriver - brother-in-law of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and the late President John F. Kennedy and Senator Robert Kennedy - began his visit to Quincy with an early-morning stop at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard and ended his tour hours later with an address to the residents of 1000 Southern Artery.

A speech to Quincy High School social studies students - talk videotaped and re-played to other classes - highlighted Shriver's tour. Greeted by an Air Force Junior ROTC color guard, Shriver met briefly with faculty and students at an informal reception before speaking to the high school students.

Warning students to be wary of political promises - even his own - made in the heat of campaigning, the 60-year-old Shriver urged each young voter to examine the record and the lives of all presidential candidates and to give one his or her fervent support. He told the students:

"Be skeptical about what politicians tell you in a political year - even what I tell you. Look at what we've done not just this year, but throughout our whole lives. Find out whether you would trust one with the future of your country. But decide on Somebody and go

Killion American Party Winner

Sheets Wins Both Dem., Rep. Nominations

By RON IACOBucci

Quincy's season of political surprises continued Tuesday as James A. Sheets won both the Democratic and Republican nominations for state representative in the Fourth Norfolk District special primary.

Atty. Joseph Killion, who Sheets edged by only 124 votes for the Democratic nomination, won the American Party nomination by receiving 15 write-in votes on that party's blank ballot.

And Sheets was runner-up to Killion for the American Party nomination with 11 write-ins.

Sheets, running as a Democrat, won that party's nomination with 1,191 votes to Killion's 1,067.

Thomas Dougherty was third with 770, followed by Herbert Reppucci, 445, and John Tehan, 192.

Sheets received 151 write-in votes on the blank Republican ballot, one more than necessary to qualify. The number is based on the total number of registered Republicans in that district.

Only 3,709 of an estimated eligible 14,000 voters turned out for the special primary in the Fourth District which includes West Quincy, Wollaston Hill, part of Wollaston on the Albion Rd side and parts of Montclair. The seat was vacated by William Delahunty in August when he was appointed Norfolk County District Attorney by Gov. Dukakis.

There was no immediate indication from Killion that he might seek a recount.

Both Sheets, who is Ward 4 city councillor, and Killion must decide whether or not to accept the Republican and American Party nominations respectively. Both have five days to submit their decisions to City Clerk John Gillis.

Jose Higuera who had waged a losing battle to get his name on the American Party ballot received only four write-in votes.

Conceivably, if Killion declines to accept the American Party nomination, Sheets could wind up with all three nominations going into the finale.

Regardless of what decisions are made, the final election is scheduled for Dec. 16 and Sheets and possibly Killion will be squaring off against Independent candidates Santa Ferri, John Lydon and Marilyn Hanabury.

Final Statements Due By Jan. 10

Candidates who ran in the Nov. 4 city election have until Friday, Jan. 10 to file final reports of contributions raised and expenses incurred during the eight days prior to the final city election.

The figures printed in last week's Quincy Sun represented total campaign contributions and spending up to Oct. 27, eight days before the Nov. 4 final election.

Those eight days before the final election are traditionally one of heavy spending for candidates.

Figures printed in last week's Quincy Sun show Mayor Walter J. Hannon has raised at least $35,077 and has accrued expenditures of at least $38,985, covering the period from his campaign's start through Oct. 27.

Similar figures indicate Joseph LaRaia has raised at least $30,173.95 during his bid for office and has spent at least $28,392.95, covering the same period from his campaign's beginning to Oct. 27.

Something For All Ages

Quincy Health Department Offers Many Free Services

[First in a series of articles]

By MARK McCAIN

The grey-stone building at 1120 Hancock St., may look like just another city government building.

But beneath the hard facade, there's plenty going on that directly benefits many Quincy residents. So far this year, at the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Health Center, hundreds of Quincy children have received free dental work. And many other residents, three-week-old babies to elderly retirees, have received potentially-expensive medical attention for free.

To take advantage of these services, a person need only be a resident of Quincy. There are no other major restrictions. The services are free regardless of a person's income.

"We have probably developed one of the finest health departments in the state," said Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney, city health commissioner. "And we know that because the girls get calls about 'How do you do this?' and 'how do you do that?', and I have discussed our program with many different directors of health departments throughout the state."

The department, with a staff of 38, has four major divisions: Code Enforcement, Sanitation, Dental and Nursing.

The Code Enforcement Division, regulated by city ordinances, handles department safety and health inspections, dog bite cases, and other regulatory needs of the city, including investigation of lead paint in homes. The laws concerning lead paint are strict.

JOHN F. KENNEDY HEALTH CENTER

"If a test is positive, we ask for action," said Mahoney, health commissioner since 1971. "The state requires that work start within seven days. This is taking quite a bit of money and people just don't have that kind of money today...so we have never brought anyone into court [for a slow response.]"

Instead, the department seeks, and usually gets, adequate cooperation from home owners with lead-paint law infractions.

To help insure restaurants are clean and safe, the department's Sanitation Division conducts inspections of food-service establishments. All food is checked to see it is properly and continually protected. And everything, eating utensils, from walls to workers are inspected for cleanliness.

"If we receive constant trouble and no cooperation," said Mahoney, "we'll close the restaurant. We just don't fool around at all."

Such a restaurant would be given a hearing by the city Licensing Board. But because restaurants want to stay in business, they usually cooperate with Dr. Mahoney and his department.

Though these enforcement and inspection divisions of the department provide residents with essential protection, basically the Nursing and Dental Divisions provide direct and tangible benefits to residents.

The Nursing Division provides baby clinics where a doctor will check a baby's diet, blood count, height, weight, and administer immunizations. Working through day care

MBTA Reduced Fare ID Cards To Be Issued Dec. 9

The MBTA will issue reduced fare identification cards to senior citizens and handicapped persons Dec. 9 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Woodward School for Girls, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Putnam S. Borden, executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging notes senior citizens must be 65 years of age or older to be eligible.

Borden said handicapped persons, now eligible, must have a disability which limits or restricts their use of public transportation. He added that any veteran who holds a disability rating at or above the 70 percent level, is immediately eligible for certification for the reduced fare benefits.

Borden also reminded all applicants the MBTA requires proof of eligibility before issuance of the I.D. card and suggested those with questions contact the Council on Aging (773-1380).

Kelly Named To Metropolitan Planning Committee

Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly, vice-chairman of the City Council environmental control committee, has been appointed as Quincy-South Shore area representative on the Area-wide Planning Advisory Committee to the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

Kelly said the advisory committee will review the comprehensive wastewater study which recommended secondary treatment at sewerage plants such as the Nut Island facility and will also study area rivers, streams and storm drainage systems as possible sources and objects of pollution.

Kelly also noted MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker has submitted to Cong. James A. Burke a proposed amendment modifying the present federal requirement for secondary treatment at plants - like Nut Island - where effluent discharges into "ocean waters, the territorial sea, or waters of the contiguous zone."

According to the amendment, such discharge would be allowed when plant operation showed less stringent limitations meet water quality standards without polluting the waters.

LaRaia Refuses Comment

Mayoral, 2 City Council Recounts Start Saturday

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Three back-to-back recounts of ballots cast in the Nov. 4 final city election will take place this weekend beginning Saturday and continuing through Monday night.

City Clerk John Gillis said 20 election workers will begin their three-day task Saturday at 9 a.m. when the city-wide recount of the mayoral race will start.

Sunday marks recount day for the council-at-large race. Harold Davis, who placed fourth in the race trailing John J. Quinn by 408 votes, petitioned for the recount. That recount will also begin at 9 a.m., said Gillis.

Monday will wrap up the weekend of recounts with workers beginning at 6 p.m. to recount the ballots cast in the Ward 6 councillor race. Walter J. Hickey, who lost a challenge to incumbent Dennis Harrington by 133 votes, filed for the recount.

Gillis estimated the three recounts will cost the city some $3,500 excluding police protection.

The ballot boxes, impounded since election evening and locked in a sealed safe in City Hall, have been under the surveillance of a round-the-clock Quincy Police guard.

While Gillis estimated the mayoral and at-large recounts will take eight hours to complete, he said Monday's Ward 6 recount should last only several hours.

A total of 40 observers - 20 from both the Hannon and LaRaia camps - will monitor the ballot counting Saturday.

LaRaia, who has charged "irregularities" at the polls, refused to comment when asked if he planned to file a court suit if Saturday's recount overturned the election in his favor.

"I have no comment to make to The Quincy Sun whatsoever," said LaRaia. "If I had a thousand things to do today, talking to The Quincy Sun would be at the bottom of my list...I will have no further comment to make to The Quincy Sun."

5 Democrats, 3 Republicans File For State Committee

Five Democrats and three Republicans have filed for state committeeman and state committeewoman in the Norfolk Senatorial District encompassing Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook.

Democrats Peter O'Neill of Quincy and John Ryan of Braintree have filed for state committeeman while Kathleen O'Donnell of Quincy, Santa Ferri of Quincy and Barbara Keefe of Braintree have filed for Democratic state committeewoman.

The Democratic state committeewoman's seat is being vacated by Mrs. Louise Marshall, wife of Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, who, with her family, has moved to Dedham and out of the Norfolk Senatorial District.

On the Republican side, Rep. Andrew H. Card Jr. of Holbrook and Selden Connolly of Braintree have filed for state committeeman with Kathryn D. Roberts of Quincy the sole woman contender for Republican state committeewoman.

Each of the state's 40 senatorial districts will elect one man and one woman to both the Democratic and the Republican State Committees.

Although Daniel Raymond met the Nov. 12 deadline for filing state committeeman papers for certification at City Hall, The Quincy Sun learned, and Raymond confirmed, he will withdraw from the race.

Santa Ferri, also an Independent candidate for state representative in the Fourth Norfolk District, has not withdrawn from that race, according to the state's election office.

Dorothy DiBona, Mayor Walter J. Hannon's secretary, confirmed she has taken out papers for Democratic state committeewoman but said she has not filed them. Deadline for paper certification at the local level was Nov. 12 and filing deadline at the State House was Tuesday, Nov. 18.

Education Week Salute

Hey, Kids! Design

Official Bookmark For Crane Children's Library

By CATHY CONLEY

"Our Schools And Our Library Help Us Grow" is the theme of this week's issue of "Young Ideas", sponsored by the Thomas Crane Public Library. It is a salute to National Education Week and Children's Book Week.

"Young Ideas" a four-page pull-out newspaper especially for elementary school children, appears on Pages, 15, 16, 17, 18 of this week's Quincy Sun.

Guest editors for this week's issue are children in Miss Rhoda Sandler's third grade at Furnace Brook School.

In this issue, one third grader interviews School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, and another interviews Warren Watson, Director of the Thomas Crane Public Library. Several children in the class explain what school life would be like if they were the teacher. Some of the third graders give a special "thank you" to different people in their school who make their day a little pleasant.

Then "Young Ideas" visits the children's room in the Thomas Crane Public Library. We find out what it's like to get your first library card and what it feels like when the library sends a child who is sick a special kit filled with books, films and tapes. Several children also answered the question - "Have you read any good books lately?"

There are two contests. In one, children are asked to design a bookmark for the library. The winning bookmark will be used as the official bookmark for the children's room at the Thomas Crane Public Library and the winner will receive a copy of his favorite book.

The second contest is a picture word scramble designed by Miss Sandler's third grade. One entry will be drawn from all correct entries and that child will also win a copy of his favorite book.

Entries are limited to elementary school children. Deadline for entering is Friday, Dec. 5.

Don't forget that Friday, Nov. 21 is the deadline for submitting entries for the Howdy Doodle contest sponsored by Howdy Beef 'n Burger. This contest involves designing a Bicentennial character for Howdy, called Howdy Doodle, and finishing the jingle in your own words: Howdy Doodle went to town,

A-ridin etc.

Winner of this contest will receive a $25 Bond.

Wedding expenses are often shared

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin, My fiancé's family has a lot more money than mine. They have offered to go $50-50 on the wedding expenses. My father is having a fit but Eddie and I think the idea is OK. What do you think? — Eddie's Girl

Dear Girl, I also think it's an OK idea. It is the custom in many countries. I believe it would be good if both sets of parents could share in the expenses as well as the plans and the joy of the day. Perhaps some parents of bridegrooms would like to send me their thoughts on the matter.

Dear Mrs. Tobin, I always seem to get lipstick on my teeth, no matter how carefully I put it on. I know this isn't exactly a question on etiquette but have you any suggestions as to how I can overcome the problem? — Grace J.

Dear Grace, Go to the cosmetic counter of the largest department store in your city. The clerks are trained to give expert advice. They will recommend a non-smear brand of lipstick and show you how to apply it so it will not rub off on your teeth.

Dear Mrs. Tobin, I am a civilian friend of a retired vice admiral of the Coast Guard. How should I address an invitation to him and his wife? — Dorothy G.

Dear Dorothy, Such social correspondence may be addressed thusly: Vice Admiral and Mrs. Arthur B. Coe. Official correspondence should include the full rank and military service as, Vice Admiral, U.S.C.G. (Ret.) and Mrs. Arthur B. Coe.

Dear Mrs. Tobin, You called one of your reader's husband chauvinistic. We hear the word all the time but what does it really mean? — Janet and Bill J.

Dear Janet and Bill, The word comes from an overenthusiastic admirer of Napoleon I, Nicholas Chauvin. It has come to mean anyone who is blindly zealous and devoted to a cause, particularly military devotion. Today the word is most often used in connection with the police force or a man who sets himself above democratic processes. It is certainly not a very flattering description of a man and I hope it is soon dropped from American rhetoric. P.S. I didn't call the reader's husband chauvinistic... she did.

YULETIDE GREETINGS

Christmas cards reflect the times

In recent years the environmental movement has spawned millions of Christmas cards produced from recycled paper. This year, say some greeting card manufacturers, Women's Lib and the nation's battle to build new energy sources will be Yule card themes.

However, there is a large segment of Americans who think of Christmas in old-fashioned terms and still want to send out traditional cards. This year, as in the past, they will range in price from as low as 15 cents to several dollars each, depending on their quality.

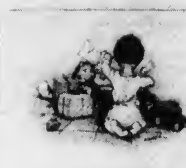

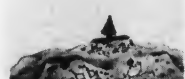

The religious motif still is popular with millions of card buyers at Christmas time, says the American Artists Group, Inc., a leading card manufacturer.

In today's controversial society, cards also are expressing political beliefs. And there is a family-minded group of Americans who like to use pictures of their children — sometimes even themselves — as Yule greetings to their friends, relatives or even business associates.

The family newsletter, bringing everybody up to date on what has been happening to mom and dad and the kids for the past year, has been in vogue for years and still will be this Christmas season.

One card manufacturer says it's especially popular with people who neglect to write letters all year.

The classic card, of course, is the snow-covered New England village scene of the Currier and Ives variety. Card makers insist these never will go out of style, so long as there are traditionalists around.

The comic Christmas card to caught on for a time, but its popularity today is more confined to birthdays, wedding anniversaries, etc.

All this variety in the selection of Christmas cards is accepted by the last two or three generations. Yet it hasn't always been that way. Until a century ago the Yule greeting card virtually was unheard of in this country.

Then in 1875 Louis Prang, a German immigrant, hit on the idea for Christmas greetings through cards. He illustrated them with reproductions of famous paintings by American artists.

The greeting card caught on among Victorian Americans. By 1881 Prang was selling more than five million a year and was on the way to becoming a wealthy man.

A new Christmas custom had taken hold in America.

By 1890, however, Prang pulled out of the Christmas card business, possibly because of a flood of cheap German cards that grabbed a big chunk of his trade.

The German cards, while they often were criticized as "tasteless," were on the American market until the early 1930s, when American companies began turning out more elegant Christmas greetings in mass quantities.

The annual volume has been on the upgrade ever since.

Women's roles in revolution

Wives, sweethearts and even prostitutes accompanied the British and American armies in varying numbers during the Revolutionary War.

The women generally helped with the cooking, washing and mending. Officially, the British Army had four women for every 100 men, but frequently there were more on both sides.

POINT BLANK

Wife's food fads get him down

By JOHN MOON

Dear John:

My wife is a health nut.

Recently, she got a medical symptoms book. With it, she diagnosed every little pain that she had, or I had, into something horrible, disastrous and expensive to cure.

Life was hell around the house, heading off with needless trips to the doctors.

Then another book on diet hit the house.

Prunes simmered on the backburner, and the blender hummed up prune yogurt daily. All for the sake of our colors.

Now a new book, and the prunes have disappeared. Instead, bran is going into all kinds of foods to cause a "fibrous" food.

Apparently, the fibers in the food cause it to zap through the colon at a tremendous speed, avoiding the pockets and eddies.

I ask my wife why we just don't eat rope in the first place.

Do other husbands with aging wives face the same thing?

Down on Diets

Dear Down:

Yes.

Dear John:

My periodontist, which is a high-falutin' term for a dentist that does surgery on receding gums, wants me to floss my teeth 24 hours a day, it seems.

He and his staff of teeth-cleaning girls warn me all the time to floss, poke rubber-tipped things into crevices between my teeth and chew red dye pills, etc.

I complain that I don't have all that time to spend on just my teeth and tell them I would rather have false teeth than live all my leisure hours in the bathroom, grooming my gums.

What would you do?

Tired of Teeth

Dear Tired:

I would do just like a guy in my building.

He spends about one hour of company time each day in the men's room, flossing, brushing and gargling.

It's a wonder his boss doesn't knock his remaining teeth out.

Dear John:

I believe President Ford is guilty of a misdemeanor.

He was in an auto crash the other night with some teenagers in Hartford, Conn.

Yet he and his driver sped away, failing to stop and exchange addresses and other pertinent information, as required by law.

I couldn't get away with this. He shouldn't either.

Am I right? Can he be prosecuted?

Just a Little Guy

Dear Just:

Yes.

No.

GASOLINE NOT A CLEANER

Today, despite the availability of relatively safe and efficient cleaning agents, some people still use gasoline to clean clothes, floors, paint brushes, machine parts - just about anything.

Gasoline is designed to burn. It vaporizes readily and the vapors can be exploded. What does it take to make gasoline vapor burn?

Only air and a source of ignition.

Because the pilot light of a furnace or heater is hidden from view, do-it-yourselfers frequently forget about it as an ever-present source of flame and ignition. An open flame isn't the only source of ignition for gasoline vapor. The electric arc that occurs when you flick a light switch or pull an electric plug out of a wall socket can ignite vapor. So can the sparks from an electric drill's motor.

As you can see, it's easy to start a fire with gasoline - that's what it's made for. But, fortunately, it's even easier to follow this precaution: Don't use gasoline for cleaning!

STITCHING WITCHERY

Dear Betty:

Lately I have had some trouble with my sewing machine skipping stitches on some knits, mostly in top-stitching. I have tried several things. Also, I have another problem — my thread knots up on the underside at the start of a seam. — Barbara Stanoff, Kansas City, Mo.

Let's take the easy one first. When you start a new seam, always hold on to the two little tails of thread until you have taken at least three stitches. Otherwise, the machine will eat them.

Quick lesson on how to start a seam: Position the fabric along the seam allowance guide. Turn wheel to insert needle in fabric about two stitches from top edge. Lower presser foot. Hold on to thread tails! Reverse two stitches, then go forward.

About your skipped stitches: Are you using a new ballpoint needle in the proper size? Have you prewashed your knit? Are you using the

A City Divided?

The close mayoral race and the post-election bitterness seems to have left Quincy a city divided, or close to it.

At least each day there is more evidence pointing to what could be a very sorry situation. We keep hearing reports of good friends and neighbors who have stopped talking to one another because one voted for Mayor Walter Hannon and the other for Joseph LaRaia.

And there are other reports still trickling in on incidents that happened on election day. Reports of obscenities hurled by some campaign workers standing outside the polls.

In bygone years, election day was a fun day in Quincy. Opposing campaign workers would stand side by side outside a polling place trying to hustle last minute votes for their candidates. But they were still friendly with the other side and kidded back and forth. But this past election day apparently was not like that. There was some hatred out there. And that is frightening.

And there are reports of voters and the wife of at least one candidate running for high office being pushed and shoved.

Why? What's Quincy coming to? Can't candidates, their workers and voters disagree without being disagreeable? Or in this case, damn insulting, ignorant, poisonous! Has hatred really taken over here?

Time may heal some of the wounds. But some of the scars will never go away.

Two years from now, it may take a popular, strong "third" candidate to put the city back together again.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Against Self-Defense

[Reprinted from The Indianapolis Star]

Legislation is being proposed in Congress that would sharply restrict the individual's right to use force to defend himself, his family or his property from an intruder or intruders in his home.

The legislation would require that the individual, before using force in self-defense, have proof that the intruder, or intruders, actually intended harm.

Exactly how a resident confronted by one or more invaders of his home could go about getting such proof is not specified. The circumstances surrounding intrusion of a home by stealth or force do not conduce to obtaining psychological profiles or affidavits from the intruders. Even if they did, it is hard to imagine that criminals intent upon robbery, torture, kidnapping, rape or murder would sign statements to be used later as evidence.

The proposed legislation also requires that victims of intended violence exhaust all possibilities of retreat before using deadly force in self-defense. Critics of the proposal say that this could be interpreted as requiring victims to abandon their homes to their assailants.

Under no circumstances whatever the proposed legislation says, is deadly force to be used in the defense of property. Thus, if the proposal became law, an individual with a weapon capable of stopping the criminals could be forced to stand idle while they stripped his dwelling of all that they chose.

This proposed legislation, which is so heavily weighted in favor of criminals at the expense of their victims, is contained -- buried might be a better word -- in S-1, the 800-page recodification of the Federal Criminal code. The equivalent House bill is HR-3907.

The proposed restrictions in the use of deadly force in defense of self or belongings would apply only to homes on federal property. However, they draw upon some of the more absurd state court rulings limiting the right of individuals to use deadly force in self-defense, and this has implications.

In one of these, a Massachusetts court issued a decision against a woman who had shot a man who was threatening to kill her. The court ruled she had failed to flee out of a basement door into a nearby woods. The court apparently could not visualize the obvious possibility that the assailant might have followed her.

The worst thing about these proposed limitation on the right of self-defense is that they would, if enacted into law, set a dangerous precedent. Liberals could be expected to push for similar legislation on the state level. And where they can muster a majority, and the public is not alert to what is going on, they could succeed.

There have been too many pro-criminal court decisions and there has been too much pro-criminal legislation in our crime-ridden society. These proposed new restrictions on the individual's right of self-defense would, if enacted, stimulate even more crimes of violence and further endanger law-abiding individuals' lives.

They should not be allowed to become law.

A man cannot give what he hasn't got.

SPEAKING OUT

Is There A Machine?

Editor: Quincy Sun:

The editorial of Nov. 13th was an excellent report on the recent municipal election.

I would like to read an editorial about the "Big Machine" that supposedly controls Quincy's government. Who is this "machine" comprised of? Is it necessary to have a "machine" control our city government? If "yes" - Why? If "no" - how come? Do the voters of Quincy accept this concept of government unquestionably? Is it ethical? If this is a fact, does it not make a farce out of the democratic form of government?

An editorial on this subject would answer a lot of questions for the average voter. It would, also, give the citizens of Quincy a clearer idea of how our city is governed. Thank you.

P.S. I predict a $10 increase in our taxes next year - regardless of who our mayor is!

'Thank You' From

Beechwood Knoll

Editor, Quincy Sun:

My students and I wish to share with you the happiness we feel as a result of Mrs. Conley's visit to our class.

Being "Guest Editors" for your newspaper is [and will forever be] a high point in their school years. Mrs. Conley certainly was a wonderful representative for the theme of the issue because she made each child feel like a "very special person". And the exhilaration increased as the issue was read and reread for she included everyone's work.

We want to thank you and Howdy's for making this most memorable experience a possibility.

SUNBEAMS

A Milestone For Edna Austin

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Most women can do a better job keeping their age a secret than the CIA trying to hide a new agent in Russia.

But I'm quite sure of one who won't mind if I spill the beans that she will be 90 Friday. Ninety young, that is.

She's Edna Beatrice Austin, the only woman to serve in Quincy's city council in its history. And one of the greatest gals the city has ever known.

A friend of her's tipped me off about her birthday. And personally knowing Mrs. Austin during some of the 15 years she served in the City Council, I'm quite sure she won't mind me being such a blabbermouth about her birthday.

When she retired undefeated in 1959, she had a town full of admirers—including some political foes who may have disagreed with her at times but liked the way she did things.

When "Madam Councillor" stood up to say something, there was no doubt about what she meant. She never straddled issues regardless of how controversial they might have been. She never counted votes before she said it. And there wasn't a man on the council who could force her to back down.

I remember the testimonial they gave her at Broad Meadows Junior High School in January, 1960. Some 400 persons were there to pay tribute to her.

Pillars of the community were there. Like Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, Arthur Burgess, committee chairman, Frank Remick who was the toastmaster, Judge Gertrude Halloran, Dr. Edward Mann, then president of Eastern Nazarene College, to name a few. And there were telegrams from Henry Cabot Lodge, Leverett Saltonstall, Richard Wigglesworth.

And I remember Mrs. Austin, fighting back the tears saying: "This is the most enchanted evening I shall ever know. And following that up with a plug for women:

"It has been a rare privilege for me to serve on the council. I hope someday there will be other women on the council."

Some day there may be another one. But she'll have to really be something to match Edna Austin.

As one of her opponents said the night of her testimonial: "I'll take my hat off to her. I seldom agreed with her, but you know, she had a lot of guts. She was never afraid to take a stand regardless of how controversial it was."

Happy birthday, Madam councillor.

WELL, Mayor Walter Hannon seems to be taking Saturday's recount in stride. At Tuesday morning's Quincy CETA meeting with local business and industrial representatives to find jobs for unemployed, held at State Street South, North Quincy, Hannon quipped: "I'm here trying to find jobs for others and after Saturday I could be looking for one myself."

QUINCY IS LOSING another of its most dedicated public servants. Atty. Heslip Sutherland has submitted his resignation as a member of the Board of Managers of Public Burial Places to Mayor Hannon.

It marks the end of 30 years of service to Quincy including terms on the School Committee, Woodward Board of Managers, Rent Control Board, and Board of Appeals. All of it unpaid service.

Sutherland has also served on civic and professional boards bringing his service to much more than 30 years.

He's from the old school that loved Quincy. It's too bad that there aren't more like him. Quincy still needs men like him.

QUINCY'S TWO NEW City Councillors, Paul Harold [at-large] and Daniel Raymond [Ward 2] got the feel of things to come by sitting in on Monday night's City Council session.

I DON'T KNOW about you, but I just can't bear to watch two scenes of the President John F. Kennedy funeral in "Years of Lightning, Day Of Drums". The one where Jackie and Caroline kneel at and touch the flag-draped casket in the Capitol rotunda and when little John salutes. And the scenes at the Cape with the late President playing with the two youngsters always makes me ask why...why...why!

SUDDEN THOUGHT: See where Quincy Junior College has added some more cheerleaders. And see that they are all girls. How come no boys? You know, a little men's lib.

WONDERING what Santa was doing wandering around Quincy Sq. last week? He was in town to help publicize the Holiday Fair at United First Parish Church. He'll be back Nov. 29 to stay for the season.

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein the North Quincy druggist, defines a politician as: "A person who never met a tax he didn't hike."

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

November 20-26, 1940 - 35 Years Ago This Week

First Draft Quota Goes Off To World War II

By PAUL HAROLD

At ceremonies in the council chamber, Quincy said good-bye to nine young men who made up the city's first draft quota.

The farewell included speeches by Mayor Thomas Burgin, war time former mayor Joseph Whiton and Colonel George Adams, veteran of the Spanish-American War and W.W.I. Rev. Carleton Easton of Quincy Point Congregational Church gave the invocation.

The young men, all volunteers were, Robert Cutler, George Gorbunoff, Herbert Blanchette, Joseph Goode Jr., Edmund McCarron, Henry Tucker, Paul Sheridan, Joseph Cummings and Donald Knowles.

NEED FOR HOTEL CITED

"Quincy not only needs a hotel, but the city can support one," said Mrs. Florence Crone, a hotel executive living here temporarily.

She pointed out the city, with hotel accommodations, would be in a position to go out after many conventions which do not consider the city.

"A central location, possibly near the courthouse would be the best site," she said. She noted Quincy was one of the few cities of its size in the country without adequate hotel facilities.

TAXPAYERS ASSOCIATION BACKS ABOLITION OF RESERVE FIRE LIST

The Quincy Taxpayers Association announced its support of Mayor Burgin's recommendation to abolish the reserve list for the fire department.

William Edmonston, executive secretary of the association said his group supported the recommendation because the department would soon become an organization of old men. In place of the reserve list, it was suggested that an eligible list be set up instead.

Edmonston said, "It was not fair to either members of the reserve force, to the city or the taxpayers, that middle aged fire fighters, without experience be placed on the active list."

LATE STARTING TIME OF THANKSGIVING GAME PROTESTED

The late starting time of this year's Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day game was protested.

Instead of starting at the usual 10:30 a.m., this year's game time was changed to 11 a.m. so that the game would not interfere with church services. Football fans, however, argued that the late starting time would interfere with Thanksgiving dinner. Fans wanted the 1941 game pushed back to the 10:30 time or even 10.

JANITORS ROLE AS CROSSING GUARDS REJECTED

The School Committee voted this week not to allow janitors to serve as crossing guards.

Police Chief John Avery recommended that janitors take on traffic duty to aid the police, but the school committee rejected the idea and said it was solely a police function.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Economy Study No. 3729

By ERIC SWIDER

Several months ago, in this column, I attacked the announcement of the New England Regional Commission's Task Force on Capital and Labor Markets as another high-powered stall on grappling with the problems of this Region.

Last week I paid my 20 bucks and went to listen to their findings. While most of the recommendations of the Task Force are meaningful and worthwhile, I was most interested in finding out what would make this study different and what might happen to secure implementation.

Jim Howell, the chief economist for the First National Bank of Boston and study manager, points out that between 1964 and 1975 some 3728 studies have been done on the New England economy and most of them are collecting dust. You can see why I might have felt justified in wondering about why study number 3729 should prove to be different.

The six New England governors were there, and admitted that the problems of New England are ones of attitude. As Eli Shapiro, a task force member from Connecticut, stated, "It's very analogous to the psychiatrist who, in disgust, finally said to his patient - 'Look Mrs. Blumenthal, you don't have an inferiority complex. You're simply inferior.'"

For the first time as I see it, Governors and their aides weren't blaming the national economy or the Federal government for their problems. They were introspectively looking at this region and asking - What's wrong and what can we do about making it right?

Rhode Island Governor Philip Noel stated the answer as succinctly as anyone - "American business sets up shop where it can make a buck." Another speaker pointed out quite appropriately that "when we lack the will to see things as they really are, there is nothing so mystifying as the obvious." And in the same vein, our Lt. Governor, Thomas O'Neill, reminded us that "one man's dividend could be another man's job."

Does New England have a problem it can do anything about? The resounding conclusion of that meeting was YES, and the recommendations of the task force, in the opinion of many, were a good first start.

I asked three people if they thought Governor Dukakis would do anything in the Commonwealth to focus attention on the NERCOM report and get grassroots action going to bring about a plan for economic revitalization? One unnamed, highly influential business leader guaranteed me he wouldn't: Governor Salmon thought that Dukakis would enthusiastically run with the ball, and the Governor himself assured me that all his department heads concerned with economic conditions would study it.

New Hampshire's Governor declares, "What America used to be, New Hampshire is." Rhode Island's Noel refers to this economic development efforts as the "Fastest Gun in the East." Vermont's Salmon was going back home and calling legislative, labor and business leaders together to seek immediate implementation, and Connecticut's Grasso left the session early to get her people moving on the findings. I find a willingness to study the report as a fifth alternative.

Maybe I'm expecting too much, but I was

LIVING TODAY

What Holds Your Marriage Together?

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

What is holding your marriage together?

Is it fear that you can't make it alone? Is it for the "sake of the Children?" [Poor kids.] Is it a spartan attitude that "no matter what, I can handle it even if it kills me?" [Which it may be doing.] Is it personal lack of confidence and need to stay with this brute of-a-man even though he's cruel ... mean ... selfish? "He's destroying the personalities of each of the children ... but at least, there's a roof over our heads." What is holding your marriage together?

Perhaps, on the other hand, your marriage is held together by more POSITIVE REALITIES. Is it that you like being together? ... doing things together? ... respecting each other? ... loving each other? When these elements are present, neither you nor your partner feels "I'm trapped". Indeed, you feel free ... free to love ... free to live. The former group of people are not free to live ... nor to love.

The successful marriage is two people HAVING FUN TOGETHER. They have found fun things that they enjoy together ... dancing ... tennis ... boating ... traveling ... their children ... antiquing ... gardening ... skiing ... During these various fun things they TALK. The lack of talk is the biggest problem in marriage. The successful marriage is one where the couple TALK with each other ... LISTEN to each other ... FEEL what each other feels. They CARE about each other. They know what is pleasing to each other because the talk ... resolving problems as they arise. They are comfortable with each other ... so, it's fun being together.

The successful marriage is two people who recognize RESPONSIBLE WAYS OF RELATING. They have discovered ways of being compatible that's important. I see so many people in counseling who have practically nothing in common. To try to make each other over, so that the relationship could work, is next to an impossible task.

Responsible couples start with a BASIC HEALTHY EMOTIONAL LIFE. The man hater can never make a good wife ... the woman hater can never make a good husband ... the spoiled brat must overcome this handicap or he/she will not make a good marriage partner ... nor does the mama's boy ... nor mama's little girl ... nor the alcoholic. These emotional conditions doom a successful marriage from the start. Responsible couples have projects and goals which they enjoy together ... achieving the satisfactions of accomplishment and self-expression.

If you have a successful marriage, keep it so. There are only about 45 out of 100 now. The others are making do ... but very unhappy.

Here are the summary conclusions of the task force. Are they worthwhile or not? Is this simply number 3729 waiting for study number 3730? Only our Governor knows for sure.

To make New England Capital Markets Work Better, the Task Force Recommends:

- A broad-based informational program that forcefully favors economic growth.

- A capital budgeting and financing program for small and medium businesses to be taught in the region's publicly supported business schools.

- Expansion of the concept of the Vermont Municipal Bond Bank and the Maine Municipal Bond Bank to the remaining New England states.

- A change in Federal tax regulations to spawn and accelerate expansion of new technical enterprise development.

- Expansion of the Connecticut Product Development Corporation to operate in all of the New England states.

- A privately financed regional fund - the New England Capital Corporation - to supply long-term (10-20 year) debt capital to established, profitable, sound and growing New England companies at competitive costs.

To Make New England Labor Markets Work Better, the Task Force Recommends:

- A comprehensive labor market demand and supply study to identify specific occupations in which labor market shortages are likely to occur and launching of a major informational program emphasizing the visible career ladders in these occupations.

- A Skilled Worker Development Financial Loan Program to attract workers into the critically short emerging occupations.

- Greater coordination of the six Divisions of Employment Security Job Banks within the region, especially where labor market clusters cross state boundaries.

- A viable mechanism to forecast emerging and declining occupations and coordination of the dissemination of this information among the region's vocational-technical schools.

- A Journeyman's Advisory Council drawn from representative skills to advise the region's vocational-technical schools.

- A Transportation-to-Work Program for labor market clusters where travel distances and lack of transportation facilities restrict workers to specific locales.

Shriver Says Public Doubting Ford's Competency

to work for that person."

Shriver told the group he is running for the Presidency "to try, with your help, to restore faith and confidence in the political leaders of this country and in ourselves."

Decrying inflation, unemployment and "the biggest peace-time deficit in this century," Shriver said he wants to end all three. Later quizzed by a student as to how he would stop inflation, Shriver admitted he had "no magic medicine no one has ever heard of before" to ease inflation and unemployment.

But he listed certain techniques he would use, as president, to curb the problems - techniques Shriver says the Ford administration refuses to employ. He told the students he would:

- * Continue tax cuts.
- * Lower interest rates to spur construction.
- * Increase the supply of money.

- * Subsidize jobs in the private sector.

- * Employ people in the public sector, including mass transit, health services, housing, and public works, creating jobs and purchasing power.

- * Use wage and price controls when necessary.

In an admirable and earnest effort to understand these tools of fiscal control, the same student who asked the question "How do you control inflation?" requested from Shriver a written statement of the policies he outlined to the group. The student said:

"You wonder why the 18-year-olds don't vote. We're out in left field."

Shriver at once agreed to send copies of his speeches to the social studies classes for study.

A trim and youthful 60, Shriver says he is the only Democratic presidential candidate who combines executive-level experience and foreign policy experience. As head of the Chicago Board of Education, Shriver said he managed a $1 billion budget and noted he returned money to the treasury as creator and director of the Peace Corps under former President John F. Kennedy.

A former ambassador to France, Shriver also teamed with Sen. George McGovern as the vice-presidential candidate on the 1968 Democratic ticket. Though the McGovern-Shriver ticket suffered an overwhelming defeat in the presidential election, Shriver said he does not feel his own candidacy for president will be jeopardized by that defeat. He told The Sun:

"I don't think those who voted against the ticket voted against me. Without sounding conceited, I feel I attracted votes for the ticket rather than taking them away. People voted against the ticket because they felt McGovern wasn't competent enough for the job. McGovern himself stated this in a speech three weeks ago."

Though the brother-in-law of Senator Kennedy - himself a still talked-about presidential candidate - Shriver said he does not expect Kennedy's automatic or unearned support. Noting Kennedy has pledged to remain neutral thus far in the race, Shriver said:

"I don't want to impose on him simply because I happen to be married to his sister [Eunice Kennedy Shriver]...I want to earn his support, just as I want to earn the support of Senator Mansfield, Senator Cranston and others."

Critical of Ford's stance of non-interference in the New York fiscal crisis, Shriver called the President's reasoning "ludicrous" in light of what Shriver says is the "biggest peace-time deficit" shouldered in United States history. He said:

"For President Ford to sit sanctimoniously in the White House and throw stones at New York for its deficit is ludicrous. New York is part of the United States and deserves as much consideration as - Saigon."

Though not speculating on his Republican opponents in a possible face-off in '76, Shriver did have a comment on President Ford.

"Ford may be in some trouble," Shriver said. "He may not make it."

MDA Southern Mass. Chapter Holds Chute-Bowling Roll-Off

The Southern Massachusetts Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association recently held its chute-bowling roll-off at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, Wollaston.

Organized by Quincy firefighters, Angelo DelGreco and William Lowry, bowlers from MDA leagues in Abington and Walpole met with the Wollaston league members in competition. Teams were decided upon by seasonal averages and each bowler was given a bowling shirt representing his or her usual league establishment.

A bowling banquet followed at Maryknoll Seminary where trophies donated by Norwood Trophy were awarded to the winners. The winning team trophy went to Tom Allen of Martha's Vineyard, Nancy Nolan of Dedham and Ralph Affanato of Quincy. The high three string for the season trophy went to Mike Godfrey of Quincy while Scott Cieri of Norwood took the prize for the season's high single.

All participants received souvenir paperweights designed in a bowling motif. Quincy residents assisting in the day's activities were Quincy Fire Chief Edward Barry, Deputy and Mrs.

Thomas Maguire, Gil and Mary Beth Vermette and Connie Godfrey.

Following the trophy presentation, Morton Schleffer, president of the Southern Massachusetts Chapter of MDA, made a presentation of awards to Lowry and DelGreco on behalf of the chapter "for their dedication and countless hours of work which made the bowling roll-off as well as other programs possible."

Lydon Asks Light Poles At FB Golf Course

Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon has suggested installation of added lighting poles at the Furnace Brook Golf Course ski tow area to ensure recreational safety in the coming winter months.

In a letter to Richard Koch, commissioner of natural resources, Lydon requested the Park and Recreation Board to review the present lighting in the ski tow area.

Lydon said he himself investigated the area and found the lighting inadequate. He suggested placement of four to six lighting poles along the hill.

Bellotti To Discuss 'Law And American Education'

Concern over the recent Supreme Court ruling on corporal punishment will highlight Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti's discussion of "Law and American Education" at the Francis W. Parker School media center on Billings Rd., North Quincy, Wednesday evening, Nov. 19 at 7 p.m.

Bellotti is being presented as a speaker by the Quincy Education Association, Inc. in recognition of American Education Week.

Other topics on the agenda are Chapter 766 and Chapter 622, which deal with providing care for children with special needs and with discrimination because of sex.

The public is invited to attend.

Brett Suggests School Anti-Litter Instructional Campaign

Rep. Joseph E. Brett has suggested implementation of an anti-litter instructional campaign to keep school yards clear of debris.

In a letter to School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Brett said he often patrols the Beechwood Knoll School grounds, picking up "scrap paper, beer and tonic bottles, cans and other debris" and depositing them in trash barrels in the school yard.

In an effort to counter this continuing litter problem, Brett suggested teachers instruct children during recess time to dispose of refuse properly in nearby trash containers and to patrol the grounds for other litter.

Creedon, frankly admitting the litter problem exists in many other school yards in addition to Beechwood Knoll, said he has forwarded a copy of Brett's letter to all school principals and head custodians.

Creedon also outlined steps the School Department has taken this fall to curb schoolyard litter. He said the school department has prompted passage of a City Council ordinance prohibiting loitering on school grounds, has purchased a playground sweeper and assigned a Quincy Junior College work-study student to a clean-up program, and has requested all principals to assign older elementary school students to the task of policing school grounds for scattered debris.

He said, too, the school department has arranged a meeting with all school principals and police officials in an effort to enforce the loitering ordinance.

North Quincy Knights Entertain 306 Seniors

The North Quincy Knights of Columbus held a party for 306 senior citizens at their hall on Hollis Ave.

A roast beef dinner was served. There was also a merry making punch bowl.

Entertainment supplied by Senior Volunteers and the Council Combo carried on until the lights were turned out.

Senior clubs, housing projects and rest homes all contributed to make up the happy throng. [Over 40 Knights participated].

The project was under the supervision of Grand Knight Nicholas Fasano.

Editor, Cathy Conley

A Salute To Education WeekOur Schools And Our Library Help Us Grow

Neil Aronson, 8, interviews Warren Watson, Director of the Thomas Crane Library.

Mr. Watson, how do you decide what books to put in the library?

Well, Neil, this is one of the librarian's most important jobs. We spend a great deal of time at it. Several people on our staff select the books. One person screens all information from publishers. We read several reviews. If the book sounds good, we order it.

How did you become head of the library?

Library work is my career. Neil, I went to graduate library school. Then I worked as assistant director of a library in another town. I became head of that library. Then the job as head of Thomas Crane Library came up. There are people called library trustees, who actually chose the person they want. They gave my name to the Mayor and he appointed me.

My class would like to see more books about outer space, more Encyclopedia Brown books and more "scratch and smell" books in the library. Who should we tell?

Any time there is a book or a subject that you would like to see in the library, tell the librarian and she will write it down. We will consider your request when we are selecting our books. [Then Mr. Watson called Ms. Jane Granstrom, Supervisor of Children's Services, and told her about the children's request for more Encyclopedia Brown and "scratch and smell" books. Ms. Granstrom said, "Encyclopedia Brown is alive and well and constantly being ordered." She also explained that "scratch and smell" books don't last too long.

Do you have a lot of rules for the library?

Well, Neil, we have such a beautiful famous building here, we hate to post a lot of rules. It's so negative. The old-fashioned idea of silence doesn't exist anymore. We like people to talk with each other. That's the way we learn. If everyone just uses good sense and courtesy, everything runs pretty smoothly.

What does the librarian do besides check out the books for me?

A professional librarian's job has three main functions. Neil, first, he or she gathers resources -- like books and records -- into one place and classifies them so people can find them. Secondly, the librarian advises people about the books to use for their particular interest and their level of interest. And thirdly, the librarian must be very aware of what's going on in the community so that he or she can keep abreast of what users want. We want our library to be a dynamic force in the community of Quincy.

Every single day, we grow. Our bodies grow. And our minds grow. There are two very special places designed to help our minds grow -- our school and our library.

This is National Education Week. It is also Children's Book Week. So this issue of Young Ideas, sponsored by The Thomas Crane Library, salutes our schools and our library.

Keiko Hirose, 8, interviews Dr. Lawrence Creedon Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Creedon, why do we have to go to school?

Well, Keiko, we go to school to learn to read and write, to do arithmetic and geography and history. But, most important of all, we go to school to learn how to be a good person. And we are given the tools to keep growing into a better person as life goes on.

What does the school committee do?

Your parents elect the school committee to make the rules that govern the schools. They actually run the schools.

How did you become superintendent?

First I was a teacher. Then I became an assistant principal. Then the job of superintendent opened up. With a lot of other people, I applied for the job. The school committee interviewed all the people who applied and they decided who would be superintendent.

How come Furnace Brook School stops at the sixth grade?

People in education -- teacher, principals, school committee people -- feel that it is best to keep children together who are about the same size and have the same interests. The children are more comfortable in this atmosphere. This is why, here in Quincy, the elementary schools go up to the sixth grade.

Why do we have a half day every Tuesday?

This is the day the teachers go to school. Our teachers become students every Tuesday afternoon. They take courses, go to workshops and attend seminars so that they can become better teachers.

Who decides if we get a day off for snow?

After calling the police and the weather bureau and checking to see the conditions of the roads, I am the one who actually decides.

Do our schools have a paper shortage?

Yes, Keiko. We definitely do. Paper has doubled in cost. That's why we ask every child to conserve paper and use both sides of each piece.

How was Mr. Bernazzani picked to be our principal?

Mr. Bernazzani was a teacher, and a very good one. He works very hard and he likes children a lot. So when that job was available, he seemed to be the best person for it.

Once our teacher was sick. How do you get a substitute?

Your teacher calls the principal and tells him. Then your principal calls a particular lady in our school system whose job it is to contact substitutes. She has a list and she calls the substitute.

If I were the teacher, I'd send away for Highlights -- and I'd make sure I got the key so I would know all the answers. If the children were good, I would let them do fun reading. If they talked too much I would make them write on the board -- "I will not be bad."

Julia Cradler, 8

If I were the teacher, I would let the kids have thirty minutes free time. Then I would do reading and math. And then we'd have thirty minutes free time again!

Paul Rudnick, 8

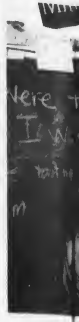

If I were the teacher, we'd play the game "Torture the Teacher". The children would find a word in the dictionary and if they could stump me, I would get a point and a lollipop. [My teacher Miss Sandler plays this game with us.]

Matthew Elofson, 8

If I were the teacher, we would have lots and lots of music. On the last day, my class and I would have a big party -- and we would sing. [In the picture Lisa is showing Dayle Katz: a song.]

My First Library Card

What a thrill Shawn Cummings had last week. He has been attending the picture book story hour at the Thomas Crane Library every week. He loves the stories that the librarians tell to the children and the films they see. Now it was time for him to get his own library card. All he had to do was write his name. This is how he felt.

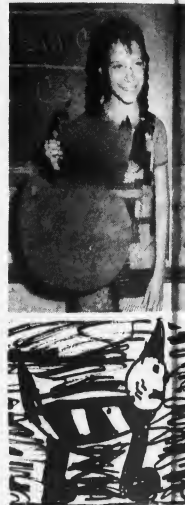

I feel very happy, I won't have to use my mother's card any more. I can use my own. I like books that make me laugh like Corduroy. That's about a teddy bear. I won't get any scary books because they scare my little sister. My little sister is only three years old. She writes inside library books. So I will keep mine on top of the washing machine so she can't get them. Shawn Cummings, 6.

I'd Like To Write A Book

Would you like to write a book someday? If you did, what would you write about? This is what we asked the children in Miss Sandler's third grade. Patti McCord, 8, was very definite about what she would write about.

I'd like to write a book about a cat. His name would be Josh. Josh wanders away from Maureen, the girl who owns him, and he gets lost in the cellar of the house where her uncle used to live. He is locked in that cellar for six days and six nights. It's pitch black in that cellar. He meows and scratches but no one hears him. Maureen is very sad. She cries for the whole six days. Fortunately there are a few mice so Josh does not starve. On the sixth day, the man who bought the house, Mr. Brown, opened the cellar door. Josh came racing out of the cellar and ran straight to Maureen. Maureen was about the happiest person in the world when she saw him. And Josh never got lost again.

Pollution

I think that pollution is one of the worst of the problems in the world. I think that if man is smart enough to invent rocket ships, cars, and factories, he can cut down on the pollution; air, water, and land pollution. When he invented the factory he should of thought about the smoke that would fill the air. Also the cars which also give out smoke. The water pollution isn't any better. A few times when I went to a lake with a friend, we found out that there wasn't a place on that big lake to fish, swim or even just to enjoy the water. No place for any wildlife to live. While moving to Boston, we stopped in a hotel in Illinois, the water was so bad that our mom had to boil the water for us to drink. We couldn't go swimming in their nice large pool.

The land is just as bad. I have been in some states of the U.S. and saw a little bit of some other countries. Most of the places had trash in their streets and other places.

I think all the people in the world should help clean up. So we can have fresh air to breath , clean water to drink and work with. The land should be clean so you won't have to get your shoes dirty every few days.

City Council Briefs

By TOM HENSHAW

The city will contribute $4,000 to pay about one-third of the cost of Christmas decorations in Quincy Center during the coming holiday season.

The City Council voted Monday night to appropriate an additional $1,000 to go with the $5,000 earmarked for the purpose in the annual budget.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington.

A proposal to install "no parking" signs at 953-957 Hancock St., was referred to the Traffic Department.

A request by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Crendon for $2,622 to purchase a number of used pieces of equipment was approved.

The articles included five ice cream freezers, a cash register, a slicing machine and a pickup truck [not to exceed $900.]

The ice cream freezers, valued at $442, have been in the possession of the school department for about 10 years, during which time they have been owned by three different dairy firms.

Each time the company lost its bid to supply the department, the freezers were sold to the winning bidder. Now the city will own them.

A bid to transfer $10,000 out of an account labelled "Sale of Cemetery Lots, Mt. Wollaston" was tabled on a voice vote.

Two members of the Council said they recalled a resolution passed in the spring of 1974 specifically forbidding the transfer of money from that account.

At the time, the Council was

Council To Have Final Approval On QSD Apartment Landscaping

The City Council has taken upon itself the added chore of giving final approval to the landscaping of an apartment development on Quincy Shore Drive.

Until the amendment was passed Monday night, approval was required only on the Planning Board.

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington said he was investigating alleged irregularities in the sale of lots at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

The transfer has been made annually to provide loam, dirt, fertilizer and markers for city cemeteries.

A total of $132,150 was appropriated to cover clothing allowances for the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Health Department and the Hospital Nursing Service.

The appropriation was broken down like this: Police $56,800, Fire $22,800, Hospital Nursing Service $52,050, and Health $500.

The sum of $2,200 was appropriated to purchase a new dental X-ray machine for the Health Department. The present machine is broken down.

A request for $32,987.25 by Library Director Warren Watson was tabled. The money is to come from state aid for free public libraries.

A $220 appropriation was designated to purchase a calculator for Pine Hill Cemetery.

A request for $14,940 to pay four old land-taking awards was referred to the Finance Committee.

Executive Secretary Joseph Shea said the awards originally were made in 1969 but withheld after title examination showed that there were attachments on the properties.

The attachments have now been removed, he said, and the property owners are demanding their money.

The land was taken for street construction.

concerned that final landscaping of the swimming pool, bath house and tennis court at the development might offend nearby residents.

Spokesman for the M. DeMatteo Construction Co. said plans for landscaping have not yet been drawn up since location of the pool, house and court have not yet been determined.

Tobin Suggests SOI $10,000 Gift Be Used For Ball Fields

The City Council suggested Monday night that a $10,000 donation from the Quincy Sons of Italy be used to repair baseball fields in public parks around the city.

Council President Arthur Tobin said he noted during his recent reelection campaign that the fields were in bad condition.

"This is not a criticism of the Park Department," he added quickly. "With their manpower and funds, the most they can do now is rake up the grounds and put the white lines down."

Particularly, he cited the condition of ball fields at Pageant Field, Faxon Field, Faxon Park and Welcome Young Field.

"Let's find out what it would cost to upgrade, level and sod these fields," said Tobin. "There are a lot of youngsters involved."

He said the Sons of Italy Saturday night donated $10,000 to the city for no specific purpose.

Last year, a similar gift was used to pave a parking lot at Quincy City Hospital, he said.

The suggestion was referred to the Mayor's office.

Pollution

I think that pollution is one of the worst of the problems in the world. I think that if man is smart enough to invent rocket ships, cars, and factories, he can cut down on the pollution; air, water, and land pollution. When he invented the factory he should of thought about the smoke that would fill the air. Also the cars which also give out smoke. The water pollution isn't any better. A few times when I went to a lake with a friend, we found out that there wasn't a place on that big lake to fish, swim or even just to enjoy the water. No place for any wildlife to live. While moving to Boston, we stopped in a hotel in Illinois, the water was so bad that our mom had to boil the water for us to drink. We couldn't go swimming in their nice large pool.

The land is just as bad. I have been in some states of the U.S. and saw a little bit of some other countries. Most of the places had trash in their streets and other places.

I think all the people in the world should help clean up. So we can have fresh air to breath, clean water to drink and work with. The land should be clean so you won't have to get your shoes dirty every few days.

City Council Briefs

By TOM HENSHAW

The city will contribute $6,000 to pay about one-third of the cost of Christmas decorations in Quincy Center during the coming holiday season.

The City Council voted Monday night to appropriate an additional $1,000 to go with the $5,000 earmarked for the purpose in the annual budget.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington.

A proposal to install "no parking" signs at 953-957 Hancock St., was referred to the Traffic Department.

A request by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon for $2,622 to purchase a number of used pieces of equipment was approved.

The articles included five ice cream freezers, a cash register, a slicing machine and a pickup truck [not to exceed $900.]

The ice cream freezers, valued at $442, have been in the possession of the school department for about 10 years, during which time they have been owned by three different dairy firms.

Each time the company lost its bid to supply the department, the freezers were sold to the winning bidder. Now the city will own them.

A bid to transfer $10,000 out of an account labelled "Sale of Cemetery Lots, Mt. Wollaston" was tabled on a voice vote.

Two members of the Council said they recalled a resolution passed in the spring of 1974 specifically forbidding the transfer of money from that account.

At the time, the Council was investigating alleged irregularities in the sale of lots at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

The transfer has been made annually to provide loam, dirt, fertilizer and markers for city cemeteries.

A total of $132,150 was appropriated to cover clothing allowances for the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Health Department and the Hospital Nursing Service.

The appropriation was broken down like this: Police $56,800, Fire $22,800, Hospital Nursing Service $52,050, and Health $500.

The sum of $2,200 was appropriated to purchase a new dental X-ray machine for the Health Department. The present machine is broken down.

A request for $32,987.25 by Library Director Warren Watson was tabled. The money is to come from state aid for free public libraries.

A $220 appropriation was designated to purchase a calculator for Pine Hill Cemetery.

A request for $14,940 to pay four old land-taking awards was referred to the Finance Committee.

Executive Secretary Joseph Shea said the awards originally were made in 1969 but withheld after title examination showed that there were attachments on the properties.

The attachments have now been removed, he said, and the property owners are demanding their money.

The land was taken for street construction.

Council To Have Final Approval On QSD Apartment Landscaping

The City Council has taken upon itself the added chore of giving final approval to the landscaping of an apartment development on Quincy Shore Drive.

Until the amendment was passed Monday night, approval was required only from the Planning Board.

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington said he was concerned that final landscaping of the swimming pool, bath house and tennis court at the development might offend nearby residents.

Spokesman for the M. DeMatteo Construction Co. said plans for landscaping have not yet been drawn up since location of the pool, house and court have not yet been determined.

Tobin Suggests SOI $10,000 Gift Be Used For Ball Fields

The City Council suggested Monday night that a $10,000 donation from the Quincy Sons of Italy be used to repair baseball fields in public parks around the city.

Council President Arthur Tobin said he noted during his recent reelection campaign that the fields were in bad condition.

"This is not a criticism of the Park Department," he added quickly. "With their manpower and funds, the most they can do now is rake up the grounds and put the white lines down."

Particularly, he cited the condition of ball fields at

Pageant Field, Faxon Field, Faxon Park and Welcome Young Field.

"Let's find out what it would cost to upgrade, level and sod these fields," said Tobin. "There are a lot of youngsters involved."

He said the Sons of Italy Saturday night donated $10,000 to the city for no specific purpose.

Last year, a similar gift was used to pave a parking lot at Quincy City Hospital, he said.

The suggestion was referred to the Mayor's office.

Beware, heavy coffee drinkers

Heavy coffee or tea drinkers who go through the day without a cup may develop a headache, fatigue or stomach pains, says a London doctor. The reason? They've become mildly dependent on caffeine, a stimulant contained in both beverages, according to Dr. Paul Turner, a professor of clinical pharmacy.

The Kitchen Almanac

The rule for cottage cheese is just the opposite of that for all other cheeses — namely, "the fresher, the better!"

Cottage cheese is not ripened and should be stored as you would fresh milk.

If possible, use it within a day or two after bringing it home from the store.

If baked products are made without any wheat flour, they may be heavier and more crumbly than those made from wheat flour. This, according to home economists at USDA... Most fresh, raw, unsweetened fruits contain less than 100 calories per serving.

Purple Cow: pour frozen concentrated grape juice into cold milk (always add juice to milk); stir quickly and serve with a scoop of vanilla ice cream... If you wash lettuce, celery and other leafy vegetables before storing, be sure to drain them thoroughly. Too much moisture can hasten decay.

Seasoned garlic butter: combine one tablespoon garlic salad dressing mix and 1/2 cup softened butter, mixing thoroughly. Makes 1/2 cup.

Considering a food waste disposer? Perhaps you should. Here, say researchers for KitchenAid appliances, are the categories and just some of the typical foods composing the good disposers' "diet":

(1) stringy foods — artichokes, corn husks, celery and pea pods; (2) hard foods — bones and fruit pits; (3) medium foods — corn cobs and melon rind, and (4) soft foods — i.e. lettuce and cabbage.

To "clean the air", here's a tip from the KitchenAid experts. Disposers, through the use of adequate cold water during and following use, are meant to be self-cleaning. However, if odors are noticed, try running an orange or lemon rind or some ice cubes through the unit.

Try sliced meat loaf, chopped green olives and mayonnaise on your favorite bread... Substitute enriched all-purpose flour for cake flour. It costs less, and one cup — minus two tablespoons — equals one cup of cake flour.

HANCOCK FISH MARKET, located at 658 Hancock St., Wollaston, offers an array of freshly-caught fish and other seafoods, including shrimp, lobster, scallops and crab. Owner of the market is Leo Weiner, shown here.

Central Girls Win 3rd Straight Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Central Junior High School girls are making a habit of winning the city basketball championship.

Two years ago when girls basketball was introduced in the junior high schools, Mary Pratt led both the varsity and junior varsity teams to the championship.

Last year Barbara Donelin took over as coach and the varsity won the crown with an unbeaten record.

This year Barbara's varsity team won the school's third straight city title with a 7-1 record.

The Central girls wrapped up the crown last week with a 24-12 win over Atlantic-North, but it was a 39-17 win over Point, which had been tied for first place, in their previous game which virtually clinched the championship.

Central roared to a 14-0 first period lead in the finale and Miss Donelin pulled her starters for the rest of the game. As a result, Nancy Smith, high scorer in most games, was one of four players to score four points and Denise Leonard was high with eight points.

Smith had 18 points and Elizabeth Raimondi 10 as Central avenged its only loss by breezing over Point.

The lone loss to Point was by a 40-25 score. Central's other wins were over Broad Meadows, 28-24; Sterling, 14-3; Atlantic-North, 27-13; Broad Meadows, 20-10; and Sterling, 21-11.

"This year interest was very high and 131 girls turned out," Miss Donelin said. "The enthusiasm is increasing each year. Also, the level of skill demonstrated by the girls is increasing. This shows the fine background these students are receiving in the elementary schools."

"The keys to our success this season were the teamwork and outstanding defense. Game officials more than once told me they were impressed with these points."

The varsity was led by two excellent guards, Smith, who led last year's varsity to an unbeaten season, and Peggy Burchill, who helped balance the fast break with her excellent outside shooting.

The team had good height and rebounding ability and was deep in talent. Lauren Burke averaged five rebounds a game, Leonard five, Raimondi seven and Ann Geribo six. Geribo also started the fast break attack. Elizabeth McCarthy, Jackie White, Phyllis Germain, Paula Church, Patti Irvine and Julie Krantzberg saw a lot of action and were outstanding.

Round,ing out the varsity squad were Laurel Bumpus, Elia DiVello, Melissa McCauley, Lori McGrath, Denise Romano, Irene Stevens and Kathy Mahoney.

The junior varsity squad, made up of seventh and eighth graders, finished with a 3-5 record, but lost several close games.

The jayvee starters were Patti Micelli, Lisa Costello, Kathy MacDonald, Julianne Hurley and Lisa Green. All played last year as did Patti Doherty, Marie Flaccetta, Nancy MacDonald, Tracey Dillon and Judy Davis.

Other junior varsity players were Ann Brabazon, Susan Cahill, Gail Clougherty, Kathy DeRosso, Lisa DiLillo, Karen Fredey, Kathy Galvin, Chris Keenan, Kerry Kiley, Lois Leonhardi, Tara Mahoney, Anne McElaney, Tammy McGrath, Heather McInnis, Paula Murphy, Cathy Ofria, Jacqueline Purland, Debbie Ranahan, Madessa Souza, Tricia Sullivan, Patricia Stanziani and Missy Verrochi.

Kathi MacDonald led the team in scoring with an average of six points a game and Micelli averaged four points. Costello averaged five rebounds a game. Promising seventh graders were Clougherty, an excellent ball handling guard; Fredey, who has a nice soft shot; Cahill, Sullivan and Keenan.

North Booters Give Ioanilli Nice Surprise

What started out to be a rebuilding year for North Quincy soccer coach Lou Ioanilli was a pleasant surprise.

Last year's successful junior varsity came to the fore and the Raiders finished with a 14-3-1 record and for the second straight year finished second in the Suburban League, gaining its second state tourney berth.

North, eliminated in the opening round last year, this fall defeated Lynn Classical, 4-2, before bowing to Concord-Carlisle, 3-0, in the second round.

"This was a most satisfying year for me," Ioanilli said. "We had a team made up mostly of last year's jayvees except for Peter Donovan and Jim McGinley, but the boys came through in fine style."

Donovan, playing injured most of the season, led the Raiders in scoring with 17 goals and goalie Tony Alessi had eight shutouts.

Ioanilli paid tribute to Donovan and Alessi, as well as Jay Nelson, whose long throw-ins created several uneasy moments for both Classical and Concord-Carlisle, John Dolbec, Jim and Walter McGinley, Bob Stack and Tom D'Angelo. "Every one of our players did their utmost and all deserve a lot of credit for our success this year," Ioanilli said.

North opened with its first win in tournament competition, a 4-2 decision over Lynn Classical, as Donovan continued where he left off during the regular season with three goals and an assist on the other.

After Lynn had taken the lead, Donovan scored on a penalty kick in the opening period. It was his sixth successful penalty shot in seven tries.

He scored twice more in the second period, D'Angelo assisting on the first and Nelson assisting on the second. Lynn cut the gap to 3-2 in the third quarter but North clinched in the finale when Ed Coutts converting Donovan's pass.

The Raiders outshot Classical, 15-8.

Raiders' First Football Team Really Started From Scratch In 1932

By TOM HENSHAW

"We really started from scratch. For one thing, there weren't enough uniforms to go around. Sometimes the kids scrimmaged in old clothes."

It was Jack Donahue stretching his memory back over 43 years, recalling North Quincy High School's first football team, a raggedy crew of juniors and under who went 5-2-0 in 1932.

Donahue, now living in retirement in Quincy, coached that first team and 28 more of them before retiring from the gridiron in 1960 and from the school system in 1970.

The foundation of football at North Quincy, which is now enjoying one of its most successful seasons, goes back to Sept. 12, 1932, when 75 candidates reported to Donahue and his assistant, Dud Foy, at the Welcome Young playground.

Fortunately, one of them was Walter Bryan, nicknamed "Cap", who remains today one of the truly great athletes in North Quincy's history. The North gym is named for him.

"Bryan was a great all-around athlete - football, basketball, baseball, you name it," says Donahue. "He played at B.C. later on. Died a few years ago from heart trouble."

It was all Bryan in North Quincy's first football game ever, the summary of which goes like this:

Saturday, Oct. 1, 1932, at North Easton

North Quincy 0 6 7 6 - 19

1 - NQ - Bryan, 60, run [pass failed]

2 - NQ - Mitchell, recovered blocked punt in end zone [Mathurin, run]

3 - NQ - Bryan, pass interception [point failed]

The Mitchell who blocked the punt and recovered in the end zone for a touchdown was George [Teel] Mitchell, now a plumber in Braintree.

Some of Bryan's prowess was not noted in the summary. He punted an average of 45 yards and one of his kicks, from his own end zone, was downed on the Oliver Ames 38 yard line.

Newspapers the following Monday were ecstatic over North's "blue and gold avalanche", which calls for some explanation.

"Blue and gold were the colors of North Junior High School," recalls Donahue. "We borrowed them for the first year. Not many schools used red and black so we adopted those colors the next year."

North's first home game was played at Pfaffman's Oval, now the site of Quincy Municipal Stadium. Originally it was scheduled for Comins Stadium, across from the police station, but a week of rain left that field unplayable.

Donahue, who had coached the same East Bridgewater team the previous season, recalls that Cap Bryan suffered a shoulder injury, and missed the entire second half.

Friday, Oct. 28, 1932, at Quincy

1 - NQ - Bryan, 6, run [Bryan, rush]

2 - NQ - Ryan, 8, run [Joly, rush]

3 - NQ - Bryan, 30, pass interception [Bryan, rush]

Ryan, not to be confused with Bryan, was Tom Ryan, nicknamed "Peanuts" for his small size, who now runs an appliance store.

Saturday, Nov. 5, 1932, at Hingham

3 - H - Gilbert, 22, pass from Means [Means, kick]

4 - NQ - Nelson, 1, run [kick failed]

Arthur Nelson, who was called "Bat" like everyone with the surname Nelson in those days, is now a physical education instructor at a Cape Cod school.

2 - NQ - Jones, 3, run [kick failed]

North's first season concluded on that note. The school's great rival, Quincy, was not met for the first time until the following year, 1933, when...but that's another story.

Quincy, North Sophs Clash Saturday In Little Big Game

The Quincy and North Quincy sophomore football teams have their day Saturday when they meet in their annual game at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

This game was moved to the stadium a few years ago and has all the trappings of the varsity contest.

This year's game will match a veteran coach against a rookie. Ted Sadowski has been handling the Raider sophs for most of his 18 years at North, while Pete Chella, a former Quincy tackle, is at the young Presidents' helm for the first season.

Quincy will be trying to avenge last season's 30-0 wallop at the young Raiders' hands. The undefeated North sophs were among the best in the school's history and many of their players are currently starting for the strong varsity team.

Quincy takes a 6-1-1 record into the game, losing only to strong Waltham and being tied in the final seconds by Newton North. The team has wins over Dedham, Weymouth South, Scituate, Randolph, Weymouth North and Brockton.

Sadowski's North team has a 4-2 record, losing close decisions to Waltham [16-12] and Newton North [13-12].

The team has wins over Brockton, Milton, Weymouth North and Weymouth South.

Quincy must go without one of its better backs, Jim Maze, who has played at both halfback and quarterback.

The Presidents include Quarterback John Houten, halfback Mark Mehls, defensive halfback Gerry Shea, halfbacks Tom Dedian, Rick Gilbody and Bud Gosselin, defensive halfbacks Art Davis and Don Heath, fullbacks Dave Eastwick and Lenny Picot, ends Jim Oriola, Bob Meegan and Tom Conine, tackles Greg Billings, Paul DeGrassie, Mike Duggan, Mark Assad and Jack Donovan, guards Lou Rizzo, Peter Cassidy, Ron Ricciarelli, Fred Vignali and Kevin Zambruno, centers Tom Bambrery and Kevin Boudreau and line backers Brian Jolley and Joe McGee.

Veteran assistant coach Jack Raymer is serving under his third coach, having previously worked with Dave Burke and Mark Conroy.

"Our team is a closely-knit group of boys with a good attitude toward the sport," Sadowski said. "During double sessions before school opened, a great deal of time was spent drilling in fundamentals as well as a thorough grounding in the philosophy and methods of Red Raider offense and defense."

The North offensive unit has Joe Dean and Steve Germain at end, Dave Cramond and Jim Butler at tackle, Ed Evansen and Russ Chisholm at guard, Greg Zoia at center, Kurt O'Sullivan quarterback, John Wilkinson and Brian Watts halfbacks and Colin McEachern fullback.

The defensive team has ends Mike Gallagher and Dave Donovan, tackles Jim Hanrahan and Vin Furlong, linebackers Kevin O'Connell, Kevin Greene and Brian Balzarini, and in the perimeter Bruce Wilson, Harry Donaghue, Tom Burke, Bob McCabe and Mike Pitts.

Filling in when needed are Mark Johnson, Phil DiCarlo and Fran McLaughlin. End Jimmy Carroll is lost to the team after an injury two weeks ago. Mike Anderson is the team manager.

Raiders Face Weymouth South Saturday

By TOM SULLIVAN

Although dreams of the second perfect season in history and the undisputed Suburban League championship went out the window last Saturday, the North Quincy football team is still in the thick of the running for a Division One Super Bowl Berth.

Dave Burke's Raiders, flat both on defense and offense, were shocked by Brockton, 21-15, before the season's largest crowd at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the first loss in eight games, but it was felt that, because of the big lead it had taken in Division One, they would still be in first place. If not, they seemed certain to be no worse than second.

North will now work hard to win its last two games and insure a Super Bowl berth on Dec. 6. The first obstacle is Weymouth South, a non-league opponent, which will host the Raiders Saturday at 1:30 in a game previously rained out.

Joe Kelly's Wildcats, hard-luck 7-6 losers to Quincy, have a 3-4-1 record but have been a strong defensive club in most games. They could give North all it can handle. Weymouth defeated Boston Latin, Boston Tech and Cambridge Latin, tied Hingham and lost to Quincy, Brookline, Newton North and Abp. Williams.

"We were just flat in every department," said a disappointed Burke. "But give Brockton plenty of credit, it played a fine game and that boy [Phil] Johnson is an excellent runner. We had some injuries to key personnel, but don't take any credit away from Brockton."

North had to play for the first time without Mike Holleran, its starting quarterback, whose flawless handoffs and fine passing had helped spark North to a 7-0-0 record before last week. He is expected back against Weymouth South. Junior Brian Donaghey, playing in his first varsity game since last Thanksgiving when he was inserted late in the game and threw a spectacular scoring bomb to Brian Doherty, did a good job but Holleran was sorely missed.

Doherty, still bothered by a hip pointer, played for the first Brockton drove 58 yards for its first touchdown early after North was stopped cold following the opening kickoff. Clicking off four first downs, the Boxers drew first blood when Johnson scored from the one and Mike Damiano kicked the point.

North tied it late in the half when it recovered a fumble on Brockton's 21 and with a half a minute left in the half Doherty skirted left end for 10 yards and a touchdown. Ed McElaney kicked the tying point, giving him 14 out of 15 this season.

On North's kickoff, Brockton tried a double reverse and Johnson apparently galloped 97 yards for a score but it was nullified when the officials ruled the ball was handed forward on the second exchange.

Brockton wasted no time in scoring again when it marched 63 yards after taking the second half kickoff. Damiano was three for three passing and a four-yarder to Danny Colombo made it 13-7 and again Damiano kicked the point. A 15-yard penalty for delay in reporting was costly to North as McElaney had to kick from back on his 25 and Brockton started with good field position.

Colombo returned a good McElaney punt from his 41 to North's 36 on the first play of the final period to set up the final Boxer score. Johnson scored from the one and Damiano kicked the point on his second try. He missed his first attempt but North was offside.

North received its other scoring chance when Brockton's punter, Paul Duford, for some unknown reason, chose to run instead of punting and it gave North the ball on Brockton's 40. The pass interference call brought the ball to the nine and Constantino scored from the three. North went for two and, on a fake kick, holder Jack Hatfield scored around right end.

North tried an on side kick but Brockton recovered and ran out the clock.

Penalties hurt North all day as it was hit numerous times for offside and illegal procedure.

Brockton rolled to 16 first downs to only six for North.

Presidents Host Newton North Friday

Quincy's football team takes a disappointing 3-5 record into Friday's 2 p.m. Suburban League game with Newton North at Veteran's Memorial Stadium, but it is coming off what Coach Hank Conroy calls the Presidents' "best two-way game of the year."

For the second week in a row Quincy's defense was brilliant but also for the second week in a row it suffered a one-point defeat, this time a 7-6 decision at Brookline.

"This was easily our best game both ways, despite the loss," Conroy said. "The Defense was again tremendous as Brookline, which has lost only to North Quincy, had only its one scoring chance. And the offense clicked well as we moved the ball better than at any time against a strong opponent."

Friday's game with Newton was previously rained out. Newton takes a 7-1 record into the game following an upset win over Waltham last week. Loser only to North Quincy, it also defeated Framingham North, Medford, Brockton, Weymouth North, Boston Latin, and Weymouth South.

"Mark Buchanan played a fine game at quarterback, especially in the last period," Conroy said. "He ran and passed well and John Riggs was tremendous at end, catching several passes, one of which set

"Paul Ramponi and Paul Vespaziani ran well and the offensive line did a good job."

Defensive coach John Skladany was delighted with the work of the defense for the second week in a row.

"The entire defense did well," he said. "These kids have great spirit. They help each other out both in games and at practice. It has been a solid team effort all season."

He lauded the performances of Bill Popsie, Frank McNeil, Mike Carloni, who Skladany calls "the leader on defense," Pat Gibbons, Frank Guest, Anthony DiRocco, Rich Hockings, Sal Coscia, who was moved up from the jayvees and has done a fine job; Larry Calley, Riggs and Paul Ferris.

Brookline drove 60 yards for its lone score late in the third period. Harold Ilustable scored on a 17-yard run after a 20-yard pass from Steve Ewanowski to Bob Mahon. Steve Greene kicked the winning point.

Quincy scored with about four minutes left in the game on a 10-yard run by Ramponi. Some fine passes from Buchanan to Riggs set up the touchdown. Quincy tried a pass for the winning points but it was no good.

The Presidents' hopes rose when they recovered an onside kick but were called for offside.

800 CETA Trained Workers Available For Jobs

Quincy's Office of Manpower Development has offered Quincy and South Shore area businesses the opportunity to employ some 800 skilled workers, all trained under the federally-sponsored Comprehensive Employment and Training Act [CETA].

Over 200 area businessmen and women attended an early-morning conference Tuesday held at the State Street South complex in North Quincy.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon told the group some 800 residents of Quincy and 10 other South Shore communities will need jobs between now and June 30 when CETA program funding expires.

According to Quincy's CETA Director Paul Ricca, participants in the program were expected to secure employment in the private sector after working for one year or less.

Emphasizing the preparedness of these employees, Hannon told the businessmen employment of these individuals would save them money. He said:

"As a former businessman, I know how difficult it is to find the right employees - the people who will give a full day's work for a full day's pay.

"All of you have spent hundreds and thousands of dollars searching for the right people. How much has it cost you to hire someone only to discover that they have made a wrong decision?

"Our CETA office in Quincy is prepared to help you choose employees with a good work record - people you can count on. In other words, I have invited you here to save you money."

The Quincy CETA office will provide referral service, screening and recruiting to interested businesses at no charge.

Officials also explained to businessmen the on-the-job training program under which the federal government pays 50 per cent of an employee's salary. To date, participating firms have received over $350,000 in reimbursements for training new employees.

All businessmen and women attending the conference received a business reply card on which to indicate their interest in the on-the-job training program and free employee referrals.

Education Week Open House At Broad Meadows

Broad Meadows Junior High School will hold an "open house" as part of American Education Week.

Parents are invited to visit the school from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Nov. 20 and 21.

Student guides will be available to take parents on tour of the building. Babysitting service will also be available at the school. Parents may also visit classes of the teaching teams. The school's administrators and counselors will also be on hand to meet with parents.

Houghs Neck Post Turkey-Rama Friday

Houghs Neck Legion Post will hold the first of two Turkey-Ramas Friday at 8 p.m. at the Post Home, 1116 Sea St.

Funds will go toward the annual Christmas Party for some 600 children of the Houghs Neck area. At the annual party, a toy and a box of candy are presented to each child, and there is a program of entertainment.

Health Department Offers Many Free Services

centers, and public and private schools, the department provides children with proper and essential immunizations.

Dr. Mahoney estimates 80 percent to 90 percent of Quincy children are fully immunized.

For adults an immunization service is also provided. PAP smears, chest X-rays, electrocardiograms, and other tests are also offered for adults at no charge. Along with regular daytime scheduling, the department offers two evening clinics each month for adults. A routine examination that normally would cost $50 to $60 is administered for free by the department.

"We do have areas we know are low income, and they are very heavy on appointments," said Dr. Mahoney. "But we do not restrict anyone from coming."

For many years, the Quincy Public Health Department provided free dental work only to children up to age six. But because of the "economics of the times," the program has been extended to include all school children to grade 12.

The two full-time and two part-time dentists "never run short of patients," said Dr. Mahoney. Currently the department has a long list of children scheduled for appointments. Scheduling is handled through Quincy schools, and each day the Dental Division takes children from a different school.

"When you have four or five kids in the family," said Mahoney, "and you get a heavy dental bill, it becomes a pretty expensive proposition." The department's free services eliminates this financial strain.

Since Dr. Mahoney has taken over the department, the sanitation and nursing programs have been bolstered, and adult evening clinics have been initiated.

"At the time I took [the position of director], I thought 'Quincy has been good to me,' and so I said I would take [the job] and try to do what I could with it, said Mahoney, whose term ends in January. "But my love is really private practice."

Al Martino To Star At Carlton House New Lounge Grand Opening

Singing star Al Martino will perform Tuesday, Nov. 25 at the Carlton House, North Quincy, helping to celebrate the grand opening of the motel's newly renovated and expanded lounge. Backed by a 15-piece orchestra, Martino will present two shows that evening, one at 9:30 p.m., the other at 12 midnight. Tickets for the performances can be purchased at the motel or Hub Ticket.

The year of 1975 finds Martino at the height of his career with his Capitol album, "To The Door of The Sun". Singing both in Italian and English, Martino proves once again that he brings that "something extra" to a song.

So great is his popularity in Europe that he was flown all the way to Germany just to sing one song, the rousing "Come Into My Life", at the German National Press Ball in Bonn, one of the most glittering events of the year in the German capital.

When not appearing in Las Vegas or supperclubs across the country, Martino enjoys the baronial splendor of his Beverly Hills home which he shares with his wife, Judi, and their two children, Debbie and Alison. His pride and joy is a magnificent studio he designed and constructed at the rear of the main building so that he can work at home without interruptions.

The studio includes a kitchen and bar, plus sleeping quarters, so that Martino can work around the clock when the spirits of creativity move him.

The success Martino enjoys today represents a long and difficult climb up the career ladder from his days in Philadelphia where he was born Alfred Cini. His first break into show business occurred when he won first prize on the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts Show, the platform that launched a number of today's stars.

Martino later recorded the song that won for him - "Here In My Heart" - and the young bricklayer's son watched in amazement as the record shot over the million mark in sales.

"It was too much too soon," he reflects today. "I simply wasn't prepared for the demands of instant success." For a time he simply stopped singing, making an unsuccessful attempt to enter the construction business in California.

AL MARTINO

Eventually, Martino returned to singing. He went to Europe and spent seven years singing in clubs throughout England, gaining the experience and maturity that were missing before.

When he returned to the U.S., he gambled $14,000 of his own money to record "The Exciting Voice of Al Martino". He took the album to Capitol Records, and they were so impressed that a deal was made immediately for its release on the Capitol label. This was followed by a series of singles including the smash hit, "I Love You Because," which finally brought stardom in his native land.

This initial success has been followed by many others, with "Spanish Eyes" being perhaps the most notable. His albums "Summer of '42" and "I Wish You Love, Al" also found highly receptive audiences.

The year of 1972 marked another milestone in Martino's career when he was selected to play the key role of Johnny Fontane in "The Godfather", one of the most successful films in Hollywood's history. Martino found working in motion pictures was frequently a study in frustration with the repeated delays and extended periods of idleness. While not ruling out film roles in the future, Martino is not getting carried away with himself as an actor as some singers have been prone to do.

Meanwhile, Martino continues to explore exciting new musical adventures as he travels throughout the world. He found himself recording the album "Country Style" in Nashville, the spiritual home of country and western music. "The sound, the feeling there, is very special," he explained.

Curtain Call Tryouts For 'Touches'

Auditions for Curtin Call Theatre's production of "Finishing Touches" will be held Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 24, 25, in the Theatre Club House, Puritan Bridge Club Building, Commercial St., Braintree.

MUSIC SALES UP

Musical instrument sales have climbed about 15 per cent over the past three years and the record-breaking volume should continue in 1976, according to the National Association of Band Instrument Manufacturers.

Hingham Civic Theatre To Present 'Girl Crazy'

Three Quincy residents will perform in the Hingham Civic Music Theatre's weekend production of George Gershwin's "Girl Crazy".

Ruth Ferrara, Paul Frazer and Tom Dowling will number among the cast presenting the famous musical Friday and Saturday at Hingham High School, 41 Pleasant St., Hingham.

Both performances will begin at 8 p.m.

Directed by Violet Villani, the musical includes such favorites as "Strike Up The Band", "Embraceable You", "I Got Rhythm", "I'm Bidin' My Time", and "But Not For Me".

David Brayton is music director and Caroline Mahar, choreographer.

Award Blockbuster

'Dr. Zhivago' On Ch. 4

With a cast international in scope and a theme universal in appeal, "Dr. Zhivago" will be shown on NBC [Channel 4] this week in two parts, Saturday and Monday evenings.

"Dr. Zhivago" is the story of a Russian man torn between two women, living in a country torn by war. Its evidence of its truly epic qualities, the David Lean film received six Academy Awards, including Best Screenplay, Best Movie Score and Best Costumes.

Boris Pasternak wrote "Dr. Zhivago" in 1957. He was one of the few surviving Russian poets, and "Dr. Zhivago" was the first original work he had published after a 25-year silence. When he broke that silence he was hailed as a literary genius in the West, and denounced as a traitor in his own country.

In 1958, Pasternak was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature, but with his award came the threats and humiliations that forced him to reject the prize.

Omar Sharif stars as Yuri Zhivago in the title role. Geraldine Chaplin, the daughter of Charlie Chaplin, made her cinematic debut as Tonya, the beautiful young wife of Zhivago. The award-winning Julie Christie plays the role of Lara, Zhivago's mistress. Rounding out the cast are Sir Ralph Richardson, Rita Tushingham, Sir Alec Guinness and Rod Steiger, who plays the corrupt lawyer, Komarovsky.

"Dr. Zhivago" has been a major motion picture event everywhere since its release in 1966. Movie-goers in more than forty countries have helped to make "Dr. Zhivago" one of the greatest international successes of the decade. NBC is now bringing this rich masterpiece into your living rooms for the enjoyment of everyone. Don't miss it.

CBS Planning Special On Edward R. Murrow

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN

WBZ-TV's TONY PEPPER was cited by the President during Ford's recent visit to Boston. Pepper is national chairman of "Flame of Hope" which was praised by Ford for its work with retarded adults ... CBS is planning a two hour special on the life of EDWARD R. MURROW ... PAUL SIMON has been scheduled for an NBC special next season. Simon has arranged for his December concerts in London and Amsterdam to be filmed for possible use in the broadcast, "Smilin' Simon & His Friends" ... LUCILLE BALL and JACKIE GLEASON will be teaming up for a special the first week of December ... BING CROSBY and FRED ASTAIRE will be seen in a Christmas show the same evening ... DR. On Dec. 1, "As The World Turns" will begin its new hour-long format. On the same day, ABC is planning a 90 minute showing of "The Edge of Night." In the same vein, NBC has dissolved plans to present a three hour version of "Days of Our Lives" ... CBS hopes to boost its afternoon ratings by scheduling "All In The Family" reruns each day at 3 p.m. ... BOB BARKER will be CBS's man for the seventh consecutive year when Pasadena's Tournament of Roses Parade is seen on New Year's Day ... Isn't it unusual that Channel 7, which once took pot shots at Channel 4's two-man news programs, claiming that "two heads are not necessarily better than one," now has two anchormen? ... JOAN FONTAINE has taped a special two hour episode of "Cannon" ... JOHNNY WEISSMULLER, appearing with five other Tarzans on "The Mike Douglas Show," maintains that he originated the "Tarzan yell." Supposedly a director heard him yodeling and immediately used the impromptu vocalizing in the film. Also appearing with Mike Douglas was JIM PIERCE, the oldest living Tarzan. His first feature length Tarzan film earned him a grand total of $75 per week. He later married the daughter of Tarzan creator, Edgar Rice Burroughs ... MARIO PUZO, who wrote "The Godfather," is currently preparing a screenplay based on the comic-book and television character, Superman ... Of all the made-for-TV films broadcast during the 1974-75 television season, "Sarah T. - Portrait of a Teen-Age Alcoholic," starring LINDA BLAIR, received the highest ratings ... NBC's EDWIN NEWMAN and ABC's HARRY REASONER were featured speakers at last week's convention of Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists ... Watch for "The Bible" on CBS next month. The three hour film will be broadcast on December 19.

Clay Hart Is On His Own

By RICK ROBERTS
Copley News Service

Q. What has happened to Clay Hart on "The Lawrence Welk Show?" He was not on it the last three weeks. — Mrs. E. R. N., Gloucester, N.J.

A. That's not all the time he has not been on the show. My informant on the Lawrence Welk production staff tells me singer-guitarist Clay Hart left the Welk organization last March to strike out on his own. Now he's working with his wife, Sally Flynn, another Welk alumna, doing a lot of road shows and appearances at county fairs.

Q. Please let me know where I can get a photograph of Steve Forrest, the "S.W.A.T." star. Also, who drives the S.W.A.T. truck on TV? — J. E. L., Hainesport, N.J.

A. Write for the photo at the address listed in answer to the previous question. The driver of the S.W.A.T. van is Ray Harris. He's a professional stunt man who does a lot of the tricky work on the show but is not one of the regular actors in the series.

Q. Can you please tell me where I can write to Elton John and if he answers any letters? — L. H., Jefferson City, Mo.

A. The first part is easy. Although Elton now records on his own label, Rocketman Records, you can reach him through MCA Records Inc., 100 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif. 91608. MCA handles Elton's recording releases. I can't tell you if the English rock star answers letters; I've never written to him.

'Why Me?' Breast Cancer Special Report On Ch. 2

"Why Me?" a candid, straightforward report on breast cancer, involving detection and treatment, will be broadcast on Channel 2 next Monday, Nov. 24, at 8 p.m.

Breast cancer occurs more often in women than any other form of cancer. It is the leading cause of death for women between the ages of 35 and 54. Eighty-five women die from breast cancer every day, and 50 per cent of all women with breast cancer will die within five years.

These are horrifying statistics, yet the chances of a woman being cured of breast cancer are very high if her cancer is caught early enough. Clearly, the best prevention is early detection.

Narrated and hosted by actress, Lee Grant, "Why Me?" will also intimately document the emotional and physical experiences of six women who have undergone mastectomies.

Following Channel 2's broadcast of "Why Me?" viewers will be invited to telephone their local chapter of the American Cancer Society and talk with volunteers and physicians. Information concerning self-examination clinics and rehabilitation programs in the Boston area will be made available.

City Council To Study New Municipal Dog Pound

The City Council voted Monday night to study the possibility of building a new dog pound for Quincy.

The current pound behind the police station is to be razed to provide more parking for the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

The Council showed utter lack of enthusiasm for a plan to house the city's strays in two trailers at the disposal area on Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets said West Quincy residents are concerned about security should the pound be moved to the dump.

"People go up there with rifles and shoot at our equipment now," he said. "It doesn't take much imagination to figure what they would shoot at if there were dogs there."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly called the present dog pound "inadequate," and proposed that the new pound be larger.

"If it is constructed properly," he said, "we could rent space to house dogs for people who want to leave their animals behind when the go on vacation.

The study proposal was passed on to the Mayor's office for concurrence.

Victory ... How Sweet It Is!

VICTORY KISS - Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia and wife, Louise, in victory kiss.

THE WINNER - Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia, daughter Robyn, 4, and wife, Louise, Quincy's new First Lady to be, wave happily to well wishers in City Council Chamber at end of all-day recount Saturday which made him the winner by 483 votes over incumbent Walter Hannon.

QUINCY'S NEW MAYOR Joseph LaRaia flashes victory smile and embraces his wife, Louise, near tears.

CONGRATULATIONS! - Eleanor Woodward, one of Joseph LaRaia's top campaign workers, reaches to congratulate him at end of recount. With LaRaia are his children, Robyn, 4, Lisa, 9, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Salvaggi. In background are LaRaia's cousin, Patrolman John Tocchio, campaign worker Timothy Cardwell, and LaRaia's uncle, Quinide Tocchio.

HURRAY! Jane Reikard, one of Joseph LaRaia's supporters, illustrates the elation in the LaRaia camp as recount figures show him to be the next Mayor of Quincy.

'A Christmas Wish' Theme

Over 55 Bands, Floats In Christmas Festival Parade Sunday

Over 55 festive floats and marching units will be featured in Sunday's annual Christmas Festival Parade with an estimated 200,000 spectators on hand.

Known as one of the biggest Christmas parades in the east, Quincy's parade will begin at 1 p.m. on Beale St., Wollaston, winding along Hancock St. to Quincy Sq. and ending at Franklin and School Sts.

Theme of this year's parade, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, is "A Christmas Wish."

The 14 floats carrying out this theme will compete for prize money and trophies.

A highlight of the parade will be an appearance of Cowboy Dick Clark, riding his palomino Cinarron, "Leapin' Lena," a favorite in past parades, will also be participating.

This year's parade will also feature the appearance of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and the Boston College Band.

A total of seven youth groups and seven adult groups will compete for the $1,000 grand prize awarded to the best overall youth or adult entry. The grand prize winner will also receive the Rev. Thomas Tiemey Trophy.

Awarded in both categories will be prizes of $500, $250 and $150 sponsored by local banks and the QCBPA. First place youth division winner will receive the Grand Marshall Trophy while the first place adult division winner will receive the Festival Committee Trophy.

Two commercial floats will vie for the QCBPA Trophy and all Quincy floats entered in the parade will compete for the Mayor's Trophy.

Nine specialty floats will round out the parade ranks and the parade's guest of honor - Santa Claus - will be waving to the crowd.

The QCBPA will sponsor the grand prize award and the first place adult float prize.

The South Shore National Bank will sponsor the best youth float prize with the Hancock Bank and Quincy Savings Bank teaming to sponsor both second place awards.

The Quincy Bank will sponsor both the third place float awards.

Float Chairman Richard Venna said judging of entries will be based on adherence to theme, originality, use of materials and color, overall appearance, movement and sound.

The commercial float category will be judged according to a bicentennial theme, said Venna.

Judges will be stationed in the First National parking lot in Wollaston prior to the parade and at the reviewing stand along the parade route.

George C. Fay is general chairman of the Festival Committee and Thomas Hanrahan is parade marshal and band co-ordinator.

William Morrill is serving as assistant parade marshal and assistant band co-ordinator.

Asks Investigation To 'Clear City'

Hannon Pledges LaRaia Support In Uniting City

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has pledged his support to Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia, in a step toward uniting a city bitterly torn by this year's mayoral election.

Hannon and LaRaia, who exchanged hot words during and after the Nov. 4 election, shook hands Saturday night as Hannon congratulated LaRaia and wished him "The best of luck," in a brief visit to the latter's home.

A marathon Saturday recount showed LaRaia to be the winner by 483 votes.

Meanwhile, Hannon has requested City Clerk John Gillis to launch an investigation of the Nov. 4 election to clear Quincy of any taint implied by the recount turnover.

Six 50-vote blocs credited to Hannon in the original count changed over to LaRaia in Saturday's recount.

LaRaia turned over a total of 617 to come out victorious in the mayoral recount. Though he had charged "irregularities" at the polls Nov. 4, the mayor-elect told The Quincy Sun he would not seek an investigation.

With chants of "We've broken the machine," jubilant LaRaia supporters left City Hall Saturday night after the all-day records recount, heading - in a horn-honking car caravan - towards Montello's for a victory celebration with their new mayor-elect.

While the original election tally showed Hannon nosing out LaRaia by a slim 134-vote margin, Saturday's recount totals showed LaRaia receiving a total of 17,231 votes versus 16,748 for Hannon, a difference of 483 votes.

Hannon said he called for the investigation to find out why six blocs of votes changed over in the recount - a recount he said was totally proper. He told The Quincy Sun:

"John Gillis says he has never seen a bloc of 50 turnover. Saturday he saw six blocs turn over...That casts a very bad light over the whole election process. Something has to be done about that, "I won't leave this office with any impression [Hannon trailed off, not completing his sentence]. "I have nothing to do with the election, with counting votes. There'll be no aspersions cast at me."

Hannon also said he plans to suggest the City Council purchase voting machines, saying a machine recount in another area community did not change the original vote count at all.

Urging Quincy citizens to rally in support of the city's mayor-elect, Hannon said this city election had created a rift within the city. He said:

"There is very deep division in this city because of the election. A lot of things were said in anger but we must unite and get behind the new mayor. The people should support him when he is doing things right and should criticize him, when criticism is called for, when they feel he is doing things wrong."

Although LaRaia has yet announced no changes to be made in his administration, the mayor-elect said he plans "to review the whole picture in front of us" within the next week to 10 days.

"The dust hasn't really settled yet after the turmoil of the last three weeks," LaRaia said.

Pledging to co-operate with LaRaia as much as possible with the transition to a new administration, Hannon said:

"The city has to go on. And it will go on. The transitional period will be as orderly as possible and I'll cooperate with Mr. LaRaia as much as I can."

The mood at City Hall Monday was one of disbelief, dejection, but quiet resignation. One staff employee in Hannon's office called Saturday's recount-turnover "a nightmare". Another repeated, "It's unbelievable."

And though the staff tried to mask their gloom with quips about "going on unemployment," and being labelled an "ex," and having to withdraw from the city employees bowling league, their stunned and serious faces belied their words. One said:

"It's really sad. The mayor honestly has the city's interests at heart."

Davis Picks Up 69 Votes,

Recount Continues

Harold Davis, petitioner in the on-going recount of the Nov. 4 councillor at-large race, says he plans to have that recount continued until votes are re-tallied in all six wards.

With votes in three of the city's six wards already counted, Davis has picked up 69 votes.

Election workers began the recount Sunday at 9 a.m., counting ballots in Wards 1, 6, then 4, where John J. Quinn - who defeated Davis in the at-large race by 408 votes - had finished the strongest.

City Clerk John Gillis said workers will pick up the recount Friday if Davis calls for completion of the count city-wide.

The at-large recount was scheduled to continue Monday night, following on the heels of the Ward 6 councillor recount planned to start at 6 p.m. Monday.

Walter J. Hickey, who lost a challenge to incumbent Dennis Harrington by 133 votes, filed for that recount.

Davis told The Quincy Sun he planned to request a recount of Ward 2 Monday night.

Admitting he is not overly optimistic about overturning the election, Davis did say there is "a reasonable chance" to change the outcome of the election.

"I need to pick up 339 votes," he said. "It will have to be a mathematical error for me to pick up that many. But it's a reasonable chance it's not an impossible dream."

The Recount Vote By Precincts

Saturday's recount showed Joseph LaRaia the winner of Quincy's mayoral contest by a margin of 483 votes. The new official total is 17,231 votes for LaRaia and 16,748 for incumbent Walter Hannon.

Following is the recount vote by precincts. The figure in brackets shows the gain or loss for each candidate compared with the original election figures.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

His hunting makes family unhappy

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Don't you think that a man deserves to have a hobby? My wife died four years ago and I am raising three children. We all get along great except when I go hunting. My entire family treats me like an ax murderer. Their point of view is a humanitarian one. They feel it is cruel to kill a deer that would otherwise live a wonderful free existence. The fact is that many would die of starvation if there were no hunters.

I need some sort of release.

Raising three children takes a lot out of me. What is wrong with my relaxing in this manner?

Killer

Dear Killer:

As long as you abide by the law, hunt with a free conscience, Tell your family you could be hunting deer instead of deer!

New England's Own Holiday

Thanksgiving is New England! There's no doubt about it, Thanksgiving is our very own holiday! The reminder of the Pilgrims' first celebration of harvest brings warm thoughts our way from Americans coast to coast. The traditions begun with that one meal are now shared by peoples not only in the United States, but all over the world as well. The preparation of special vegetable dishes to complement "Tom Turkey" is one of those traditions. We'd like to suggest a very special "Broccoli for Feast" casserole to make ahead and pop in the oven while you're putting on the finishing touches.

Broccoli For Feast

- 1 large head of fresh broccoli, or 2 boxes chopped frozen broccoli
- Cook until almost tender and drain

Sauce

- 1 cup Mayonnaise
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 2 beaten eggs
- 1 cup sharp cheese, grated
- 1 tablespoon minced onion

Salt & pepper to taste
Crushed Potato Chips

Mix sauce ingredients until well blended. Stir in broccoli and place in baking dish. Cover top with potato chip crumbs. Bake at 350 for 45 minutes. Note: be careful not to over salt -- remember the chips.

Serve hot and steaming from the oven. Even the vegetable-haters will try it, because it smells great and tastes even better!

Complete your table with a comote of mixed pickles served in your favorite pretty dish, and another traditional New England Thanksgiving dinner is served!

How Long To Cook The Turkey

If you -- like many of us -- haven't served turkey since the last holiday season, you may have to dig out the cookbook and brush up on techniques.

Home economists at United States Stamping Company, Moundsville, W. Va., have prepared a simple turkey roasting table, which holiday cooks may want to clip and save.

The table:

Turkey Weight	Cooking Time	Temp.
4-6 lbs	2-2½ hours	325
6-8 lbs	2½-3 hours	325
8-12 lbs	3-3½ hours	325
12-16 lbs	3½-4 hours	325
16-20 lbs	4-4½ hours	300
20-22 lbs	4½-5 hours	300

GLOWING GIFTS

Candle making is great holiday project

Are you wracking your brain trying to come up with that special finishing touch for your holiday decorating? Or maybe there's someone on your Christmas gift list who's impossible to buy for.

Why not let a Christmas candle be the answer. But this year, instead of going out and buying one, make your own.

It's a fun project for the whole family to take a hand in and the finished product is something which everyone will be proud to see displayed.

All it takes is a few paraffin blocks and a little imagination and you've created glamorous, professional-looking candles for home decorations or gifts.

Your local hobby shop should have everything you'll need including: paraffin wax blocks, molds, coloring and wicks.

You might even prefer to shun the commercial molds and fashion your own out of milk cartons, tin cans or anything else which you might come up with.

Remember that candle making is very free-form and practically any material can be used in some way from sand to give the exterior a rough finish to pieces of drift wood to use as unique holders to cotton string or an old shoelace to serve as a wick.

Coloring can even come from shaved crayons or food dyes.

As with most projects, there are a few simple steps which should always be followed:

- Always melt the wax in a double boiler.

- Allow the wax to cool until a fine film forms on the surface before you begin pouring.

- Prepare your wicks in advance by soaking the string or twine in a solution of salt, borax and water for about two hours. Mix two tablespoons of salt and four tablespoons of borax in two cups of water.

- To make candles harder, longer burning and more opaque, add one to three tablespoons of stearic acid or stearine per pound of melted wax. This is available at most drugstores.

- Trim the top of a milk carton which has been reinforced by wrapping masking or plastic tape around the outside. Coat the inside of the carton with cooking oil so the candle can slide out easily.

- Punch a small hole in the center of the carton bottom and slip in waxed wicking, tying a knot in the end. Draw the wick tight and tie it to a pencil which is placed across the open carton top. Be sure the wick is centered.

- Cover the knot hole in the carton bottom with tape to prevent leakage.

- Add your favorite coloring to about two and a half pounds of paraffin wax, then pour a half inch of wax into the carton and let cool and harden. Then slowly add the rest of the wax.

- Let the carton cool overnight. Cut the knot from the bottom of the wick and slide the candle out of the mold.

- If you dig special effects you might try placing a 10-inch candle in a carton, surrounding it with crushed ice cubes and quickly pouring melted wax over the cubes and candle. Cool for an hour and remove from the carton.

- Does a little glitter turn you on? Just brush hot wax on the candle's surface, then sprinkle with glitter, spangles or metallic dust.

- If you'd rather fill the room with your favorite scent of incense or perfume just add a little to the melted wax before pouring into molds.

For The Week Of Nov. 30-Dec. 6

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Evaluate carefully before you elect to indulge personal pleasure-seeking instead of staying with long-range opportunities available through relatives. Romantic indiscretion could have drastic repercussions.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Routine may seem boring and you could feel discontented. Stay on top of your job even though personal problems nag you. Keep your own counsel about your troubles at work. Talk to another who is involved with you personally.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — You may be making an important decision now which has long-term effects. Be calm and just, not emotional. Think twice before parting with money. Resist emotional appeals and be mature in evaluations.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — You can be short-tempered now, so watch yourself carefully. Curb arrogant attitudes at work. Be careful about changing romantic partners at this time. Resist tendency toward extravagant gift buying.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Your I-don't-care attitude could lead to trouble. Try to take a more realistic look at your position and don't tempt fate. Bridges you burn now may not be repairable. Guard your health carefully.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Write down your ideas and make plans for future action and projects. Your prospects may involve a partnership. Reevaluate your business position — get advice and make necessary changes.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Tie up the loose ends on unfinished business and prepare for a new cycle. Be selective in your choice of ideas to pursue, since so many avenues are open. Evaluate financial status and set up budgets.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — "Follow your dream" should be your byword this week! Discard outworn ideas, concepts and attitudes. Contact people in high places who can help you in your new projects and activities.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — You can recognize now how important communication is between those important in your life. Relationships improve and you can adjust to temporary inconvenience in your domestic life. Finances prosper.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Finish your Christmas shopping this week. Guard personal possessions and valuables against loss or theft. Be careful what you lean to another. Reconsider carefully before "gifting" other than the family.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Energy appears low now and it may be hard to motivate yourself. Check to be sure there is no physical reason for your lethargy. A new romance founded on deception could have a painful outcome.

BABES ON BIKES

Bicycle baby seats are dangerous. The ones on the back make the front of the bike shimmy, and the ones on the front make steering very sluggish. But in spite of the hazards, thousands of young parents are hitting the road on their two-wheelers and are determined to take their youngsters along.

The best way to prevent your baby from getting hurt on your bicycle is to leave him at home. But if you're not satisfied with that solution, here's some info to help make it safer.

If you've never used a bicycle baby carrier before, it's a good idea to make a dry run with a box of books or some other weight lashed into the baby seat. You may be surprised at how your balance is affected. Starting up is harder - be sure to begin in low gear. Fast braking will be a particular problem. Watch out for the pendulum effect. If you stop quickly, the weight of the child can throw the bike over.

Always ride on the right side of the road. An appalling number of parents ride against traffic. It's the most hazardous thing you can do. Never leave your baby on the bike alone. You can't trust the kickstand.

For Mayor-Elect LaRaia: Congratulations And A Challenge

We congratulate Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia and wish him well when he takes office in January.

The recount is over and shows that Mr. LaRaia actually defeated incumbent Walter Hannon by 483 votes. The original vote had Mr. Hannon winning by a 134-vote margin.

We hope the recount ends all the squabbling and that charges of irregularities are put aside and forgotten for the good of the city.

We still believe it was an honest election and no one attempted to "steal it" for either candidate.

But the 617-vote turnover which made Mr. LaRaia the winner and Mr. Hannon the loser by 483 votes would seem to indicate that the Quincy system of counting votes is outmoded and leaves too much chance for human errors.

Some six blocks of 50-votes originally were credited to Mr. Hannon when they should have gone to Mr. LaRaia. That's a pretty big boo-boo, to say the least. But errors like this can and do happen honestly with no intent to take votes away from one candidate to give them to another. And we believe that is what happened here, although, quite frankly, we would feel a little better if just one 50-vote block had shifted to Mayor Hannon.

But perhaps Mr. LaRaia had the right idea election night and City Clerk John Gillis some years ago: maybe Quincy should invest in voting machines.

They are costly, but could be purchased a ward or two at a time. It would eliminate or at least greatly reduce the human error factor. Machines don't tire after long hours at the polls.

In these troubled times, any one who becomes the chief executive of any city is going to have his share of problems: taxes, crime, cost of government, unemployment, pollution, to name a few.

Mr. LaRaia, however, is going to face an additional king-sized problem—and challenge. Emotions ran fever-pitch in this year's city election and there are still hard feelings—even among former friends. He must face the task of uniting the city, pulling it together again.

Personal feelings have got to be forgotten and wounds healed or Quincy is going to suffer the next two years. Quincy's direction these next two years will depend to a great extent on Mr. LaRaia. Whether Quincy moves forward—or backward—he will pretty much set the direction.

We recently noted if the recount upheld Mr. Hannon's election, it certainly would not be a mandate for him. Now, it is not a mandate for Mr. LaRaia.

We said that Mr. Hannon was almost No. 2 in the original election and would have to work harder. Now, Mr. LaRaia was almost No. 2 and he will have to work harder.

Sometimes being a close winner is tougher than being a close loser.

Taking on the duties and responsibilities of mayor is no easy job. A mayor is on the spot from the moment he takes his oath. The buck stops in his office. He is the one who often has to say "No" to favor seekers, and "Yes" to progress even if it may be unpopular.

They say that if a man were unanimously elected mayor, he would start to lose ground his first day in office. If he is a good mayor.

The recount is over but it is not the end of the story. It is just the beginning. The most important chapters will be written the next two years.

THUMBNAIL THOUGHTS

By K.A. Smith

We've heard of the pot calling the kettle black. But, really, a lecture from Nixon over-does it.

Fired sports coaches like fired politicians always seem to wind up with another good job.

The eight percent meals tax will improve romance as more couples discover the advantages of home cooking.

Honesty isn't always the best policy. Ask that White House spokesman who commented on New Hampshire ski conditions.

Even after the great errors of the past, Uncle Sam still thinks he wins foreign friends by giving them money.

SPEAKING OUT

Questions Shriver's QHS Appearance

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The use of our high school facilities in support of a political candidate is highly questionable.

These facilities were paid for by Quincy residents, both Democrats and Republicans. Yet, we find Democratic Presidential Candidate R. Sargent Shriver being given free use of "the hall" plus videotape rebroadcast. A debate is one thing, but a one-sided self-serving campaign through the cooperation of the high school is quite another.

Support Astronauts Bible Reading

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Once again, it has been brought to our attention, the fact that Madeline Murray O'Hair, succeeded in making it illegal to read the Bible in public schools. She has now obtained 27,000 signatures protesting the decision of the astronauts to read the Bible as a Christmas message to the world from their spacecraft while orbiting the moon in December, 1968.

It is her intent to have the astronauts censured for their act and a further demand to prohibit any further demonstration of religion by public leaders. If she is successful in this endeavor, it would stop the mention of God and prayer on TV.

It is now our intent and duty to right this wrong, one which will receive the highest priority from the Disabled American Veterans. This is where you, as God fearing citizens of our wonderful country, can help us to get this country back in the limelight before the whole world as a unified nation, under God, for all the world to see, for it is in "God We Trust"; our destiny lies in Him.

A letter, stating that you are in favor and wholeheartedly support the astronauts for their faith in God and that it is your firm belief that everyone has a human right to express his faith in God and the Bible publicly, without fear of censure, should be sent now to the following address:

SUNBEAMS

It's Job Hunting Time At City Hall

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Suddenly, it's job-hunting time around City Hall.

Saturday's recount not only turned the mayoral election around but will turn tide upside down for a number of city department heads and/or assistants, and other aides.

Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia told this writer in July that he had no "house cleaning" plans if elected. But he probably meant he wouldn't do it in one sweep.

"I plan an orderly transition", he said back then. "Naturally there will be some changes—there always are when a new mayor takes office."

But there is little doubt that a number of familiar faces in Walter Hannon's municipal family are now on borrowed time.

They'll be going—maybe not all at once—but they will vanish one, two, three, four, five, etc., from the City Hall scene.

LaRaia may make it an orderly transition. But some present Hannon department heads and aides know the handwriting is on the wall and the guillotine is about to fall. Some will leave on their own.

City Hall observers figure departees will include:

Public Works Commissioner James Ricciuti, Treasurer-Tax Collector Robert Foy, Solicitor Richard McCormick, Assistant Solicitor Robert Fleming, Purchasing Agent Richard Buckley, Development Coordinator John Cheney, Budget Director William Grindlay, Assessor John Comer, Assistant Hospital Director Richard Newcomb, [possibly Hospital Director Harlan Paine], Quincy Heritage Director John Graham, Executive Secretary Joseph Shea and Hannon's entire office staff.

Police Chief Francis Finn would be added to that list but he is protected by civil service.

LaRaia last July also noted that some of his key campaign people would not be appointed to top ranking jobs because they now have much higher paying jobs in private business.

But names being mentioned as LaRaia appointees: Atty. Thomas Williams, Norman Forde, Pasquale DiStefano, Timothy Cardwell, Robert McCarthy, Hugo Fabrizio.

LA RAlA, of course, will be Quincy's second mayor of Italian ancestry. The first, the late Amelio Della Chiesa, is the city's mayoralty longevity champ. He served 12 years as mayor—four Plan E, and eight Plan A. Della Chiesa was also one of Quincy's all-time popular chief executives.

VOTING MACHINES, it would seem, will be a reality soon in Quincy. The 617 vote turnover that went to LaRaia in the recount points to the need for machines here. City Clerk John Gillis has been after them for a number of years. He has asked for them in his budget only to have the money cut out.

Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke estimates the machines would cost more than $300,000. But in the long run, they would pay for themselves. And eliminate the human error factor and charges of irregularities.

THE ONE THING that bothers most people who are still convinced it was an honest election, is the fact that six 50-vote blocks shifted to LaRaia. And not one 50-vote block turned over to Hannon.

As one Hannon department head observed: "I had hoped that at least one block would shift to Walter even if he didn't win."

It would have taken a lot of the sting out of the irregularity charges. But there will be many in Quincy forever convinced that there was some hanky-panky in the election.

THE RECOUNT REMINDS William O'Connell, former executive vice-president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, of an election held 35 or 40 years ago.

Back then, the late William [Scotty] Edmonston, head of the Quincy Taxpayers Association thought that many of the poll workers were not experienced enough in tabulating figures.

As a result, O'Connell who was then a bank teller and tellers from other banks were placed at the polls to assist in the tabulations.

THE RECOUNT ALSO shows that some voters can't get too serious over a mayoralty election. In addition to 389 blanks [up one], there were write-ins for Mickey Mouse [1], Snoopy [1].

There were also five write-ins for Grace Saphir, one for Arthur Tobin and one for John Sullivan, and one for "E. R. Mason".

CONGRESSMAN Morris Udall of Arizona, Democratic candidate for President, is scheduled to campaign in Quincy Saturday. He will attend a coffee hour at 12:30 p.m. at the Adams Shore home of Councilor-elect Paul Harold where he will address members of CPPAX [Citizens for Participation in Political Action]. Udall hopes to win the group's endorsement at its statewide convention in Worcester, Dec. 7.

Udall visited Quincy in June and attended Harold's campaign kick-off at the North Quincy K. of C.

Cornerstone Placed At New First Presbyterian Church

By PAUL HAROLD

The cornerstone was laid for the new $400,000 First Presbyterian Church on Penn's Hill.

Ground was broken for the new church in July 1959 after the conclusion of the church's bond drive which raised $120,000. At the cornerstone laying ceremonies, addresses were given by Rev. Dr. Reed, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and Rev. Roy Shoaf, pastor.

The 75-year old Presbyterian congregation expanded twice since its founding in 1884. The original congregation met in Faxon Hall on Revere Rd. (since torn down).

LEAGUE TOURS PARKS

J. Ernest Collins, chairman of the City Park Board accompanied members of the League of Women Voters in their fifth in a series of tours of city parks and beauty spots. The group visited parks in Ward 6 and Merrymount and Faxon Parks.

The tours, sponsored by the league, were an attempt to survey existing park facilities to find out what, if anything, was needed to be done to preserve and improve them. On the final tour, the group would visit parks in Ward Three, accompanied by Commissioner of Recreation William Ryan and City Councillor George Burke.

STEEL FRAME BLOWN DOWN

High winds blew over and bent the girders erected at the site of the Dolphin Motel at the Neponset Bridge and caused an estimated $45,000 damage. The steel was being supported by guy wires which snapped in the wind. The damage was expected to delay the opening of the motel, scheduled for April 1.

WOLLASTON ACTRESS CELEBRATES 99th BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Mary Watts, former Wollaston resident, celebrated her 99th birthday this week. Married to producer Richard Watts, she had an active career as a variety actress. Besides her acting career, she was a worker for the Republican Club and the Wollaston Congregational Church.

BURKE URGES BIPARTISANSHIP

Congressman James Burke addressed the "Kennedy For President" youth group's statewide conclave at the Quincy Armory and pledged his support to all newly-elected city and state officials, regardless of party affiliation.

The conclave was welcomed by Mayor Della Chiesa who commended the non-partisan youth group on its participation in civic and political affairs.

A dinner was given following the meeting with a victory dance celebrating the election of Senator John F. Kennedy as President. Among those attending from Quincy were Ann Rosenthal of Q.H.S. and Alberta Belt of Woodward School.

CITY EMPLOYEES PROPOSE SALARY REVISIONS

The Quincy City Employees Association presented its proposal before the city council for revision of salaries in lower brackets. Representing the group was Atty. Paul Hunt. Well Baby Clinic Serves Over 3,000 Youngsters A Year

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

[Second in a series of articles]

The first-floor clinic and waiting room at the John F. Kennedy Health Center fills slowly.

A young mother, cradling a tiny newborn, walks into the room accompanied by her beaming husband. It's obviously the couple's first child.

A few minutes later a two-year-old with a mass of curly hair appears at the door, holding the hand of her mother.

Then another mother, greeted by the attending nurse, breezes into the office, a seven-month old daughter in one arm and a five year old son by her side.

These two infants, the toddler and the youngster have at least one thing in common: they are all well children and have all come to a Quincy clinic named precisely for them - The Well Baby Clinic.

Conducted under the nursing division of the city's health department, the Well Baby Clinics in Quincy served last year a total of 3,039 children ranging in age from two weeks to five years.

Though instituted in the city over a dozen years ago, the program blossomed and expanded five years ago and now offers regular clinics at six different locations throughout the city.

A pediatrician and four registered nurses staff the program which provides free services to children of Quincy residents, regardless of income.

Quincy Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney says the clinics emphasize immunization and he proudly relates nearly 90 per cent of the city's children are fully protected against diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis [whooping cough], polio, measles, mumps and rubella [German measles].

A child attending a well baby clinic for the first time will receive a thorough examination, the doctor checking feet for any bone defects, hips for any congenital deformities, eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs. The doctor also notes motor integrity and a child's progress through stages of development.

But Dr. Lillian McMakin, pediatrician at all the Well Baby Clinics, stresses treatment is not provided at the clinics. If she should spot an ailment needing treatment, Dr. McMakin will refer the mother and patient to a private physician. Dr. McMakin said:

"We emphasize we do not take the place of a private physician."

While Dr. McMakin examines one young patient, the assisting nurse weighs and measures others waiting in the clinic.

Mrs. Jeanne Rowell, R.N., said nurses gather a history of each patient and talk with mothers, often allaying unfounded fears and offering helpful advice to contend with a child's problem - be it teething, insomnia or irritability. Mrs. Rowell said: "There are no hard and fast rules with any child. I often say to a mother, 'This worked for me, if you'd like to try it.' and it's reassuring to tell a mother her baby is growing, that he's healthy and he's thriving. It's encouraging."

The experiential advice of a veteran mother of four or the wisdom of a proud grandmother accompanying her grandsons and daughter to a clinic can also bolster the confidence of new and nervous parents. Mrs. Mary Connolly, R.N., a well baby clinic staff member, nods at a young couple cooing at their newborn:

"It's their first child and they're scared to death. They'll be able to ask the doctors all their questions. It's a good outlet for them. And a young mother may come here and meet a mother of six."

Though most children coming to the clinics check out as healthy and thriving, Dr. McMakin had diagnosed congenital heart disorders, cerebral palsy, bronchitis, pneumonia, ear and skin infections, feet disorders and one cleft palate.

Dr. McMakin says she also discusses mother-child and family relationships, behavioral problems as well as growth and development with mothers.

Although the services offered at well baby clinics by no means replace the need to visit a private pediatrician, the clinics can save families a substantial amount of money. Dr. Mahoney said:

"Many people come to the clinics just for the immunizations. It saves them money. And with today's economy, it's worthwhile to save $10-15."

"We don't ask if a person can afford a doctor," he continued. "The city is paying the bill and the people are paying the taxes."

Mrs. Connolly explains another way the clinics can help save on doctor bills:

"A mother may come in with a child who has been treated, say, for an ear infection by a private physician. The mother wants to know if the infection has cleared. If the doctor says, 'No, the ear is still red,' the mother won't mind spending another $20 to go back to her private physician. But if the doctor says, 'Yes, the infection is all cleared up,' it gives the mother peace of mind and saves her a doctor's visit."

A visit to any of the clinics does not require an appointment. Yet after the initial check-up, children receive appointment slips since the immunization program requires five to eight properly spaced return visits to complete the series.

Following is the clinic schedule:

First Monday of each month: Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Second and fourth Tuesdays: Atherton Hough School, 1084 Sea St., Houghs Neck, 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Janet Petkun Wins $25 Savings Bond In Howdy Doodle Contest

Janet Petkun's Howdy Doodle "a-ridin on a mustard pack" won the Howdy Doodle drawing and jingle contest sponsored by Howdy Beef 'n Burger in the Quincy Sun's "Young Ideas" issue of Nov. 6.

Janet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Petkun of 23 Haviland St. and a sixth grader at Beechwood Knoll School, Wollaston, was presented with a $25 Savings Bond by Melvin Werman, owner of Howdy. The entries were so clever that Mr. Werman decided to select a second prize winner, five runners up, and 42 children for Honorable Mention.

Janet's winning jingle went like this:

*Howdy Doodle went to town
A-riding on a mustard pack.
Stuck a potatoe in his hat
And called it french fries.
Howdy Doodle, eat'm up
Drink cola and a shake,
Ride on down to Howdy's

Second prize winner is Andrea Gelsomini, a fifth grader at Quincy Elementary School. Andrea's prize is a full course clam dinner at Howdy's. Andrea — as well as all other winners mentioned — may pick up her certificate anytime at The Quincy Sun, Quincy Sq.

Rich Little Getting Own Show On NBC

NBC has announced its second-season schedule, and with it came the appearance of five new shows.

"Chico and the Man" will be moved out of the family hour on Friday to a new time slot, 9 p.m., on Wednesdays. NBC's Monday Night at the Movies will also be moved to Thursday.

Additional changes will find "Joe Forrester" on Mondays from 9-10 p.m., and "Ellery Queen" on Sundays at 8 p.m. following "The Wonderful World of Disney."

New shows will include: "The Rich Little Show," a comedy variety hour to be seen on Mondays at 8 p.m., "Jigsaw John," another police show, this time starring Jack Warden as a Los Angeles detective, to be seen Mondays at 10 p.m., "The Dumplings," a Norman Lear comedy starring James Coco as a luncheonette owner, Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m., and "The Practice," a situation comedy starring Danny Thomas as a New York general practitioner, Fridays at 8:30 p.m. The fifth show, an action series to be seen at 10 p.m. on Tuesdays, has yet to be announced.

NBC is dropping "Doctors' Hospital" and "Medical Story."

Nancy Walker May Leave Rhoda

Nancy Walker, who now plays Ida Morgenstern on the CBS series, "Rhoda," may soon be leaving the confines of Valerie Harper's successful show.

Miss Walker has a new long-term contract with ABC-TV, but the contract is apparently not an exclusive one. While the actress is currently working on a Norman Lear pilot film for a 1976 series, she is also continuing her acting chores on CBS's "Rhoda" and NBC's "McMillan and Wife," in which she plays Rock Hudson's housekeeper, Mildred.

Grant Tinker, president of MTM Productions, which produced "Rhoda," told Broadcasting Magazine, "We'll get her back for next season if the pilot she's working on for ABC doesn't make their schedule."

Miss Walker has appeared in six episodes of "Rhoda" so far this season. Tinker added, "In the limited use we've made of her she's definitely made an impact. If we lose her, then the character of Ida Morgenstern will be retired - I couldn't imagine casting another actress in the part."

Nancy Walker was nominated as Best Supporting Actress during the Emmy competitions of 1973, 1974 and 1975 for her performances on "McMillan and Wife."

Killion American Party

James A. Sheets, who won both the Democratic and Republican nominations in the Nov. 18 state representative primary, will seek the office of state representative as a Democrat only.

But Atty. Joseph Killion, nosed out of the Democratic nomination by 124 votes, has decided to accept the American Party nomination he captured in the primary by polling 15 write-in votes on that party's blank ballot.

Running as a Democrat, Sheets won the Democratic nomination with 1,191 votes versus Killions' 1,067. Sheets landed the Republican nomination, too, by receiving 151 write-in votes on the blank Republican ballot.

Though calling himself "appreciative and proud" of the Republican nomination, Sheets told The Quincy Sun:

"I entered the primary as a Democrat and it would be unfair to the people of both the Democratic and Republican parties to enter the December special election as anything other than a Democrat."

"Although I have received numerous phone calls from leading Republicans supporting my candidacy, I feel there is enough confusion surrounding this special election without adding to the problem. I do not believe it is right to masquerade with other party labels simply to achieve a personal, political objective or to avoid the inconvenience or jeopardy of a party primary. This kind of ballot confusion and congestion only tends to discourage the voters and I will not be a part of it."

Killion said he made his decision to accept the American Party nomination after consulting with friends and supporters involved in his campaign.

Insisting he will continue to uphold "the principles of the Democratic way of life," Killion told The Sun he is taking advantage of what he called "a fluke". He said:

"My party affiliation has always been Democrat and I don't intend to change it. I am taking advantage of a very unique situation - of a fluke - which enables me to present my candidacy to the people again."

"My acceptance of the American party nomination should in no way construe that I adhere to or ally with the American Party platform...I am still Joe Killion. I've been a life-long Democrat and still adhere to the principles of the Democratic way of life. I feel the voters will understand and will vote for the individual."

Both Sheets and Killion will face off against Independent candidates Santa Ferari, Marilyn Hanabury and John Lydon in the Dec. 16 final election.

MONEY TALKS

The Smartest People Were In The S & L's

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings And Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham

8 - 6 Weekdays 8 - 7:30 Thursdays

In a column earlier this year we reviewed the ups and downs of the stock market which, chartwise, look like a silhouette of the Alps. Assuming that an investor purchased a group of blue-chip Dow-Jones stocks at $32 in July 1965, we pointed out that his investment hit the $32 level at least 20 times in the ten years thereafter as it scooted up and down the peaks and valleys of a colossal coaster ride.

A few months ago, we suggested, the weary and worn stock-traveler was waiting for the market to get back up to $32 so he could get off.

An investment publication adds another insult to this "not-for-profit" venture by pointing out that an adjustment of the ten-year Dow-Jones for inflation would mean that the then price of $32 would now have a purchasing power of only $366—a decline of 56 per cent.

Even if the investor astutely sold out when his D-J stocks reached their peak of 1067 in January 1973, their value in 1964 dollars was then only $772—a decline of 13 per cent.

"No way you slice it," the magazine concludes, "has the stock market been a hedge against inflation."

Another money magazine reports that over the past ten years many professional investors haven't done even half as well as people who put all their money into savings accounts.

One study showed that people who kept their funds in savings accounts throughout the decade received an average return of five per cent. Those whose funds were held by bank trust departments received a top annual average of 2.1 per cent per year. Mutual funds were not much better: Capital-gains funds averaged 1.7 per cent over the decade, and long-term growth funds 2.7 per cent.

Aside from the wear-and-tear of the roller coaster ride, which many people can't abide, there is the comfort that nothing can touch the principal and accrued earnings of savings accounts. Such earnings are even more impressive than the yields that savings institutions are allowed to advertise. A 7-1/2 per cent certificate, for example, has an annual compounded yield of 8.17 per cent. But the average annual yield produced by six years of compound interest [the shortest term available at this rate of return] grows to about 10 per cent. And in ten years it reaches an average annual yield of 12 per cent—all this with insured safety.

27 Beechwood Knoll Fifth Graders

Prepare Thanksgiving Dinner

Twenty-seven fifth grade students of the Beechwood Knoll School, Wollaston, prepared an authentic Thanksgiving dinner, Friday, Nov. 21, in their classroom.

Under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Christine LaCoste, the students, dressed in colonial costumes, prepared the following menu: bread and butter pickles, baked bread, home-made butter, popcorn, carrots, cranberry sauce, applesauce, baked beans, squash and baked potatoes. Miss LaCoste prepared the turkey at home, due to lack of time and space at the school.

The students prepared the dinner as part of a social studies unit about the pilgrims. The unit also involved research about every item on the dinner menu, compiling a booklet on their research, and the drawing of a mural of a colonial village.

Wollaston Second, Third Graders Recreate First Thanksgiving

Twenty-six Wollaston School second and third graders recreated the first Thanksgiving last Friday, preparing a full-course turkey dinner at the school.

Under the direction of student teacher Martin Touhey—who served as turkey chef - 18 second graders and eight third graders became young pilgrims for the day, the girls donning hand-made pilgrim bonnets and collars, the boys fashioning tall black pilgrim hats and broad white collars.

Two days before the feast, the youngsters spent a morning shopping at Wollaston's First National Store. There they bought a 12-pound turkey and all the "fixin's" for Friday's feast.

The Thanksgiving menu included relish, cranberry sauce and popcorn, both made in school, the turkey with stuffing, kernel corn, mashed potatoes and cider.

Desserts, all home-made by students' mothers, included mince and apple pie cake, custard, cranberry bread and made-from-scratch white bread.

Over a dozen mothers assisted in serving the dinner and one father carved the big bird for the little pilgrims.

Second graders preparing the feast were Andrew Ayer, Michael Barron, Denise Bartkus, Patricia Biagini, Debra Burke, Timothy Dargon, Douglas DePaolo, Michael Flaherty, Kenneth Fraser, Michael Jordan, Deborah Kerr, Paul Lester, Dorothy Loisel, Maurice McCarthy, Tracy Nason, Lisa Nurmenniemi, David Tapper and Michael Verico.

Third grade students were Mark Dougan, William Jolly, Mark MacDonald, Patricia Markkaskas, Eileen Monahan, Michele Proude, Mary Saluti and Richard Wallace.

Thanksgiving Day Arrival Delayed

Bethany Church Seeks Home For 'Adopted' Vietnamese Family

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The Vo family, refugees from Saigon, had hoped to spend their first American Thanksgiving in Quincy this week.

Sponsored by Bethany Congregational Church and the American Fund For Czechoslovakian Relief, a federally-authorized resettlement agency, the Vo family will eventually launch a new life in Quincy - or very close by.

But the seven members in the Vo family are still waiting in the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation in Pennsylvania because Bethany's "Nucleus Committee" - preparing for the arrival of the family - cannot find an apartment or house which the VOs can call their home.

Although the Committee has contacted a total of 60 real estate agencies in the Quincy-South Shore area, only one has even responded to the inquiry.

That agency had found a house for the Vo family to rent in Hull, but committee members wanted to search for a place closer to Quincy and to the Bethany Congregation, making it easier to assist the new family in their new surroundings.

The committee - co-chaired by Mrs. Helen Lipp and Mrs. Judith Curtis - are now seeking the co-operation of the entire Quincy community in finding a four-bedroom apartment or house to rent for the VOs.

Other committee members are Mrs. Gilbert Crofts, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Evers, Rev. Arthur Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Penniman, Miss Muriel Goudey and Robert Ross.

Members are issuing a plea to Quincy Sun readers, to check their own neighborhood for rental signs or even "For Sale" signs. Real estate agents or individuals selling a home will often consider renting it instead.

Members also ask "Keep your ears open". Friends, relatives or neighbors may be moving out of a rented house or apartment just right for the Vo family.

Although the committee would ideally like to find a home in Quincy for the Vo family, members have broadened their home search-out vicinity to include Braintree and Weymouth.

Although information on the Vo family is sketchy, committee members have been able to compile this profile of the family:

Vo Viet Dung, 44, is the father of the family. He is a graduate of the University of Saigon with a bachelor of law degree. He speaks fluent French and good English. A former chief of customer service for an electronics firm, he has owned his own business for the past five years and has worked in an air-conditioning repair and electrical repair shop. He is also skilled in photo development.

His wife, Dieu Thi Lanh, 30, is a beautician, manicurist and cosmetologist who has owned a beauty salon.

The couple have five children: a 16-year-old daughter Thi Kim Dung; a 12-year-old son Viet Hung; a five-year-old son Tan That; a four-year-old daughter Thi Tuyet Trang; and a three-year old daughter Thi Diem Trang.

Already, the Bethany Congregation and friends from outside the parish have rallied together, gathering furniture, clothing, household items, appliances, dinnerware and other essentials for the family.

Items already donated include beds, blankets, sheets, linen, towels, a kitchen table, some chairs, a lamp, pots, pans, dishes and silverware.

One woman offered a sewing machine and another donated a washing machine and a sofa.

But more beds are still needed, according to the committee, and clothes are always welcome. A listing of correct clothing sizes of the entire family is on its way from Pennsylvania. A perusal of attic and basement could turn up needed and usable articles for the Vo family.

When an apartment or house is found for the Vo family, committee members plan to organize a mini-work force to ready the Vo's home for their arrival.

Furniture will be arranged in the apartment, any touch-up painting will be performed, curtains will be made and hung.

But the task of finding that home for the Vo family is now looming as a large obstacle for the Bethany committee.

Can you help?

Call the Bethany Church office at 479-7300 if you can. Any arrangements for home pick-up of donated articles can also be made through the church office.

With the entire Quincy community united in search of a home for the Vo family, the young family will spend their first American Christmas in Quincy this year.

THE POWER OF GRATITUDE

There's always a lot to be thankful for. And as you accept the good that comes to you each day from God, you become ready to receive more of His goodness.

Being grateful is so important, it's part of our church activity. People share their gratitude in testimonies of healing, and tell what they're learning about God's care for them.

We'd love to have you join us this week.

Broad Meadows Wins 8th Grade Crown

The Broad Meadows Junior High eighth grade football team, coached by Rick Hutchins, won the city championship this fall with a 7-0-1 record.

The only blemish on an otherwise perfect record was a 6-6 tie with Atlantic-North.

"We had a well-balanced offense and a very tough defense," Hutchins said. "We outscored the opposition, 141-14 and posted six shutouts."

"The offense was sparked by quarterback Dave Austin, who passed well and called the plays excellently. The running was shared by Fran Donovan, Dan Goldrick, Tom Brennan and Jeff Taylor.

"The defense was exceptional and many times a fumble recovery or pass interception set up a score. Although we had a strong starting lineup, the reason for our success was the balance throughout the squad. It was a team effort and everyone made his contribution at some time during the season. Also, due to our early scoring, each member of the team had a lot of playing time."

Among the season's highlights were a comeback 6-6 tie with A-N, set up by a 60-yard pass play from Austin to Bill Flynn; a 14-6 win over strong Sterling on a 75-yard pass play from Austin to Donovan with three seconds left; the defensive work of Gordy Spencer, Lou Matthews, Dave Burke, Mike Petrillo and Fred Palmer, and outstanding catches by Donovan, Tom Joe Connolly and Flynn.

The scores: BM 30, Central 0; BM 16, Point 0; BM 8, Atlantic-North 0; BM 22, Sterling 0; BM 6, A-N 6; BM 22, Central 0; BM 14, Sterling 8; BM 25, Point 0.

High scorer was Donovan with 50 points. Goldrick scored 45, Flynn 14, Austin 10, Brennan eight; Taylor six, Connolly six and Bill Murray two.

The roster included Austin, Brennan, Donovan, Goldrick, Matthews, Howie Chadbourn, Spencer, Connolly, Burke, Petrillo, Flynn, Palmer, Taylor, Bob Currier, Murray, Bob Craig, Mark Flibotte, Dave Manson, Dave Anderson, Jim Megnia, Jim Graham, Bob McKenzie, Rick Cosgrove, Frank Zamperini, Bob Bloomer and Mike McMahon.

Each member of the team will receive a trophy in recognition of a fine season and the team will receive a trophy to be on display at the school.

Presidents Stand In Way Of Raiders

North

By TOM SULLIVAN

A share of the Suburban League championship and a possible Division One Super Bowl berth are at stake for the North Quincy football team in Thursday's 43rd meeting with Quincy.

North, upset by Brockton two weeks ago for its only loss in eight games, kept its hold on first place in Division One but undefeated Woburn moved up and, even if the Raiders finish up with a win over Quincy for a 9-1 record, they will have to keep their fingers crossed until the final standings are decided Thanksgiving Night.

Because Weymouth and Quincy have sub .500 records, North's wins could give it fewer points than wins by Woburn and several other contenders for the crown. The top two teams will meet Dec. 6 at Boston College in the Super Bowl.

"We won't be looking ahead to the Super Bowl, that's for sure," said North's first year coach, Dave Burke. "Most of our players were in the game last year when Quincy upset them and they want to get even for that game."

Burke had been a Quincy assistant for the past 11 years before succeeding Ralph Frazier as the North head man this fall. Dave sparked North to wins over Quincy in 1944 and 1945.

"We don't plan to change our game style for Quincy, although we will throw a few new plays in," Burke said. "Tom Fitzgerald, our offensive backfield coach, usually puts a few new plays in each week and they have worked. The field is always our main concern."

"If the weather stays as it has for the rest of the month, it will be ideal. We are hoping for a fast, dry field."

A key man for the Raiders could be Ed McLaney, its super kicker, who has three field goals this year, two of them coming on successive weeks to give North overtime wins over Brookline and Waltham. He is also a superb punter and an excellent defensive player.

Burke expects to be nearly at full strength with the only question mark George Wallace, number two halfback.

Quarterback Mike Holleran, after missing the Brockton game, returned last week against Weymouth South and played about a half. Junior Brian Donaghey will alternate with Holleran in the holiday game. End Mike Kelley, who missed the Weymouth game, will be back for Quincy.

Brian Doherty, who missed the Waltham game and carried only five times against Brockton, should be at nearly top speed for Quincy.

The most disappointed player is Dan Noonan, who underwent knee surgery and will miss his schoolboy finale.

Burke expects to start an offensive team of Cooper Jordan and Mike Kelley, ends; Paul Santoro and Harry Knudsen, tackles; Rich Marre and Mike Ne, guards; Brian Hall or Marty Mulvey, center; Holleran, quarterback; Doherty and Mike Adams, halfbacks, and Matty Constantino, fullback.

Among others who will play on offense are Jerry MacKenzie, Jim Frye, Keith Lindberg, Dan Butts, Steve Bell, Wallace, Bill McIntyre and Jack Hatfield.

On defense the Raiders will start with Pete Hemphill and Jim Cooney, ends; Alf McHugh and John Ryan, tackles; Rich Kennedy and John Collins, corners; Frank Strazzulla and John McKenna or John Desmond, linebackers; McLaney and Paul McGuigan, halfbacks and Hatfield, safety.

Also expected to see action on defense will be Mark Wentzell, Ed Hanrahan, Mark Nagle, Frank McGuinness, Joe McGurl, Paul Petrillo, Billy White, Steve Moran, Steve Bonoli, Dave Lorman and Brian McMahon, among others.

Any Gate For Reserved Tickets

There will be no special gate this year for reserved seat ticket holders for the Thanksgiving Day game.

According to Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone, reserved ticket holders can enter at any gate. In the past they were requested to enter by the Southern Artery gate.

Burke Hero In North '44, '45 Victories

When Dave Burke succeeded Ralph Frazier this fall as North Quincy's head coach, it still left Ted Sadowski as the only Raider coach not a former North player.

Frazier was a standout Raider lineman in 1954, '55 and '56, and Burke, assistant at Quincy the last 11 years, was a stellar back for North in 1943, '44 and '45. In the 1945 game he gave the Raiders a 7-0 win when he fell on the opening kickoff in the end zone as Quincy players let the ball lie there. In 1944 his long pass to Paul Clem set up the only touchdown in North's 6-0 win.

Tom Fitzgerald was an all-scholastic center for North in 1941 and 1942, captaining the squad in his last year.

Dick Meyer was a standout North lineman in 1956, '57 and '58.

Ken McPhee, who joined the Raider staff two years ago, played at North in 1965 and '66 as a guard.

Sadowski, the only non-alumnus, graduated from Boston English High and has been jayvee and sophomore coach for most of his 18 years at North. He also does the scouting.

Combined Bands

The outstanding bands of both schools will again combine for the National Anthem at Thursday's Quincy-North game.

The Quincy band will march into the stadium from one end and the North band from the other. Each, facing its home stands, will play its school song, then mass at the center of the field for the playing of the National Anthem.

Friendly Rivalry

Among Assistant Coaches

When Quincy and North Quincy meet on the holiday, there will be a lot of friendly rivalry between assistant coaches.

Ken McPhee, one of North's defensive coaches, and John Skladany, Quincy's first year defensive coach, were teammates at Central Connecticut College and later with the New England Colonials.

The holiday rivals are close friends.

Title, Super Bowl (And Revenge) Hopes

Quincy

Last year Quincy's football team upset North Quincy, ending the Raiders' three-game series win streak.

This year the Presidents, having only a 3-6 record despite some outstanding defensive efforts, can knock North out of a share of the Suburban League championship and also knock it out of a Division Super Bowl berth when the rivals clash in their 43rd meeting at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Kickoff time, as usual, is 10 o'clock.

Coach Hank Conroy feels the Presidents' defensive unit can give the Raiders all they can handle. His big hope is that his team can finally click on offense. This has been Quincy's big problem throughout the season.

"I will match our defense with any around," Conroy said. "Because we have been unable to get rolling on offense, the defense has been on the field much more than it should. Most of the scoring against us has been due to the offense's mistakes."

Quincy was especially outstanding on defense in the last four games.

After blanking Weymouth North, 28-0, Quincy lost to Brockton, 14-13; Brookline, 7-6, and Newton North, 12-6, all the opponents' touchdowns being the result of errors by the Quincy offense. Both Brookline and Newton are among the top contenders for the Super Bowl, taking identical 8-1 records into their holiday game.

"I don't plan any changes against North Quincy," Conroy said. "You can't start putting in new plays just for the last game. We'll play our regular game and just hope for some power on the attack."

Quincy's game last Friday against Newton, previously rained out, nearly proved costly as starting fullback Paul Vespaziani and Paul Ferris, offensive center and defensive end, were injured. However, both are expected back for North.

Conroy will start an offensive team of John Riggs or Steve Infascelli and Kevin Donovan or Russ Affa, ends; Steve Coleman and Bob Varrasso, tackles; Bob Nolan and Steve Sylva, guards; Ferris, center; Mark Buchanan, quarterback; Paul Remponi and Tony Cedrone, halfbacks, and Vespaziani, fullback.

Among others expected to play on offense are Pat Gibbons, Mike Dunlea, Wayne Gardner, Mickey Thorley, Bill Popsie, Pat Foley, Mike Murray, a fine place kicker whose toe could be a key in a close game; Frank McNeill, Bill Brennan, Rich Hocking and Dennis Walter.

Sophomore Len Picot, who has done an outstanding job punting, will perform this important chore.

On defense Quincy will open with Ferris and Sal Coscia or Tommy Spadorcia, ends; McNeill and Popsie, tackles; Hocking and Larry Calley, guards; Riggs and Mike Carloni, linebacksers; Gibbons and Tony DiRocco, halfbacks, and Frank Guest, safety.

Among those also expected to see action are Varrasso, Paul Coletti, Dunlea, Tom Bamberg, Bob Derbes, Jim Constas and Coleman.

North Reading, field judge and Edgar Stowell of Bedford, head linesman.

Edgar Pidgeon will be the timer, replacing LeRoy [Curley] Rogers, retired North Quincy Coach, who is not available this year.

Conroy Led Quincy To Wins In '41, '42

Three of Quincy's coaches, including head coach Hank Conroy, are former stars for the Presidents.

Conroy was an all-scholastic back at Quincy and captain in his last year. In 1941 and 1942 he led the Presidents to wins over North Quincy.

Assistant John Bogan starred as a guard at Quincy in 1958, '59 and '60 and was captain his senior year.

Pete Chella, who succeeded Dave Burke, who moved to North as head coach, was a standout Quincy lineman in 1961 and '62. This fall he has coached the sophomores and also scouted.

Mark Conroy, although an 'outsider' as far as his alma mater is concerned, is Hank's son. Last fall he was sophomore coach and scout but this year moved up to varsity offensive coach.

John Skladany, who joined the staff this year to replace Bud Mosher, is a graduate of Haverhill High.

Jack Rayerme, a Quincy lineman in 1968, voluntarily assists Chella both as a sophomore coach and scout.

New Timer For This Game

Four of the five officials who handled the Quincy-North game the past six years will again be in charge of things Thursday.

Returning are Joe Berman of Hurl, referee; John Krikorian of Brockton, umpire; Al Benson of Crowd Expected To Top Last Year's

With so much at stake for the North Quincy team, Thursday's crowd is expected to surpass that of last year, estimated at about 11,000, if the weatherman cooperates.

It is doubtful, however, that the crowd will come anywhere near the record 18,003 in 1946, when Carl Leone, Quincy's athletic coordinator, sparked Quincy to a 31-6 win. The turnout that year was estimated to be actually near 25,000, including those watching from the walls and trees and those who lined the MBTA bus garage yard.

Two years ago the crowd was 13,000 and the year before that about 12,000. The crowd in 1971 was only 10,057, well below expectations, but this was blamed on the heavy rains on the holiday which postponed the annual classic to the following Saturday. One of the largest crowds since the 1946 record was the 15,336 who attended the 1970 game.

McElaney Scores 30 Points With Foot

North Quincy's Ed McElaney has scored 30 points this year but not one touchdown.

McElaney has one of the most fantastic kicking records in the schools' history as he has kicked five field goals in eight attempts and has kicked 15 of 16 conversion attempts.

His foot could play a big part in the 43rd meeting of the Raiders and the Presidents.

North Won Series First Game Thriller, 6-0 In 1933

By TOM HENSHAW

It had all the ingredients of which legend is made.

There were the cocky young upstarts, face-to-face at last with the battered old champions, never before challenged on their home turf.

There was the star player carried from the field in an ambulance in the first period only to return to the bench in the last quarter to inspire his teammates.

And there was the last minute drive of 75 yards with a 21-yard pass for the only touchdown while the smallest man on the field took out two opponents with a devastating block.

It was North Quincy vs. Quincy on Nov. 11, 1933, the first time the two old rivals ever met on the football field.

North was in its second year of varsity football that season; Quincy had been a power among Eastern Mass schoolboys for 30-odd years.

North was undefeated, a record marred only by a scoreless tie with the Marblehead Jayvees. But three of its five wins were over Whitman, Scituate and the Brockton Jayvees.

Quincy had won only one of seven but its conquerors included New Bedford, Newton, Lynn Classical, Melrose and Leominster by a 46-0 count.

Realists favored Quincy by two or three touchdowns.

There were nearly 6,000 fans in the stands at Comins Stadium, across Southern Artery from the police station, to watch North's great Walter (Cap) Bryan set Quincy back with kicks of 35, 45 and 60 yards in the first period.

North recovered a fumble on the Quincy 20 but Bryan missed a field goal try. Moments later, little Tommy Ryan ran to the Quincy one but the play was called back for an offside.

Then Bryan, around whom the North offense revolved, dropped back to pass and was sacked. An ambulance was wheeled on the field to take him to City Hospital with a hip injury.

If North's spirits sagged at the loss of its leader, they were revived in the second period by the defensive gem of the day by Arthur (Bat) Nelson.

Quincy quarterback Vic DiGravio intercepted a pass on the Quincy 10 and set sail for the North goal line behind a veritable screen of six blockers.

Nelson, the last defender, hurled himself into the moving mass of Quincy players at the North 30 and brought down DiGravio with his blockers on top of him.

The two teams sparred cautiously until the fourth period when, unexpectedly, Bryan returned from the hospital. He couldn't play but, by golly, he could sit on the bench and he did.

The final North Quincy drive began with little more than a minute to play on the Quincy 25.

Nelson, Pete Zoia and Walter Joly combined to move to a first down on the North 49 with just a minute left.

Nelson passed to Joly on the Quincy 32, Zoia carried to the 27; Nelson to the 24; Zoia again to the 21.

Nelson faded and threw to Joly who caught the ball on the 15 and ran for a touchdown while Ryan, who was called "Peanuts" because he weighed only 125 pounds, took out the last two Quincy defenders with one block.

It ended moments later: North Quincy 6, Quincy 0.

And how did North Quincy fandom react to the Raiders first great football victory?

First of all they went for the goalposts but they were too well guarded by Quincy's finest and the plan had to be abandoned.

An informal parade, led by majorette Doris Eagles, started down Coddington St. toward Quincy Sq., autos three abreast, horns atooting, perhaps 1,000 people in all.

Police tried to break it up, failed, finally gave up and cleared the way on motorcycles.

A dozen girls were observed clinging to the sports roadster of Mrs. Arthur Nelson, mother of the North star, and they were singing, over and over, "Who's Afraid of Quincy High?" to a tune then popular in a Walt Disney movie.

"It got rather boring after a while," sniffed a local reporter, obviously a Quincy grad.

The whole melange collected on the lawn of North Quincy High School until Headmaster James S. Collins opened the gym where the North players were called on to make speeches for the jam-packed fans in the stands.

The celebration was to last a long time, too, for Quincy never did get to beat the Northenders until five long years had passed.

The lineup:

NORTH QUINCY — Ends, Murphy, Fay, Reilly; tackles, Urquhart, Mettler; Seitz; guards, Powers, Fuertado, McWeeney; center, Mitchell; backs, Nelson, Ryan, Joly, Zoia, Bryan, Mathurin.

QUINCY — Ends, Gookin, Coleman, Dobbyn, Troupe, Sproule; tackles, Hughes, Fairfield, Booth; guards, Alfano, Ricciuti, Finn; center, Densmore; backs, DiGravio, Baldwin, Ordway, Oliviero, Comparato, Asnes, Daley.

North's Matty Constantino and Ed McLaney have scored 30 points, as has Quincy's top scorer, Paul Vespaziani.

Quincy Sophs Defeat Young Raiders

Quincy football fans hope last Saturday's sophomore game with North Quincy is a sign of things to come on Thanksgiving.

The Quincy sophs, under first year coach Pete Chella, defeated the young Raiders, 12-6, at Veterans Memorial Stadium, averaging last year's 30-0 loss to North.

It looked like a high scoring game when Quincy took the opening kickoff and drove to its first touchdown and North came right back following the next kickoff to score its touchdown.

However, the defenses took over and there was no more scoring until the first play of the last period when a 60-yard bomb gave Quincy the winning score.

"It was a good one to win," Chella said. "Our defense did a great job and Tom Dedian ran well [an understatement, as Dedian put on a dazzling running exhibition and reeled off numerous long runs], to gain well over 100 yards. John Houten did a fine job at quarterback and the offensive line also played a fine game."

Co-Capt. Rich Coose was singled out by both Chella and defensive coach Jack Raymer as the young Presidents' "outstanding two-way player." He seemed to be in on nearly every tackle, blocked well and was a fine pass receiver.

Called for their defensive efforts were safetyman Don Heath, who had joined the squad only two games earlier; Mark Merlis, tackles Mike Duggan and Paul DeGrassie, Greg Billings, Lou Rizzo and Dave Eastwick.

Duggan and DeGrassie also were lauded for their work on offense as were Dedian and Houten, Pete Cassidy, Jim Oriola, Kevin Zambruno and Kevin Boudreau.

Ted Sadowski, who has coached the sophs for most of his 18 years at North, praised Tom Burke for his work on defense, Kevin O'Sullivan at quarterback and running backs Johns Wilkinson, Colin McEachern and Brian Watts.

"The line blocked well at the line of scrimmage but we just couldn't get the blocks beyond to clear the way for the backs," he said.

A pass from Houten to Coose and several long runs by Dedian set up the first Quincy score. Dedian scored from the three.

North came right back and tied the score on two passes, one from O'Sullivan to Kevin Greene for 24 yards to Quincy's 34 and the other for the remaining 34 yards from O'Sullivan to Joe Deane.

Quincy was hurt by numerous penalties, one of which nullified a scoring pass from Houten to Dedian after Dedian had raced 52 yards to the North 18.

On the first play of the final period Houten threw a perfectly placed bomb to Oriola, who ran about 20 yards to complete a 60-yard play.

Some of the members of both squads will be brought up to the varsity for the traditional Thanksgiving Day game.

Burke Cleared Of Newspaper Charges

Former Norfolk County District Atty. George Burke of Wollaston, has been formally cleared of charges alleged by the Boston Globe's Spotlight team.

In two independent probes conducted by the offices of Atty. General Francis X. Bellotti and Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, investigators found no evidence to prompt prosecution.

Accusing the Globe of making "silly and technical allegations" against him, Burke said he is happy the entire affair is now over.

Appreciative of what he termed "the so-called 'check' into the Globe allegations," Burke nonetheless insisted the Globe series was "unwarranted" in the first place.

Burke said he felt the Globe "tried to find things wrong" in his handling of cases as Norfolk County D.A. because the newspaper disagreed with his position on prison reform. He told The Quincy Sun:

"The Globe has been attacking me for two straight years. It hasn't been an easy thing. They have told so many lies about me. They have distorted accounts and have bent the truth... They have attacked me as a person. This has put a strain on myself and on my family because I continually had to defend myself."

Norfolk County District Attorney for 16 years, Burke has returned to the private practice of law.

Work To Start On Germantown Shoreline Protection

Senator Arthur H. Tobin announces that work on a new shoreline protection project for Quincy's Town River will begin shortly.

Tobin said the Massachusetts

Department of Environmental Quality Engineering through its Division of Waterways has selected Ernest Minelli, Inc., of Hull as contractor for the $53,560 project.

The Division of Waterway's plans call for the construction of a pre-cast 425-foot concrete seawall and stone mound. The project is designed to protect the section of Town River shoreline adjacent to the Oceanview Senior Citizens Housing Complex in Germantown.

The Division of Waterway's action came in response to reports from Senator Tobin, Rep. Thomas Brownell and Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly that a serious soil erosion problem has existed at that site for some time.

Tobin said the improvements will be completed in two months.

Market Outreach Opportunities Through S.S. Chamber

Two additional avenues to expand manufacturers potential are now available, and free.

The first is a New England Manufacturers Exchange Workshop, Tuesday, Dec. 2, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

The Workshop will offer a new way for buyers to locate suppliers of New England manufacturers services, specialties and special products.

The Exchange is effective in matching buyers needs with manufacturers capacity, faster and more efficiently than is possible using directories and listing. The service is free. Those wishing to attend are asked to call 479-1111.

The second opportunity available is direct (SIC) Standard Industrial Code Matchups. Products are classified by SIC and a list of all the New England Regional procuring agencies are made. Participants then contact each agency to get on its procurement bid list and will automatically receive notice of bid opportunities available in their product area.

'Young Ideas' Spotlight On Bank, Folk Heroes

By CATHY CONLEY

Banking and American folk heroes are featured in this week's issue of "Young Ideas", The Quincy Sun's four-page newspaper designed for elementary school children.

The "Young Ideas" pullout section starts on Page 13 and is sponsored by Hancock Bank. Just pull the section out.

Guest editors are pupils in Marshall Levy's sixth grade at Squantum School. The children study how a bank works. One of the sixth graders, Linda Demarkles, interviews William Kelley, president of the Hancock Bank. Several others do a picture-essay about what happens when we put money in the bank. There are also several puzzles about banking created by Mr. Levy's sixth grade.

Mr. Levy's class is particularly interested in American folk heroes and some of their work on this theme is featured. Several children did paper mache statues of their favorite heroes and we took their pictures. Some children created puzzles on this theme, particularly an excellent Junior Jumble by Kate Feeney. Because a bank is sponsoring this issue, one guest editor wrote a fantasy about what it would be like if Paul Bunyan visited the Hancock Bank.

There is also a coloring contest: first prize a $25 bank account from Hancock Bank. Also runners-up prizes will be given to the best entry from each grade from kindergarten to sixth grade.

And don't forget that Friday, Dec. 5 is the deadline to submit entries for the two contests sponsored by the Thomas Crane Public Library. One is to design a bookmark for the children's room. The other is a word scramble featured in the Nov. 20 issue of "Young Ideas". The prize for each of these contests is a copy of your favorite book.

Edward Graham Appointed To Quincy Housing Authority

Former City Councillor Edward S. Graham has been named to the Quincy Housing Authority for a term beginning immediately and ending Feb. 1, 1980.

The appointment by Mayor Walter J. Hannon was approved unanimously by the City Council Monday night.

Graham, a resident of Germantown for 22 years, served six years on the City Council ending in December, 1973.

Graham succeeds Lawrence Butler, whose term has expired.

Delahunt Vows Thorough Investigation

All Wardens, Clerks To Be Quizzed In Election Probe

All wardens and clerks in Quincy's 39 voting precincts will be questioned in the two-pronged investigation of the city's controversial and bitter mayoral election.

Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, who with Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti is heading up the probe now underway, told The Quincy Sun:

"This is going to be the most thorough investigation ever carried out in Quincy. We don't know what we are going to find but if there is any evidence of wrong doing, I will take it before a grand jury."

He estimated the investigation will be completed sometime next week.

Six blocks of 50 votes shifted from Mayor Walter Hannon to challenger Joseph LaRaia during a recount Nov. 23, giving the latter a 483-vote margin victory. Originally, Hannon was declared the winner in the Nov. 4 election by 134 votes.

The final official tally showed LaRaia with 17,231 votes and Hannon with 16,748.

The shift of six blocks occurred in six precincts in five wards. But Delahunt told The Sun:

"We are going to question every clerk and warden in all 39 precincts. We are not just going to talk with election workers in the precincts where the blocks shifted."

"We are going to give this a real thorough looking into. We intend to find out what happened and how."

State police from both Delahunt's and Bellotti's office will carry out the probe. Quincy police will not be involved, Delahunt said.

On election night, LaRaia charged irregularities and even posted an around-the-clock watch of his own outside a sealed safe in the city clerk's office where the ballot boxes were locked awaiting the recount asked by LaRaia. Rotating shifts of two Quincy police officers were assigned to guard the ballot boxes.

The probe was initiated by Mayor Walter Hannon who originally declared he believed there was no wrong-doing in the election.

LaRaia, who had charged the irregularities, and said the election was suspicious, apparently is satisfied by the recount and has made no attempt to pursue the matter further.

City Clerk John Gillis asked both the offices of Delahunt and Bellotti to carry out the probe, removing himself and the Board of Registrars from participation.

Double Sessions Or Schedule Juggling If NQHS Closes

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

North Quincy High School students will have double sessions - or some form of schedule juggling - in the 1976-77 school year if the School Committee decides to close North Quincy High School during the up-coming years of renovation.

Although School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said he has not at this time recommended the closing of North, he told The Quincy Sun public safety officials in Quincy stand stanchly behind their conviction North Quincy High School should not be occupied during the construction and renovation years. But he added:

"Safety officials have said the building should not be used. They didn't say the building cannot be used or must not be used."

According to Creedon, task forces are in the process of examining 15 alternatives to re-locate North Quincy High School students if the facility closes during renovations. Each task force - comprised of three or four representatives of each building affected by the alternative - evaluates the proposal according to an 86-point check list. Some of the more viable alternatives include:

- Launch double sessions at Quincy High School with one high school attending during a morning session, the other during the afternoon.

- Sever the tie between Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School, making the latter a self-sufficient unit and conducting double

Cerasoli Praises MDC, Criticizes MBTA On Town Brook Flooding Problem

Rep. Robert Cerasoli has praised the MDC for formulating "a complete plan" to deal with the Town Brook flooding problem but has criticized what he calls the MBTA's "cheap piecemeal suggestions" to solve the flooding headaches in the area.

In a statement to be delivered at the Town Brook Watershed public hearing Thursday, Dec. 11, Cerasoli records himself in favor of the MDC's "preferred plan" to correct flooding in the area but also suggests construction of dikes to create two flood storage pools to check drain-off and reduce peak downstream flow.

The hearing, sponsored by the MDC, will begin at 7:30 p.m., in the Lincoln Hancock Community School. Members of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will attend the hearing to present Town Brook Watershed residents the most feasible methods of flood protection and to field their suggestions about flood control.

Outlining the rapid construction in the Town River Quincy-Braintree area, Cerasoli said projects such as the South Shore Plaza, the Industrial Park

State Seeks Permission To Dredge Fore River

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering has applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for a federal permit to dredge an area in Weymouth Fore River and to lower existing submarine cables to a depth of 39 feet below mean low water.

The application for work at Quincy and Weymouth involves dredging an area 150 feet by 140 feet by 120 feet by 65 feet and removing some 2,200 cubic yards of material to the "foul area" disposal site off Marblehead, according to Colonel John Mason, of the Corps' New England Division. The application was filed by J. T. Cronin, District Highway Engineer, 100 County St., Taunton, Mass.

The division engineer has evaluated the anticipated environmental impacts and has made a preliminary determination that an environmental impact statement is not required under provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. This determination will be reviewed if other facts are submitted.

The decision whether to issue or deny a permit will be based on an evaluation of the probable impact of the proposed activity on the public interest. That decision will reflect the national concern for both protection and utilization of important resources. The benefit which reasonably may be expected to accrue for the proposal must be balanced against its reasonably foreseeable detriments.

No permit will be granted the Corps of Engineers unless its issuance is found to be in the public interest. The applicant is required to obtain a water quality certificate from the state agency concerned with water quality control in accordance with Section 401 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972.

Anyone desiring to submit comments relating to the proposed work is encouraged to do so, the engineers said.

Any person who has an interest which may be adversely affected by the issuance of a permit may request a public hearing. The request must clearly set forth the interest which may be adversely affected and the manner in which the interest may be adversely affected by the activity and be sent to the Division Engineer, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, New England Division, 424 Trapelo Road, Waltham, Massachusetts 02154, on or before Dec. 10, 1975.

IRS Has Tax Refunds For 14 Quincy Residents

The Internal Revenue Service has listed the names of 14 Quincy residents whose 1975 federal tax refund checks have been returned to the IRS office marked "undeliverable" by the Postal Department.

The following residents are owed a refund check but have apparently never contacted the IRS as to the non-receipt of the checks. They are:

Edward R. Mullen, Leo Skeffington, Becky Renee Thatcher, David Ullstrom, Leonard E. Widener, Thomas M. Flaherty, Michael E. Frautten, Nancy J. Meszaros, Michael A. Shurko, Terald L. and Sharon A. Thompson, Steven Eichbaum, Francis R. Frazier, Carol P. Herrett and Sherry Lynn MacAllister.

Max and Julia Pruzan, who listed a Newton address but a Wollaston zip code, are also named on the list of undelivered refund checks.

The Boston District IRS, said taxpayers named above can go to the nearest IRS office and show proper identification for the re-issuance of the refund check. It is not necessary to consult a locating or searching service or anyone else to obtain information about these checks, Mosher added.

8,000 Students Receive Free Dental Care In Year

(Third in a series)

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

By year's end, the Quincy Health Department's Dental Clinic staff will have drilled, filled, fluoridated, x-rayed or extracted teeth of some 8,000 Quincy students ranging in age from five to 18.

Located on the first floor of the John F. Kennedy Health Center - right next door to the Well-Baby Clinic described in last week's article - the clinic offers this dental work - excluding orthodontia - free to Quincy residents in grades K-12.

Boasting three dental units and a new, soon-to-arrive $2,200 X-ray machine, the clinic employs a staff of two full-time dentists, retired from private practice, one part-time professional, three dental assistants and one secretary.

The dental clinic waiting room is always packed. The staff, working throughout the school year on an eight-hour day of never-ending appointments, has served 5,300 school children between Jan. 1 and Nov. 1 alone, according to Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney.

And Dr. John Corrigan, one of the two full-time dentists, estimates the staff will see a whopping 3,000 additional young patients by year's end.

All appointments at the clinic are scheduled through the Quincy Public Schools with certain days devoted to students at certain schools.

Explaining the appointment process, Mrs. Mary Bates, the clinic's sole secretary, said parents throughout the city receive notices at the beginning of each school year, outlining the dental services offered and requesting parental permission to provide the dental care to the children. After the initial visit, children receive clinic appointment slips until needed dental work is complete.

Dr. Mahoney estimates the clinic serves approximately one-third of the city's school children - including parochial school students - eligible for the services.

According to Dr. Corrigan, a child's first visit to the clinic begins with a thorough dental examination.

"We check for decay, and examine the gums and the hygienic condition of the mouth. We talk to parent and child about care of teeth, encouraging brushing three times every day - especially at bedtime - and timely examinations. We also prescribe fluoride to just about everyone."

Dental assistants June Columbus, Paula Bolea and Carol Milburn teach their young patients the correct method of brushing and also help to encourage brushing three times per day.

Though the dentists perform occasional temporary cappings, Dr. Corrigan said the staff refers all orthodontia work to specialists.

With appointments scheduled as late as 3:45 p.m. each day, Mrs. Bates says the dentists treat between 40 and 46 patients daily and handle eight to ten emergencies per day.

With the full dentist staff on duty - including Dr. Corrigan, Dr. Richard Gavin, full-time dentist, and Dr. Robert Kirschbaum, part-time dentist - the total number of patients seen per day jumps to about 60.

The free dental services offered at the clinic - the teeth filling, drilling, x-rays, extractions, capping, and fluoridation - can save a family an extraordinary amount of money. An average dentist visit today can range from $10 to $20 with x-rays upping the bill even higher. With several children in a family, dentist bills can spiral to exorbitant heights. Dr. Mahoney commented:

"Sometimes we get calls from private citizens who complain about paying for someone else's dentist bills out of their taxes. We tell them we think this service is good public health."

Until last winter, the dental clinic served only those children in kindergarten through grade six. But with the strain of what Dr.

OPEN WIDE! - Dr. Richard J. Gavin, one of two full-time dentists at the city's dental clinic, examines 11-year-old Robert Cavanaugh as Dental Assistant June Columbus looks on.

Mahoney calls "the economics of the times," the health commissioner suggested expansion of the program to include school-age Quincy residents through grade 12.

"The Mayor was very favorable towards expansion of the program and he gave us the money to work with," said Mahoney.

Dr. Mahoney estimates the dental clinic absorbs some $50,000 of the health department's annual budget totalling over $500,000 this year. Bemoaning what he calls the "outrageous" cost of dental supplies, Dr. Mahoney said:

"It costs us $200-300 every time the supplier comes."

Easing some of the financial burden, the Morrisette Legion Post donates funds to the clinic each year toward purchase of toothbrushes given to first-visit patients.

High school students who live in Quincy but attend school outside of the city are also eligible for the health department's dental services. Dr. Mahoney noted students attending Archbishop Williams High School, Boston College High School and Fontbonne Academy can contact the clinic for appointments.

Quincy Bay Pollution Solutions Sought At Merrymount Meeting

City and state officials have been invited to attend the Merrymount Association's monthly meeting tonight (Thursday) to discuss immediate solutions to the problem of pollution in Quincy Bay.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church hall, 126 Sea St.

Invited to attend are Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney, Quincy's health commissioner; Win Wade, director of Environmental Services in Quincy; Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia, Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, Reps. Joseph E. Brett, Thomas F. Brownell and Robert Cerasoli, City Councillors Leo J. Kelly and Dennis Harrington, Councillor-elect Paul Harold, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Thomas McMahon, state director of water pollution control; and Arthur Fisichelli, MDC director of sewage engineering.

Concerned about "rapid decline in the quality of the water in Quincy Bay," the Merrymount Association conducted an independent study of pollution in the Bay and of pumping rates at the MDC Nut Island Plant.

According to the Association, their research showed:

- The coliform count in Quincy Bay exceeded 200 during 98 per cent of the summer season's days in 1975, an increase of 81 per cent when compared to the summer of 1971.

- During the summer season of 1975, the Nut Island Plant pumped over 120 million gallons of sewage on 47 per cent of the season's days, an increase of 36 per cent when compared to the summer of 1971.

- The coliform count in Quincy Bay exceeded 500 during 32 per cent of the 1975 summer season's days while in 1971 the coliform count exceeded a level of 500 during 13 per cent of the season's days. A beach is closed if the coliform count exceeds 1,000.

- The total volume of sewage pumped during the 1975 season dropped by 1.6 billion gallons over the 1974 season.

The Association plans to pose the following questions to the officials at tonight's meeting:

- Has the reduction in high volume days resulted from good management or as a response to public scrutiny?
- Given a reduction in volume at the Nut Island Plant, why should coliform counts skyrocket in the Bay?
- Has the MDC reduced the amount or quality of its chlorination or is there another source of pollution in Quincy Bay?

Bay?

- What role do high coliform counts at the Wollaston Beach storm drains play in the total picture?

- How many homes are draining untreated waste directly into storm drains or the Bay?

- What is the status of the House resolve calling for a study of pollution in Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor "with a view toward developing a short range solution" to the problem?

Members may submit additional questions the night of the meeting.

OUR CHILDREN

2-year-old's mom needs an escape

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM

Q. He's impossible to live with — our 2-year-old, I mean. I've never seen anything like it! He can destroy the sturdiest toys and mess up a room from which I think I've taken all the moveable parts.

I wish I could relax in this situation, but it's impossible. I need help.

A. Your youngster may be doing "what comes naturally" for 2-year-olds — but that isn't much consolation. Nor will it make you feel better to have someone tell you that this will probably "pass" in time.

Perhaps what you need more than anything else is an escape, a chance to get away from it all for a while, even a number of times each week.

Although your son is still young, a good preschool may be able to help you out.

Two-year-olds are generally active, but their activity doesn't mean you have to suffer in the process.

Q. Is it really true that bright children require little counseling help because they have such good insight into their own needs and abilities? My husband says it is, and that if we just let our son alone he'll be fine.

Our boy is 12 years old, has a lot of interests, and does very well in school. So far so good. But he overschedules himself and gets frustrated because he can't accomplish everything he wants to.

Sometimes he even cries because he feels he is running out of time.

I'm worried, but my husband isn't. I really wish I were more like he is. It'd be so comfortable.

A. Perhaps it would, but your youngster may be the loser.

Although it is true that bright children might seem to require less guidance than others, they need help, too, in getting through their childhood stages of development. That's especially so as adolescence is reached, and your son may be edging into his most difficult years.

If his school has a counselor you might contact him or her about the apparent problems you feel your youngster has.

Q. Is it possible for a child to have some features of a Mongoloid and still not be retarded?

Our baby daughter has eyes like that, but apparently nothing else about her fits in with such children. At least our doctor tells us not to worry, and I try not to.

What do you advise?

A. First, these children and adults are now referred to as Down's syndrome rather than Mongoloid.

If your baby seems to be developing normally (looking, grabbing, pulling, and vocalizing, for example), I'd tend to agree with your physician.

Today's Women

PITY POOR SANTA

Inflation makes toy buying tough

Inflation, recession and what some people call "stagflation" likely will tighten the screws on the Christmas budget this year.

Consequently a lot of parents either have discovered or soon will find out that shopping for Yule toys isn't much of a picnic. Even fun and games don't come cheap anymore.

So what can you buy for the kiddies that they'll enjoy, without digging too deeply into the pocketbook?

The National Safety Council, which has been policing the safety of toys since way back in 1925, thinks it has some answers, based on the recollections of the Great Depression of the early 1930s and today's money pinch.

A good toy, says Hans Grigo, the council's home department technical adviser, is safe, durable, made of quality materials and offers the child a variety of play options. It also suits the child's age, abilities and interests, he adds.

"Nowhere in that definition," Grigo says, "are the words 'expensive' or 'elaborate.'"

He asks parents to remember that government reports show an estimated 150,000 children were treated for toy-related injuries in hospital emergency rooms in one year alone.

"Safety is a bargain when you consider the physical, emotional and financial costs of these accidents," Grigo says.

This December it might be a good idea to give your children's old toys a "physical exam," he points out. A "fix-up what you have" attitude is wise in these times and it will save money, too.

"Most children who have become fond of their old broken toys would be delighted to have them working properly

TIME-TELLER — This little blonde bomber of a doll has a wristwatch that matches that of her young mistress. The idea is to encourage the child to learn how to tell time quickly and accurately. Blondie and dolls like her are ideal Christmas gifts this year, but it may take some sharp shopping to find a doll that will fit into your pocketbook.

again," Grigo says.

"A new coat of nontoxic paint, a wheel firmed on its axle, the rips in dolly's dress sewn up, a good cleaning and sprucing up here and there may be just what's needed to give the 'oldies but goodies' a new lease on life," according to Grigo.

However, he warns, those toys that can't be repaired and made safe again should be discarded.

"A safe plaything is a first-rate 'toy' soldier in the war against inflation," Grigo contends. "Safety is an effective inflation fighter at Christmas time and every other day, for that matter."

Another way to trim Yuletide spending is to avoid the chance that your children will ignore the new toy and play with the box instead, the council adviser says.

"Check out the information on the package before you buy the toy," he counsels. "Most toys now have age group suggestions on the box. A toy that's too young for the child is a waste of money, since most children would rather 'die' than get caught playing with a 'baby' toy."

"On the other hand, one geared for older children than yours may be too much for him or her to handle. That could result in injuries."

What you see in the toy store is what you get. So don't let the package tell the whole story, Grigo advises.

"Don't be afraid to ask for a sample of the product you can handle and inspect. It's your money!"

What's the rush about marriage?

Americans are waiting longer to get married.

In 1974 the average age at first marriage was 21, close to a year higher than it was in the mid-1950's, according to the Bureau of the Census.

Your Horoscope Guide

For The Week Of Dec. 7-13

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Be gracious to visitors who may have important things to say. Guard against being taken in by a companion who is a "great pretender." Take charge of your own affairs — don't assume other's burdens.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — A promotion or raise is favored now. In domestic matters, don't be drawn into arguments. Be diplomatic. Family discord involving in-laws could affect your disposition and performance at work.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Joy increases as you hear from those who love you by mail or telephone. Concentrate on your goals and what you want to achieve in life, but don't neglect children and family. Be available for friends who want to rap.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Your own impatience may be at the root of your problems now. Try to get in touch with your natural serenity. Good time to have your hair restyled. Concentrate on gift buying — money is no problem.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — A social affair can highlight your pleasure. Excessive need for parties and night-life is an overreaction to ward off a feeling of loneliness. Guard against excesses of emotion. Maintain performance at work.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Companionship sparkles, both romantically and platonically. You may feel unfulfilled, however, and neglect the duties you owe to family and old friends. Resist a live-for-today attitude. Curb extravagance.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Get plenty of rest to recuperate spent energy. An unexpected expense can depress you too. Not a good time to speculate with money. In legal matters, read the fine print before signing any document.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Others are becoming important to you. Undertake to refurbish your personal appearance. You are optimistic and somewhat impulsive, so think twice before you speak. Don't overburden your charge accounts.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — You can be short-tempered now and snap when you could have smiled. Work on projects already in process instead of starting something new. Help your mate to be more concentrated in expended efforts.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Money for Christmas could arrive in the mail. Avoid arousing jealousy in a loved one over the attentions of another. Be loving and caring for relatives and family — they may have problems unknown to you.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Resist trying to persuade younger family members to your opinions — don't force an issue. With so much to do at work and home you shift into high gear and amaze bosses. Clothes buying is favored now.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Your need for sexually romantic experience could lead you into a deceptive situation now. Look past the surface glamor in another. Enjoy yourself with making gifts, decorating and using your artistry.

Handle iron-on interfacing gently

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

There's one thing you sure can't press out before cutting it ... iron-on interfacing! So treat it gently ... it won't get wrinkled, and it won't need pressing. Which you can't do anyway.

Dear Betty:

Thanks again for your offers of help in sewing. My sheets of nylon tricot were not successful. They slide and there is too little elastic to hold. They do feel good though! — Lilly Neisen

I'm sorry you are having trouble with your sheets, Lilly. There could be one or more causes, but we'll just cure them rather than analyze them, OK? There is no reason at all why you can't put elastic all the way around if you want. This would keep the sheet snugger. Also, you might try making your next one a bit smaller than the instructions call for. Because the tricot is a knit, it will "give" enough to allow the sheet to go over the mattress.

Dear Betty:

I have an ironing board which measures 56"x14" with a "let down" on one end. The point is not centered and the board is larger than any cover I can buy. Do you know of any place where I can buy Teflon-treated fabric so that I can make a cover? Love your column. You've helped so many. — Edna H. Orsborn, Beverly Hills, Fla.

After that nice compliment, Edna, I hate to say I can't help. The only lead we have on fabric for making ironing board covers or pot holders is to try an auto seat cover place that makes suits for race car drivers. If you can get by with just padding and not the Teflon coating, use an old mattress pad. Usually when the pad wears out there are still good areas from which to cut. Wish I could be of more help.

A few points on underlining a garment. Always work on a firm, flat surface (your cutting board is great). When basting the underlining to the fabric, work in the seam allowances and make long, rather loose basting stitches by hand. Do not raise the fabric up off the board while working. For extremely difficult fabrics, you will need to baste down the center and horizontally on the larger sections.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS

Low self-image bothers lonely lady

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON

Dear Dorothy:

I was seventy-five years old this past week. I'm a lonely woman with very few friends. I did, however, receive 40 birthday cards and letters, and that really made my day.

N.J.

Dear N.J.:

Receiving 40 birthday cards and letters is no average happening.

It gives some kind of proof that there are people who love you and care.

Your self-image is low, and you can't believe that there's anyone around who thinks well of you. You have experienced many hurts in your lifetime, seen in the very large t loop, and you have developed a habit of expecting disapproval and rejections. This fear has grown to an abnormal proportion. It has caused you to become too introspective. You listen so hard for criticism that you fail to hear the praise. Because you fear the reaction of people, you have come to distrust them, seen in the squared off loop on y. You feel "bucked away" in your own little world, and you're lonesome.

Those who know you respect you for your gifted qualities. You are a person of cultural refinements, seen in the Greek e's, printed s's, figure 8 f's pen-lifts in your words, and other strokes. You like and appreciate music, art, reading, and writing.

The many remembrances which you have just received should give you plenty of evidence of your admirers, and that there are people who want to be your friends. Now, you have to encircle them and share with them what you have to give.

Congratulations on your 75th birthday!

May such a lovely lady have many, many more!

CHIMNEY FIRES

With more fireplaces in regular use, fire chiefs throughout the country report more chimney fires than they have seen in the last quarter century.

Chimney fires are usually the result of soot buildup in the flue. Whenever you have a fire, carbon particles rise — especially when green wood is burned — and coat the inside walls of the chimney. Old brick or stone fireplaces with their rough surfaces are particularly vulnerable, but even modern homes with their smooth tile flue liners are not immune. Soot buildups — some are two or three inches thick — burn like charcoal once they are ignited. While there is little danger that such a fire will get past a tile liner in good condition, there is plenty of danger that it can work its way through the decaying mortar joints of old brick or stone chimneys. By the time such a smoldering fire is discovered, it may have a head start that cannot be overtaken.

The easiest — and most expensive — way to take care of your chimney is to hire a professional chimney cleaner ("sweep").

Committee Organized To Plan 3-Day July 4th Celebration

A committee has been organized to plan a three-day celebration for July 4, 1976.

Meeting at City Hall last week, representatives of local civic, service and city agencies set into motion preparations for the local observance of the nation's 200th birthday.

Quincy Heritage, at the request of Mayor Walter J. Lannon, invited organizations to participate in the planning of activities for the July 4, 1976 weekend.

Neighborhood association representatives indicated that their parades, field days and picnics would take place on July 4, since the 4th of July falls on a Sunday.

Discussion by participants showed a strong interest in having a special "open house" of all Quincy historic sites on Saturday, July 3 and Sunday, July 4. It was suggested that the Quincy Historical Society plan special displays of Quincy history at Adams Academy. Historical Society president H. Hobart Holly indicated that this would be an "excellent idea."

Charles Alongi, Jr., of the Quincy Recreation Department, said his office would help coordinate bus transportation from local neighborhoods to the various sites throughout the city.

Plans for a major fireworks display in Quincy Bay for 11:30 p.m. on July 3, were presented by Quincy Heritage executive director John R. Graham. Created by the Framingham Fireworks Company of New Hampshire the display will be fired from a barge near Long Island. Gordon MacPhee of the Quincy Heritage staff is coordinating arrangements with the MDC, and the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

"We're going to have the finest show in the Boston area," said Graham. "We've been working with the fireworks company for almost two years now to assure Quincy residents of a great 200th birthday show."

Members of the committee recommended that a special band concert be held in Veteran's Stadium on Sunday afternoon, July 4. It was also suggested that all local veteran's groups be invited to participate in the program.

"We're eager to develop a community-wide program for this celebration," said Graham.

"The many neighborhood associations do an outstanding job with their parades and activities. We want to help them in any way possible."

The planning committee will hold monthly meetings to further develop the plans for the three-day observance. The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 7. Brian Buckley of the Quincy Heritage staff is coordinator for the group.

The Election Investigation

A two-pronged investigation into Quincy's city election is now underway by the offices of Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti and Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

It may be a painful experience for the city to go through. No one cherishes even the slightest prospect of dirty laundry hanging up for everyone to stare at.

There is no documented evidence at this writing that the election was dirty but the 617-vote turnover that made Joseph LaRaia the winner over Walter Hannon makes it look a little tattle tale gray at the least.

We had hoped that the recount would end all the squabbling and let the reuniting of this divided city begin. But because of some of the wild stories and bizarre speculation now spreading around town, we are glad the investigation is being conducted. We only hope it will establish beyond a doubt whether there was wrongdoing or whether the 617-vote turnover was due to human error.

But, even if the investigation does prove the human error factor, some will cry out "whitewash".

Ironically, the investigation was initiated by Mr. Hannon who originally declared he was convinced there was no wrong-doing.

Mr. LaRaia, who charged irregularities election night when the count then showed him the loser by 134 votes, apparently is satisfied with the recount and is not pursuing the matter any further.

Mr. Hannon says he wants to find out why six 50-vote blocks turned over making Mr. LaRaia the new mayor.

"I have nothing to do with the election, with counting votes," he notes. "There'll be no aspersions cast at me."

The fact that six 50-vote blocks shifted one way—from Mr. Hannon to Mr. LaRaia seems to be the thing that bothers most people. If at least one had shifted from Mr. LaRaia to Mr. Hannon it would strengthen the human error theory.

But that six block change has fueled all kinds of speculation and some pretty wild stories.

We are glad to see City Clerk John Gillis and the Board of Registrars remove themselves from participation in the investigation. If they carried out the probe and found nothing wrong, there would be cries of "coverup".

Mr. Gillis made the wise move in asking both Atty. Gen. Bellotti and Dist. Atty. Delahunt to carry out the probe. The investigators will include state police detectives.

But, of course, if no wrongdoing is found there will still be some in the city calling the verdict a whitewash at the very least.

They will say that both Mr. Bellotti and Mr. Delahunt are Quincy residents and thus too close to the matter. And they will note that Mr. Delahunt's name was on the city ballot as a councillor at-large candidate even though he tried to have his name removed after his appointment as district attorney.

But Mr. Delahunt promises the most thorough investigation the city has ever seen. And vows that if any wrongdoing is uncovered, he will go before a grand jury, seeking indictments.

We only hope that the findings are accepted by both sides and that they get down to the task of trying to unify the city and solving the many problems that await solving.

Election Year 1975 should not be allowed to hang around the city's neck like an albatross.

If there was wrong doing, then the guilty should be punished and action taken to prevent it from happening again. But if everything was clean let's not go on forever hearing "ring around the collar".

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

By TOM HENSHAW

One of the two new City Councillors received his first assignment Monday night, a month before he assumes office.

Paul Harold, newly elected councillor at-large, was named to a special committee to study the feasibility of re-dedicating the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and Sea St. in the memory of former City Councillor John J. Hurley.

Hurley was city councillor from Ward 1 for eight months until his death in office in 1934.

The intersection was dedicated to his memory the same year but the plaque was removed recently by the MDC during highway reconstruction work in the area.

Named to the special committee with Harold were Councillors Leo J. Kelly and John J. Quinn.

Three City Councillors were appointed to a five member committee Monday night to study the problem of a new dog pound for Quincy.

The pound is to be moved from its current location behind the police station to provide more parking for the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Councillor Leo J. Kelly was named chairman of the committee, Councillor James A. Sheets vice chairman, and Councillor Dennis E. Harrington member.

The other two members will be appointed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

A proposal to take land at the intersection of Roberts St., Brooks Ave., and Centre St., South Quincy for a playground was referred to the Planning Department for public hearing Monday night by the City Council.

The sum of $10,000 was transferred out of an account designated "Sale of Cemetery Lots, Mt. Wollaston" by the City Council Monday night to provide improvements to city cemeteries.

The transfer was tabled two weeks ago when Councillor Dennis E. Harrington said he recalled voting on a resolution in the spring of 1974 specifically forbidding such a transfer.

Harrington said a check of the record showed no such restriction.

The City Council has been invited to attend a Christmas tree lighting ceremony Sunday [Dec. 7] at 5:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Fire Station.

The invitation was sent by Debra J. Timco, secretary of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

An offer by the Pine Hill Corp. to buy a parcel of city owned land at the intersection of Rockwood and Mountain Sts., for $1,300 was accepted Monday night by the City Council.

Councillor John J. Quinn said the piece of land is entirely surrounded by property owned by the Pine Hill Corp.

A proposal for traffic control signs at the intersection of Blanchard Road and Faxon Lane in Quincy Center was referred to the traffic commission by the City Council Monday night.

The proposal, made by State Rep. Robert Cerasoli and Councillor-elect Daniel Raymondi, calls for a stop sign on Blanchard Road and a slow sign on Faxon Lane.

Looks Like 7th Presidency Term For Tobin

By HENRY BOSWORTH

With speculation about the controversial mayoral race still holding the spotlight, the City Council presidency—the usual No. 1 topic at this time—seems almost forgotten.

But if the general public is wrapped up in what happened or did not happen election night, the nine city councillors themselves are thinking ahead to January and the council presidency.

There seems little doubt that "Mr. President" in 1976 will again be Senator Arthur Tobin if he wants it. And there is no indication that he doesn't want to continue in that prestigious office.

Indications are that even if there is a little behind the scene jockeying by one or two other candidates, only Tobin can put the necessary five votes together. And, it would appear that he will wind up being unanimously re-elected.

Tobin is now finishing up a record sixth consecutive one-year term as council president. He should have no problem whatsoever rolling No. 7.

And as a potential myoralty contender it will be interesting to see what kind of relationship develops between Tobin and new Mayor Joseph LaRaia.

They haven't exactly been buddy-buddy in the past.

FAVORITE POLITICAL Past time right now is trying to dope out why Joseph LaRaia won and Walter Hannon lost. There are several theories.

Most observers cite among their reasons but not necessarily in this order: [1] the people wanted a change. [2] Hannon's negative factor which they say showed up two years ago when Grace Saphir got 10,000 votes against him. [3] LaRaia running as a Democrat. [4] Hannon's blunt [honest] candor that ruffled feathers, and made for hurt feelings.

AND A FEW of the more astute observers think an old political warrior helped make the difference in the close 483-vote margin victory.

They refer to former Councillor-Senator-Sheriff Charles Hedges, a Republican, who was in LaRaia's camp. And carried out a personal telephone marathon in LaRaia's behalf that swung crucial votes to him.

Hedges and Hannon were close friends once upon a time and when Hannon first broke into politics he was looked upon as Hedges' protégé.

But when Councillor Clifford Marshall ran for sheriff last year, Hannon endorsed him over Hedges. But it wasn't just the endorsement that got Hedges' dander up. It was Hannon's cutting remark to the effect that Hedges was too old to remain sheriff. Them's fighting words to a man like Hedges who may be getting along in years but is still in good physical shape.

It will never be known exactly how many votes Hedges cost Hannon but there were enough to help give LaRaia that 483-vote edge.

WELL, IT'S NICE to see the Secret Service on the ball. Democratic Presidential hopeful Morris Udall was in Quincy Saturday on a campaign stop at the home of City Councillor-elect Paul Harold.

Secret Service agents were quite in evidence and really gave the crowd on hand a good looking over even though it was a house party and those present friends of Harold's.

And a couple of days before Udall's arrival, one Secret Service agent showed up at Harold's home to carefully look it over. He checked the various rooms and wanted to know the spot where Udall would be standing while talking to those gathered. And he even wanted to know the fastest route to "the nearest hospital" — just in case.

UDALL SAID the Massachusetts presidential primary is a key one and "will sort out the 10 Democratic candidates."

He expressed confidence that "I can handle Gerry Ford."

ON THE LIGHTER side, Udall recalled when he was campaigning for Adlai Stevenson. After Stevenson spoke, someone yelled out: "You'll get the thinking man's vote."

Stevenson quipped: "I'll need more than that. I'll need the majority."

A fund to aid the Wayne Elsmore family, left homeless by a Nov. 24 fire at their 48 Sea Ave. home, has been started by the Houghs Neck Legion Post, announces Commander William Morrill. The family of six is now Donations marked for the Elsmore Family Fund should be sent to the Presidential Cooperative Bank at 1 Granite St., Quincy.

Plans Unveiled For New Sacred Heart Church

By PAUL HAROLD

Plans for the new Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy called for an English Gothic design, Weymouth granite and Indiana limestone would be used for construction stone. Donations for the building fund and for memorials were being accepted by pastor, Rev. Irving Gifford. The church was burned last January.

BARGAIN CENTER EXPANSION FORCES BESTON OUT

Expansion of the Bargain Center, one of the South Shore's largest retail stores, meant the closing of Beston's gym, for years a landmark in Quincy Square.

Due to the tremendous growth of its business, the Bargain Center was forced to use the gymnasium's quarters on the third floor of the Shaw Building.

Joe Beston, the proprietor did not know if he could find new quarters in Quincy.

Beston said, "This is not a gymnasium, it's an institution. Hundreds of thousands of boys have been trained here. I take pride in the work I've done with boys. I'd rather send a boy off on the right foot with a healthy body and decent mind than to turn out a champion."

Among the champs that visited Beston's were Jack Dempsey, Ernie Shaaf, Jack Dowal and Jim Maloney.

NEW BUS STOPS FOR HOUGHS NECK PATRONS

As a result of new bus stops created by the city council, Houghs Neck passengers would be able to get on and off buses in front of the main bus terminal on Hancock St.

Councillor Edna Austin and Frank Orcutt sought the corrective measure to save thousands of residents from Houghs Neck, Germantown, Adams Shore and Merrymount from having to cross Hancock and Washington Sts. twice a day to get East-bound buses.

MAYOR ROSS TO CLEAN UP LIQUOR AND COMIC BOOK PROBLEMS

Mayor Ross sent to the city council a series of ordinances intended to clean up liquor and comic book conditions in the city.

Four ordinance amendments would give the health commissioner, building inspector, plumbing inspector and wire inspector additional powers which would enable them to make liquor establishments tow the mark in living up to regulations.

Another ordinance would provide for the establishment of a local board of censorship, composed of three citizens to assist city officials and police in handling the horror comic books and salacious literature sold in the city.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE VOTES NOT TO SPONSOR PROMENADE

The Chamber of Commerce voted not to sponsor the Christmas Promenade this year. It was customary on the Sunday before Christmas to have a Christmas carol promenade in downtown Quincy.

Alexander Purdon, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce said, "The directors believe the original religious character of the Christmas Promenade has been destroyed by the irresponsible action of a few. Besides, it had become too difficult to control such huge crowds in the downtown."

NO MONEY LEFT FOR SNOW REMOVAL

City Auditor Leo Mullin announced that if the city was hit by a heavy snow storm before Jan. 1, there would not be enough money to pay for snow removal.

Mullin informed the city council this week that the excess and deficiency fund was down to $13,000. The so-called E and D fund was the city's rainy, or snowy, day account, and from it came money for snow removal.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Where Are Tomorrow's Jobs?

By ERIC SWIDER

If the occupational forecast for the Greater Boston area that was released last month is correct, then a lot of young people and their parents have some rethinking to do about the value of their current educational training.

The study, done under the auspices of the Boston School Committee, of jobs in the Boston SMSA, which includes all of the South Shore towns, tells us that the growth jobs in the future are service in nature and require vocational-technical skills more than a four-year college degree.

Growth jobs in this area are as follows: Retail sales clerks [509 jobs due to growth]; Janitors and sextons [379]; Registered Nurses [360]; Nurses aides and orderlies [317]; Practical Nurses [270]; Personnel and Labor Relations [275]; Cashiers [187]; Typists [145]; Lawyers [166]; Hairdressers [107]; Elementary school teachers [124]; Sales Representatives [164]; Accountants [108]. On the other side of the spectrum are occupations which have absolutely no future: Clergy [-82 jobs due to lack of growth]; Optometrists [-24]; Shoe repairers [-51]; Longshoreworkers [-48]; Carpenters helpers [-44]; Mail carriers [-101]; Barbers [-144] and shoemaking machine operators [-194].

A recent meeting of business people and educators on the South Shore talked to workforce training and the relevancy of the occupational/career/vocational/technical training taking place here.

There seemed to be universal agreement that not enough attention was being paid to preparing students for work or providing them with vocational-technical skills they could fall back on if their college educations couldn't get them a job.

Subsequently, two task forces of businesspeople and educators have been formed to explore ways a collaborative effort can be put forth that draws attention to the need and brings about a change in direction.

Jim Carroll, State Street Bank and Trust, is chairman of the Chamber's Education for Employment Task Force. Maurice Daly, Quincy Public Schools, and Richard Brown from General Dynamics, are co-chairmen for the "Career-Occupational Exploration" task force, which will seek to develop creative cooperative approaches between business, government and labor to expose young people early on to the realistic job options available in this marketplace and then provide some "hands-on" work experience and introduction to the job environment.

Members of the task force include: Ken Cook, Sigma Instruments; Dave Hamilton, Patriot Ledger; Gene DeFelice, Canton Public Schools; George Stevens, Kemper Insurance; and John McCarthy, North Weymouth High School.

Patricia Whelan, North Quincy High School and Arthur Connelly, South Weymouth Savings Bank are co-chairmen of the "Educating the Educators" task force. The job of this group is to determine the process by which teachers develop an improved awareness of the needs of businesses as employers and help students prepare for a job.

Members of this group include: Joan Godfrey, Blue Hill Regional Technical School; Henry Soszynski, J & M Publications; Diane Walsh, North Quincy High School; Harry Carter, Quincy High School; and Warren Anderson, South Shore Regional Technical School.

The structure of this region's economy has been undergoing continuous change. Reduced working hours for those who have jobs plus double digit inflation have combined to severely reduce the real income of our labor force as thus their capacity as consumers to maintain adequate demand. They have also made job opportunities scarce in many categories. However, there are still numerous job vacancies in many critical occupations and these vacancies will continue as older workers leave the work force for retirement. The key to the new job seeker is successful identification of these emerging occupations.

As I see it, a continuous, open, frank exchange of ideas, needs and requests for help and cooperation between business, labor, educators, students and parents will go a long way towards changing the educational offerings here and the way curriculums are developed so that it can dynamically meet the emerging needs of both employer and employee.

Having the right person, with the correct attitude and skills to fill the right job at the right time is the objective. This group has its work cut out for it. If you want to help, contact Jim Carroll.

SPEAKING OUT

Closing Of NQHS Should Not Be A Surprise

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I am writing this letter concerning Mayor-elect LaRaia's comments at his surprise that North Quincy High School will be closed for the next three or four years.

I think Mr. LaRaia is a little naive when he mentioned, "It was never considered as a roadblock. If it is a crucial factor, why was the issue not brought up before the school addition was approved?" It may be hard for Mr. LaRaia to remember, but it was the city council that called for the various open hearings that were held.

At the hearing held March 26, 1974, and every consecutive hearing that was held, it was mentioned that the high school would be closed at least two years while the existing building was to be renovated. It was hoped at that time, that the high school would be able to remain open for a two year period while the addition was being built. Let me emphasize that it was "hoped" that the school could remain open, but that double sessions would be necessary for at least two years and possibly all four years.

It was too bad that the question of a new high school turned into a sectional issue. This wasn't a new school for North Quincy, but a new school for the city. So now the solution of an addition, could possibly cost the taxpayer more money, not to mention the far reaching impact it will have on the student population of Quincy. The taxpayer will have to pay the busing cost, teacher differentials will enter the picture, along with increased custodial fees. The quality of education will be under a severe test under such circumstances, the academic day may be shortened, extra-curricular activities and sports programs may be discontinued or suffer severely. It has been mentioned that double sessions can lead to more student problems, such as increased drug trafficking and the impact on Quincy Square.

It was too bad that it was an election year and such a compromising solution was allowed to pass. A vote for a new school never came about because it was felt that the proposal did not have enough support to pass. I don't think Mr. LaRaia ever grasped the vastness of the situation. Mr. LaRaia voted to put an addition onto the high school and then turned around and voted against the land to build the addition on.

The political arena has shut down for another two years. The question of North Quincy High School closing has now become the crucial issue because of its far reaching implications. Mayor-elect LaRaia and others are finally coming to their senses and realizing the seriousness of the problem. Possibly, in the near future, a vote for reconsideration and (vote for) a new high school may be in order.

Lydon Seeks Empty Trains For Wollaston, N. Quincy During Rush

City Councillor John J. Lydon has suggested the MBTA dispatch empty subway cars from the Quincy center Station during the morning rush-hour to avoid by-passing the Wollaston and North Quincy stops because of full trains.

Lydon said cars fill to capacity at the Quincy Center Station with riders he says are "out-of-town people using the Quincy Center MBTA garage." In a letter to MBTA Director Robert Kiley, he said:

"More than not, when a train is dispatched from the Quincy Center Station, it is directed to bypass Wollaston and North Quincy, leaving people waiting at these stations angered."

To correct the problem, especially in the up-coming cold winter months, Lydon suggested alternating full or near-full trains with empty ones, allowing Wollaston and North Quincy passengers to board trains at regular intervals and giving them an opportunity "to get a seat once in a while."

Lydon also suggested the third rail receive a heavy oiling to reduce icing problems during the winter months. He noted, too, installation of third rail heaters could eliminate the problem of icing, all together.

Alicia Coletti, Jane Ford Discuss Women's Commission

Librarian.

Mrs. Coletti addressed the group on the goals and organization of the Women's Commission. A discussion ensued in which most women present expressed an interest in the availability of health care services.

Mrs. Ford addressed a second group on the same subject. The discussion period following focused upon the need for Career Guidance programs for mature women.

There will be a meeting of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women on Monday, December 8 at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall. Members of the Commission are available for speaking engagements at no cost to the public. Interested organizations in the city should contact Alicia Coletti, 165 Samoset Ave., Quincy.

and headlines being set by a Compugraphic 7200 photo typesetting machine.

A paste-up artist demonstrated how stories are placed in their proper positions on the paste-up boards. The scouts also learned the general principles of offset printing.

Before leaving the office, each scout received a complimentary copy of The Quincy Sun.

How Does A Bank Work?

Our Guest Editors Show Us

A Bank President Tells Us

Nancy Bishop earned money on her paper route

By Nancy Bishop, 11

She saved her money. By Kim Morse, 11

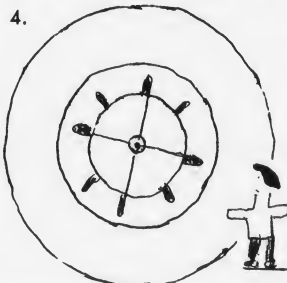

Hancock Bank, Quincy, sponsored this issue of Young Ideas. Linda Demarkles, 11, interviewed Mr. William Kelley, president, about how a bank works.

Nancy brought her money to the bank to make a deposit.

By Kate Feeney, 11

Nancy's money was put in a huge vault.

By James Damon, 11

Mr. Kelley, why should people put their money in the bank? Linda, the main reason is security. Money is safer in a bank. In a home, money can be lost, stolen or burnt. In a bank, even if there is a robbery or a fire, the money is not lost. It is insured. And the insurance company pays it back. Also, the bank actually pays you to put money in it. You get interest for money you put in the bank. The more money you put in and the longer you leave it, the more interest you get. Also, a bank offers services like checking accounts which make it easier to pay bills.

What do you do with the money people put in the bank?

We put some in reserve. But the bulk of it we lend to people who want to borrow. If a person wants to buy a house, start a business or pay a college tuition, he needs money. We lend it to him. We charge interest. A person who borrows from a bank must pay back more.

Where does the money come from that you pay out in interest?

Basically from the money we receive. We charge borrowers interest for the use of their money. We use this money to pay our employees, to pay for our building and our furniture.

What are a bank president's responsibilities?

The Board of Directors hired me to be responsible for the over-all running of the bank. It's like the sign Harry Truman had on his desk when he was President of the U.S. It said: "The buck stops here".

If the bank burned down, how would you pay your customers back?

It would be upsetting to our daily operations. But it would not effect our over-all operations. Most of our money is not here in the bank. What is here is insured. There is very little possibility of it being burnt because it is kept in a safe, fireproof vault.

What is the most amount of money anyone ever put in your bank?

Well, Linda, if you include big companies, the answer is several million dollars.

Do you loan money to everyone who asks?

Not everyone. The bank's money belongs to our depositors and our stock holders. We have to be sure that the people who borrow can pay it back. If we turn someone down there has to be a reason. Sometimes we are actually doing the person a favor by turning him down.

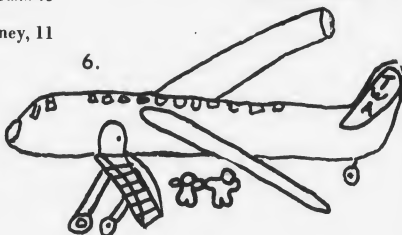

How do you discourage bank robberies?

We keep very little cash with the bank tellers. They have just enough to service customers. Also we have a surveillance system, a movie camera and closed circuit TV. We have an alarm system which can be tripped by a teller and it rings at the police station. We also have an identification system of our employees in the morning. Mostly we observe people and watch for anything suspicious.

Let's Meet So

How would you like to meet Paul Bunyan shopping in Quincy Square? Or Davy Crockett lumbering through the Hancock Bank? Or Blackbeard swashbuckling along Wollaston Beach? Mr. Levy's sixth graders at Squantum School are studying our American folk heroes. They have made statues of their favorites. Here they introduce their heroes.

BULLY FOR MIKE FINK

-- Drawing by Janice Porter and Linda Demarkles.

Mike Fink's the name! I was born at Fort Pitt in 1770. I'm a frontiersman and a boatsman. I'm an Indian scout and an expert shot. I've never lost a shooting contest with my trusty gun "Bang-All".

I'm big and strong. Some say I'm half horse, half alligator and half snapping turtle.

I even beat Davy Crockett in a shooting contest. Davy challenged me to several contests. We tied at driving nails, snuffing out candles and shooting flies off a cow's horn. But when I shot half a comb from Mrs. Fink's head, Crockett refused to shoot. He said he'd been beaten by me.

Janice Porter, 11, and Linda Demarkles, 11

Hi. I'm Annie Christmas. I'm a big bully. I can beat up anybody who challenges me. See my necklace? Each bead represents someone I have beaten up.

I'm a keelboat pilot on the lower Mississippi. I'm six feet eight inches tall in my bare feet. I have a blonde, curly mustache that I clip before I fight so no one can get a hold of it. It's the finest mustache on the river.

I can carry a bag of flower under each arm and one on my head. I'm so strong that people from the river towns say - "As strong as Annie Christmas."

MDC Praised, MBTA Hit On Town Brook Flooding

and the Rt. 128-Rt. 3 interchange - coupled with construction of storm drainage systems and the filling-in of marshes - have increased the amount of paved surface able to feed storm-water run-off into storm drains - drains which eventually empty into Town Brook.

Cerasoli said the "outdated drainage system" cannot handle the resulting flow of water, causing back-up and flooding in the area.

Quoting from the Draft Environmental Impact Statement [DEIS] prepared by the Department of Transportation, Cerasoli said culverts under the Granite spur, Centre St. and Columbia St. cannot accommodate "peak run-off" during severe storms.

"Flood waters back up behind these culverts," Cerasoli quoted from the document, "and spread out over low-lying terrain, interfering with traffic and damaging homes and businesses."

To deal with this problem, the MDC has proposed construction of a peak-flow conduit between the Granite spur under Centre and Columbia Sts., to Brook Rd. While Cerasoli favors this proposal he has also suggested construction of dikes to create two flood storage pools in two areas:

- North of Rt. 3, west of the Raytheon plant and west of the old railroad spur track leading to the quarries to check drainage area run-off below the old Quincy reservoir.

- In the marsh area adjacent to the South Shore Shopping

Plaza and the Lakeside School to detain storm waters, reducing peak flows and flash flood elevations.

According to the MDC plan, the peak-flow conduit would be implemented only during 25 to 100-year floods. Cerasoli wants the MDC to construct the dikes and two flood storage pools to accommodate waters generated during flash floods which have occurred in the area during recent years. He said:

"Flash storms such as those of the last two years may not ever be handled by the by-pass flood relief conduits. Therefore, residents can receive a little extra assurance for a little more expenditure."

Although Cerasoli favors the proposed construction of a deep rock tunnel running north to by-pass floods, he opposes a second alternative which proposes building a tunnel running south. The representative said construction of this tunnel could cause

"disruption of streets, property and homes in a thickly-settled residential area."

Cerasoli says he also favors the following proposals in the MDC's overall plan for the Town Brook area:

- Rehabilitation of the old Quincy Reservoir dam.

- Enlargement of culverts for the streets crossed by the brook in Brintree, at the Southern Artery crossing which connects to Town River Bay, and at Elm St.

- Expansion of the Town River channel.

Re-iterating his long-standing opposition to the proposed South Quincy MBTA Station, Cerasoli calls the Town Brook flood control project "a public necessity" regardless of whether or not the station is built. He said:

"I still oppose the South Quincy MBTA Station and I will until hell freezes over, but the fact still remains that flooding controls are needed now."

Urging the MDC to submit its

"preferred plan" with the minor modifications he suggested, Cerasoli said:

"I must commend the MDC for proposing a complete plan that deals with the whole nature of the problem rather than the cheap, piecemeal $1 million suggestions of the MBTA."

Cost estimates of the total Town Brook Watershed Flood Control project range from $15 to $20 million.

Interested parties are urged to attend next Thursday's public hearing.

Town Brook is the last of three watershed studies in the Quincy coastal stream area authorized by Congress in 1970. Public meetings on Hayward Creek and Furnace Brook Watersheds were held by the Corps in September 1973 and January 1975, respectively.

The Corps has completed plans and specifications for flood protection work in the Hayward Creek watershed and construction is anticipated by next spring.

Davis Picks Up 104 Votes, But Quinn Holds Seat

Harold Davis picked up 104 votes in the councillor at-large recount which ended Friday but failed to unseat incumbent councillor John J. Quinn.

Quinn will now enter his 10th term in the City Council.

The final tally was 17,171 votes for Quinn versus 16,867 for Davis with Quinn losing 16 votes and Davis gaining 88, bringing his total vote gain to 104. A total of 304 votes still separated the two.

Davis had never displayed optimism about unseating Quinn, saying last week "a mathematical error" would have had to occur to allow him to pick up the needed votes to unseat Quinn.

Other at-large candidates also picked up and lost votes in the recount. Final tabulations are as follows:

- Arthur H. Tobin: 20,449,

- Atty. Paul D. Harold: 19,183, up 58 votes.

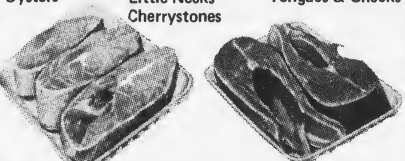

- Sabina Stenberg: 5,297, down 78 votes.

- Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt [who had withdrawn from the race]: 4,886, up 190 votes.

- Helen McDonnell: 473, up 77 votes.

Guest Editorial Waste Not, Want Not

In our everyday lives we are all wasting things. We waste food, trees, animal life, gasoline, heat, land, and paper. It is up to each of us to do our very best to conserve. We must use wisely what supplies we do have so that future generations won't have to do without necessary supplies.

We have made the following suggestions to help conserve energy:

* Turn off the lights when you're not using them.
Rosendo Castilla

* Recycle paper and use both sides of the paper.
Jacquelyn Gabriel

* Lower the thermostat.
Steven Thursten

* Don't open and close the refrigerator a lot.
Paul Medicke

* Walk short distances instead of asking for a ride.
Cindy Olsen

* Use "car pools" Lori Wright

* Tune your car up twice a year.
Jimmy Madden

* Use more sweaters and blankets.
Becky Rollins

* Turn off electrical appliances not in use.
Richard Gullicksen

We can make many suggestions to help conserve energy. Results will occur only when everyone does their part. What have you done to conserve energy today?

Got Any Ideas On Inflation?

Penny candy I used to get at the store now costs five cents. Tonic that was fifteen cents just a few months ago is twenty-five now. It's stupid! I believe we can stop inflation if we stop giving stuff away to other countries. If I could talk to the president, I would say please don't give food and gas away to other countries til we have enough here.

John Cataldo, 11

But, John, we can't be isolationists. We cannot exist all by ourselves. We need other countries for some things. I think we still have to help other countries - just less than we are now.

One of the things our family is doing to stop inflation is repairing things instead of getting new ones - like our clothes and our shoes. I have learned to sew.

If I could, I would get all the presidents from all the big companies and ask them to come down in prices - and keep them there.

sessions for Quincy and North Quincy High School students at Quincy High.

• Institute a "college-type" day where students from both Quincy and North Quincy High come and go according to their individual program schedules.

• Bus ninth grade students at North to Atlantic Junior High School, making that school house eighth and ninth graders only while keeping sixth graders in their parent schools.

• Transport North Quincy High School ninth graders to the Daniel Webster School in Quincy Point.

Admitting some alternatives "don't make a heck of a lot of sense," Creedon said the task forces will examine and evaluate all 15 alternatives with hopes of extracting useful and insightful information from even those suggestions which seem unworkable. Creedon said:

"We are going to explore all of the alternatives. We have that obligation."

While Creedon said the "ultimate decision" to close North or keep it open lies with the School Committee, he did say he plans to make a recommendation to the Committee in time to have a decision made by Jan. 15. He said he will make his evaluation based on consideration of three areas: [1] cost [2] public safety and [3] impact on the educational process.

According to Creedon, the total construction cost could be cut by over $1 million if North Quincy High School is closed, allowing work on both the addition and the renovations to proceed at the same time.

Creedon noted, too, Architect Barry Coletti projects the time needed to complete the proposed renovations and addition could be reduced by one year if the facility is closed, allowing uninterrupted work at the site and also reducing labor costs at the same time.

In weighing public safety factors, Creedon said he will evaluate the possibility of increased danger of fire if construction proceeds at North while students still occupy the building. Creedon met Monday with various city public safety officials and said he will seek the opinion of Fire Chief Edward Barry in pinpointing any construction obstacles which might interfere with the fighting of a fire at the site. He said:

"I want to know - Will there be room for a fire truck to get to the building?"

Creedon also said oil tanks heating the building, electrical wiring, gas connections and all utilities serving the present facility are located directly on the planned construction site and would have to be relocated if North Quincy High School remains occupied. He said:

"The oil lines, for example, would have to be pumped under, through or around the building. There are hazards there."

But he added, "These are not insurmountable problems."

Creedon said he will also consider the effects on the educational process if North Quincy High School remains open during construction. Noting that pile driving at the site is tentatively scheduled to begin in late July and to continue some three to five months, Creedon said:

"There will be a noise problem. It stands to reason there won't be much education going on in that building with the noise of heavy construction."

He also noted large holes will be cut into the back of the existing building to tie-in the school addition, causing heating and lighting problems for students who might be occupying the facility.

If double sessions do become a reality, students will have to be bused to alternate schools. Although Creedon does not at this time foresee the need to purchase added buses, he did not rule out the possibility.

Acknowledging electricity and heating costs at Quincy High School will increase if double sessions begin, Creedon said he feels any added cost in this realm will be offset by savings triggered by the closing of North.

"We would pack six years of use of that building [Quincy High School] into three years," he admitted. "But we won't be paying for heating or electricity at North during those construction years. That's the contractor's bill."

Noting the architect's drawings are "60 per cent finished," Creedon said the project could go out to bid in March with the general contractor's award announced in June.

Pile driving - which takes some three to five months - could begin in late July, according to Creedon. Construction could then begin approximately one year from now.

While the average projected construction time is three years, Creedon said the site work could take as little as two years or as long as four.

Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia expressed surprise at the possibility of double sessions at North Quincy High School, claiming that alternative was never discussed during city council meetings.

But School Committee Vice-Chairman Charles Sweeney countered LaRaia's remark, listing specific dates when the possibility of double sessions was "discussed openly" and in the presence of LaRaia.

Referring to a Jan. 3, 1975 day-long joint meeting of the City Council and School Committee, Sweeney said:

"Mr. LaRaia attended and he participated in that portion of the day's deliberations that had to do with the possibility of double sessions...It was made clear by the public safety officials present and by the superintendent of schools that if the solution to the North Quincy High School building needs problem meant renovation to the existing facility plus an addition, then the building would in all probability be closed to student use while construction was in progress."

"Again, I emphasize that Mr. LaRaia was present and participated in the discussion."

Thorough Election Probe Underway

[Cont'd from Page 1]

A total of six 50-vote block change-overs resulted from the Nov. 23 recount, with two of the changes occurring in Ward 3 - one in Precinct 1, the other in Precinct 4.

The remaining four vote shifts took place in Ward 1, Precinct 1; Ward 2, Precinct 2; Ward 4, Precinct 2; and Ward 6, Precinct 6.

Delahunt said the probe, originally scheduled for completion this week, will be extended another week. Asked the reason for the extension, Delahunt replied:

"I cannot comment on that." Delahunt also remained mum on specifics of the joint probe, declining to say which election workers had been questioned to date.

Two investigators from each office have been assigned to the probe, Delahunt said.

"We are conducting a joint investigation and are devoting considerable manpower and attention to it," he said.

Raiders Take On Woburn In Super Bowl

North Quincy's football team (9-1 and Suburban League co-champion) will face Woburn (10-0 and Middlesex League titlist) in the Division One Super Bowl Saturday at 1 p.m. at Boston College's Alumni Stadium.

North, beaten only by Brockton, finished as the top team in Division One, followed closely by Woburn.

The Raiders: strong defense will be severely tested as the Tanners are among the top scoring teams in Eastern Mass. They scored 347 points while holding the opposition to 42. They had six shutouts as they defeated Framingham South, 26-0; Reading, 39-0;

Stoneham, 35-8; Lexington, 41-14; Melrose, 47-0; Wakefield, 26-14; Watertown, 33-0; Burlington, 14-6; Belmont, 47-0, and Winchester, 39-0.

North Quincy scored 189 points to 47 for the opposition and shut out three teams. Five teams scored only one touchdown and Waltham was the only team to score two touchdowns.

The Raiders defeated Milton, 27-0; Malden, 25-6; Everett, 25-6; Weymouth North, 30-7; Newton North, 28-0; Brookline, 9-6; Waltham, 17-14; Weymouth South, 13-0, and Quincy, 15-8.

Tie Breakers Help Raiders

North Quincy may not have finished first in Division One and made the Super Bowl without the tie-breaker instituted a year ago.

The Raiders were three for

In The Mud Bowl

By TOM SULLIVAN

Statistically it had to be one of the most one-sided games in the long series.

But in the sea of mud at Veterans Memorial Stadium last Thursday morning, the 43rd football meeting between Quincy and North Quincy High schools was the spirited, bruising game that has become the trademark when the cross-town rivals meet.

To look at the figures, one would figure North won the game by three or four touchdowns. The Raiders gained a net of 195 yards rushing to just 36 for Quincy. North clicked off 17 first downs to Quincy's three [none in the second half]. Due to the atrocious conditions, neither team went to the air much but North picked up 36 yards on three for 10 and Quincy had just 16 on one for four. North ran off 79 plays to just 36 for Quincy.

But Quincy, thanks to one of several North turnovers in the first half, had an 8-0 lead until midway in the third period and, for the third time this fall, the Raiders had to go into the overtime "tie-breaker" to pull out a 15-8 win, tie for the Suburban League championship with Brookline and finish first in Division One in Eastern Massachusetts to qualify for next Saturday's Super Bowl game at Boston College.

"It was too bad we had to play in weather like this," said a happy Dave Burke, who piloted the Raiders to a 9-1 record in his first year as North coach. "Both teams deserve a lot of credit, playing on a day like this. Quincy was as good a team as we faced all year and I know how Hank [Conroy] feels. He had a frustrating season but he can be proud of the way his boys played today."

"I just can't say enough for our players and coaches. A key to our success was the way everyone got along together. The fact all of North Quincy's coaches stayed on when I replaced Ralph Frazier made things a lot easier for me. They knew the boys and we all worked together beautifully."

"I would like to pay tribute to the coaches, Tom Fitzgerald, Dick Meyer, Ken McPhee and Ted Sadowski, and also to my co-captains, Brian Doherty, Frank Strazzula, Jack Hatfield and Matty Constantino, for the way they all cooperated with me."

"I coached at Quincy for the past 11 years and know most of their players. I take my hat off to them today, they played a tremendous game."

Doherty, who had been sidelined for one game and carried only five times in another, had a great second half and gained 126 yards on the day, giving him 828 yards for the season. Mike Adams also ran well, picking up 59 yards, while Matty Constantino did some outstanding blocking and quarterback Mike Holleran handled the wet ball extremely well. He led North on an 82-yard touchdown drive in 16 plays in the third period with Doherty, who scored both touchdowns, carrying 11 times.

Conroy was naturally dejected after the heartbreaking loss.

"It was the same old story, the defense played its heart out but we couldn't get an attack going," he said. "All season long it has been the same. In our last five games in particular I'd put our defense up against anyone's, but you can't expect to win without moving the ball. I'm especially sorry for our seniors. Everyone played a fine game, but we lost to a good team and we all wish them luck in the Super Bowl. I'm very proud of all my players, they never gave up and put out 100 percent at all times."

Paul Vespaziani, Quincy's leading runner all season, ran well but the Presidents were shackled by a strong North defense. Quarterback Mark Buchanan, Paul Ramponi and Tony Cedrone all gave 100 percent but couldn't do much against the Raiders.

Conroy, like Burke, praised his assistant coaches, John Bogan, Mark Conroy, John Skladany and Pete Chella, and his co-captains, Paul Ferris and Vespaziani.

It would be unfair to single out anyone on either the offensive or defensive teams, as every player on the field gave his all.

On the North offensive line it was Cooper Jordan, Paul Santoro, Rich Marre, Bruce Hall, Marty Mulvey, Mike Nee, Harry Knudsen and Mike Kelley.

On defense it was Peter Hemphill, Alf McHugh, John Ryan, Jim Cooney, Rich Kennedy, John Collins, Frank Strazzula, John McKenna, John Desmond, Paul McGuigan, Ed McElaney and Hatfield.

And on the Quincy offensive line it was John Riggs. Steve Infascelli, Steve Coleman, Bob Nolan, Jim Conatas, Steve Sylva, Bob Varrasso, Kevin Donovan, Russ Affsa and Wayne Gardner.

And on defense, which did such a great job all year, it was Frank McNeill, Rich Hocking, Larry Calley, Bill Popsie, Sal Coscia, Tommy Spadorcia, Riggs, Mike Carloni, Pat Gibbons, Tony DiRocco and Frankie Guest.

In the first half North turned the ball over three times on fumbles. Quincy also had two pass interceptions but on one the Presidents were called for pass interference, giving North a first down. Another Quincy interception in the second half was voided by a penalty.

It was a bad pass from center on a punting situation which set up the Quincy touchdown early in the second period.

The game featured some excellent punting by North's McElaney, a junior, and Sophomore Lenny Picot of Quincy.

North had the first crack in overtime from the 10 and Doherty scored on fourth down and two. Quincy fumbled on the first play and North recovered, putting the Raiders in the Super Bowl.

"I just wish we had held the ball and had our four cracks at them," Conroy said.

THE GAME Was Just THAT!!

WE DID IT! -- North's Rich Marre [63] and Matty Constantino [38] echo the referee's touchdown signal after the Raiders pushed over a score. Mike Holleran [17] of North also demonstrates pleasure but it was a bitter pill for Quincy's Tommy Spadorcia [65].

MOMENT OF VICTORY -- Bedlam takes over Veterans Memorial Stadium seconds after North Quincy scored the winning touchdown that put the Raiders into the Eastern Mass schoolboy Super Bowl.

RUN TO DAYLIGHT -- North's Mike Holleran [17] sights the promised land of the end zone behind a key block by an unidentified Raider and scores the points that lifted North into an 8-8 tie in the third period.

● Memorable Sports Moments

Quincy's 1916 Team 8-1 With Jimmy LeCain At Quarterback

By TOM HENSHAW

The magnitude of the triumph was such that the local newspaper found it necessary to fall back on the Bible to caution the victors: "Don't get overconfident over your win, High School, for 'pride goeth before a fall.'"

The win was Quincy's 18-0 victory over Beverly on Sept. 30, 1916, one that touched off what was for many years Quincy's finest football season.

The Presidents, or rather the Red and Blue as they were then known for their colors, finished with eight wins and one loss under the coaching of assistant headmaster Frank L. Mansur.

The victory over Beverly was particularly significant since the North Shore eleven had been unbeaten the year before and even played a post season "bowl" game in Chicago.

The Quincy team that knocked off the Essex County champs lined up like this:

Ends, Lakin, Jenkins, McGeirle; tackles, Walker, Peterson; guards, Higgins, MacNamara, Winslow; center, Costello; backs, LeCain, Nixon, Gilliat, Mullen, Morris, O'Brien, Beaton.

Jenkins, Nixon and Gilliat scored the touchdowns that defeated Beverly but the game was dominated by the quarterbacking of Jimmy LeCain.

LeCain, who died only last January in Florida, went on to star at Tufts and returned to Quincy to coach the football and basketball teams in the 1920's and 1930's.

The season's prospects were further enhanced the Mark Simonelli scored for Barry's, assisted by Jim Martin and John Maloney.

Barry's retrieved a bit of prestige by beating Balducci's, 4-3, as Martin had a pair of goals and an assist and Pat Harrington and Mark Simonelli each had a goal and an assist.

John Maloney also drew an assist.

The Balducci goals came off the sticks of Dave Tapper, Pat Shea and Brian Shaw, with assists to Shea, Shaw and Steve Kelly.

Balducci's turned around and tripped Lydon-Russell, 3-2, with two goals by Kelly and a single from Matthew Gorman taking scoring honors.

Tapper and Eddie O'Brien assisted.

The Lydon-Russell goals were by Mark Loughman and Chris Doyle, assisted by Dave McArthur.

following week in the first home game at Merrymount Oval, now site of the Veterans Memorial Stadium, when Quincy beat Chelsea, 20-0.

The only cloud on the horizon was Weymouth, which was due to entertain Quincy on Friday, Oct. 13, at Clapp Memorial Field in East Weymouth.

How good was Weymouth?

Well, in the second game of the season, the Maroons beat Brantree so badly (51-0) that the latter called off the rest of its season.

Weymouth, which finished undefeated and went on to a post season game against Fitchburg, handed Quincy its only defeat of the year, 19-6.

Indications are that the game caused considerable hard feelings among the athletes for, 10 days later when Weymouth pummeled Brockton, 40-0, the local correspondent noted curiously:

"Brockton High followers and team are unlike the Quincy High in so far as they make no excuse but readily admit the best team won."

The Weymouth game was the opener of the season for the South Shore League, which included Quincy, Weymouth, Brockton, Rockland and Milton.

The following Friday at Merrymount Oval, Quincy did in Rockland, 54-0, with LeCain scoring three touchdowns.

Curiously, the game referee was Bert Woodlock, schoolboy sports editor of the Boston Globe, and the umpire was Walter Grannin of the Boston Post.

Bill Mullin's 23-yard field goal provided the margin in a

Montclair Moves Into Top Spot

Montclair Men's Club, the hottest team in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop, racked up four points Saturday to take over first place from the faltering Bryan Post.

Montclair has won 15 of its last 16 strings.

Capt. Mike Regan of Granite Lodge has high average of 108.6, followed by Brian and Peter O'Toole [each 105.13], Peter Martin [102.4], Joe Piazza [98.9], Joe Godas [98.4], Paul Anastas [97.8], Dick Hallberg [95.4], Dick Carr [94.8], Steve Silva [93.9].

Morrissey Club rolled both the weekly high three [1,335] and single [493], while Paul O'Toole of Bryan Post had the individual high three [364] and Brian O'Toole, who rolls for Burke Club had individual high single [135].

The O'Toole brothers, incidentally, have a 12-year-old sister, Maureen, who averages 95 with the Koch Club and will be looking for her second win on Channel 7's Candlepin Champs show Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Little Loop still has openings for five more bowlers in the Boys, 11 through 15 class. Interested youngsters should report Saturday at 9 a.m.

Sprague's Pot Shot Wins For Hot Shots

Rick Sprague's 15-foot turn around jumper at the gun gave Palmer Hotshots of Quincy a 91-89 victory over the Easton Huskies Sunday as they opened defense of the Taro Cup.

Ron Bradley, former Eastern Nazarene star, led the Hotshots with 24 points, a dozen rebounds and seven assists.

The Hotshots dominated the boards as John Osgood collected 17 rebounds, Bob Pike 16 and Tom Garwood 12.

Palmer will play the first home game of the Cranberry League schedule Saturday [Dec. 6] at 2:15 p.m. against New Bedford in the Salvation Army gym.

Lincoln-Hancock PTO Plans Family Sports Night

The Lincoln-Hancock Community School PTO will sponsor a Family Sports Night Dec. 8, at the school gymnasium at 6 p.m.

All parents of the school are welcome. It is requested that all children be accompanied by an adult and appropriate gym footwear be worn.

Junior B's Romp To 8th Straight

Quincy's high flying Junior B team romped over Weymouth, 15-4, Sunday in a league game to run its record to a perfect 8-0-0.

In its previous game the B team defeated Marshfield Kodiaks, 7-4, with Kevin Jago having two goals and Andy Collieran, Al Lancione, John Ryan, Ken Graham and Mark

Hurley one each. Mark McGilvary and Jim Fatsces played well in goal.

Suspicious Vo-Tech Fire Under Probe

The Quincy Fire Department and the state Fire Marshall's office are conducting a joint investigation into Monday's two-alarm fire at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Fire Chief Edward Barry said the probable cause of the fire was incendiary.

Asked if he felt the fire had been set, he replied:

"Yes, I would say so."

Contained to a large basement storage room, the fire sent heavy smoke throughout the building and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon cancelled Monday's classes at the school and at Quincy High School. Students returned Tuesday.

Evacuation of some 1,000 students from the building proceeded smoothly, according to both Barry and Creedon.

The storage room contained lumber used in woodwork classes, printing supplies and paper goods. Chief Barry said damage to a high stack of lumber and some insulation and piping surrounding the lumber inflicted a loss of some $2,000. He added damage to the building itself was "insignificant".

Calling the fire "of suspicious origin", Chief Barry said the investigators will be trying to ascertain who - "be it an adult, a student, anyone" - was in the storage area prior to the fire.

Dr. Creedon explained the storage area where the fire broke out is normally "off-limits" to students. Anyone wanting to draw supplies from the locked storage room must follow a certain procedure of signing out a key to the supply room.

Firefighter Clarence Mitchell fell from the ladder turntable atop an aerial ladder truck and suffered a concussion. He was admitted to Quincy City Hospital and reported in good condition Tuesday.

Two other firefighters were overcome by smoke inhalation battling the blaze which took some 45 minutes to bring under control.

Chief Barry said he expects the investigation to be complete within a week to 10 days.

Higuera Criticizes Killion As Amer. Party Candidate

Joseph Higuera of 64 Town Hill St., West Quincy, unsuccessful American Party candidate in the special Nov. 16 state representative primary, criticizes Democrat Joseph Killion for accepting victory on American Party ballots while not accepting the principles of the American Party platform.

Higuera feels the platform goes with the nomination.

Higuera said:

"I think this is the height of political expediency - a complete lack of principles - an example of the kind of political trickery and deceit for personal gain that has been common in Democrat-Republican politics for so long now that the public has lost confidence in most politicians.

The need for a serious and principled "3rd" party, with written positions on the issues, namely, the American Party, occurred partly because of this in the first place."

Responding to Higuera's statements, Killion told The Quincy Sun:

"I was somewhat distressed when I heard of Mr. Higuera's attack upon me. Apparently he nor the people he is spokesperson for want to consider that after a hard campaign, I received well over 1,000 votes in the special primary. I also received several write-in votes on the American Party ballot...but I didn't claim or want an American Party victory or support.

"If elected, I intend to represent the views and concerns of the citizens of the fourth Norfolk District and not the views of a third party or platform. My name is Joe Killion and I am running on my name."

'The Age Of Ballyhoo' Documents Roaring 20's

America in the 1920's will be the subject of the American Documents special, "The Age of Ballyhoo", to be seen Monday, Dec. 8 at 10 p.m. on WNAC-TV, Channel 7.

The first decade in American history ever to be completely captured on film, the roaring twenties were our quadiest era. "The Age of Ballyhoo" tells its story through the reflecting eye of the Hollywood movies and newsreels of the period.

An extraordinary picture of "life back then", "The Age of Ballyhoo" will be narrated by 20's movie queen, Gloria Swanson, and will feature photos and film clips from her private collection.

In the 20's came the first real rejection of the "American Ideal", the quiet life of the rural homestead. Suddenly, everyone moved to the city, skirts went up, morals down, and speakases opened. Women bobbed their hair, painted their lips, and powdered their knees.

As a special, "The Age of Ballyhoo" has already won two film festival Gold Medals, two Silver Medals, and four Emmys from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

"The Age of Ballyhoo," a Post-Newsweek production, is the third in a series of thirteen American Documents specials being presented by WNAC-TV as a bicentennial salute.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences recently honored veteran performer, GEORGE BURNS at its 20th annual ball. Burns is currently starring in NEIL SIMON's film, "The Sunshine Boys". Among the guests were his "Sunshine" co-star, WALTER MATTHAU. BOB HOPE served as master of ceremonies... CAROL BURNETT has a new children's book out designed to encourage children to choose professions that truly interest them rather than falling into the usual stereotypical patterns. "What I Want To Be When I Grow Up" is excerpted in the December issue of Ladies Home Journal. The popular CBS comedienne appears on the cover as the Journal's own "Christmas Carol"... NBC has dropped veteran sportscaster CURT GOWDY from its baseball and basketball telecasts, replacing him with JOE GARIGIOLA on baseball and DICK ENBERG on basketball. Gowdy will continue as the network's top football game... Several show business personalities use personalized license plates. FLIP WILSON has been using "KILLER" for some time, and JACK LORD is now driving around with "FIVE-O" emblazoned on his bumper... Keep an eye open for "The American Spirit", ABC's official 90-minute biennial variety celebration. To be aired in late January, it boasts such names as ANDY WILLIAMS, ROBERT YOUNG, SANDY DUNCAN, JAMES CAAN, SHIRLEY MACLAINE, FRANK SINATRA, RAY CHARLES, HELEN REDDY and THE OSMOND BROTHERS... Harper Junior Books is publishing Maurice Sendak's "Really Rosie" based on the CBS special with music by CAROLE KING... JULIE ANDREWS will host a Pittsburgh-produced Public Broadcasting Service special on children with learning problems. Learning disabilities are estimated to affect more than 2 million children in this country. The special will be similar to the PBS show on alcoholism hosted last season by CAROL BURNETT... ALAN KING will host a 90-minute ABC Wide World of Entertainment special titled "The Night People of Las Vegas"... Valley reports that the continuing investigation of television network involvement with the Nixon administration has indicated that CBS President Frank Stanton offered in 1971 to cooperate on network news stories in return for White House muscle to quiet a Congressional contempt citation over the controversial network documentary "The Selling of the President." The alleged incident has been flatly denied by Stanton... "Hello Cheeky", a new British comedy series, has been picked up in the United States by PBS for a spring premiere. Reportedly, PBS went after the show as a potential successor to "Monty Python's Flying Circus"... "Scrooge", the musical version of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol", will be aired on Monday, Dec. 22... HENRY FONDA will portray Douglas MacArthur and E. G. MARSHALL will portray Harry Truman when the two stars team in "Collision Course", a two hour ABC Theatre Drama to be broadcast in mid-January.

20 YEARS AGO

In December of 1955, NBC dropped "The Colgate Variety Hour" feeling that an all-comedy show would best battle the high ratings of "The Ed Sullivan Show"... Spring Byington, as Lily Ruskin, was thought to be dealing with a bookie on "December Bride"... Jackie Cooper told a meeting of the Hollywood Advertising Club that the trend of controlling television production on the West Coast was bound to lead to stagnation in the television industry... Eddie Cantor and Gale Storm were the guests on "The Milton Berle Show"... A contestant on "The $64,000 Question" answered his question incorrectly. However, host, Hal March, mistakenly accepted the answer as correct. Because of the slip, the contestant not only received his $32,000 prize, but was allowed to return the following week and try for the top prize... Cloris Leachman was starring in "The Unsinkable Mrs. Brown", the story of a survivor of the Titanic disaster who rose from the position of chambermaid to immense wealth and social status... Broderick Crawford was starring in "Highway Patrol"... Julie Andrews and Bing Crosby were filming "High Tor" for a CBS showing in March... Barry Nelson was seen each week in "My Favorite Husband"... Edgar Bergen was set to star in his first regularly scheduled television program, a quiz show titled, "Do You Trust Your Wife?" The ventriloquist was to use his three dummies, Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd, and Elsie Clinker, in posing questions to married couples. The prize? $100 a week for a year... Friday night at 8 everybody was at home watching "I Remember Mama"... Melvin Douglas was starring in "Thunder in Washington", a television play in which a distinguished businessman became an advisor to the President... Ernie Kovacs was returning to television with a morning show. His female vocalist was to be Edith Adams, the real-life Mrs. Kovacs, otherwise known as Edie Adams... Dagmar, Ilka Chase and Ogden Nash were on "Masquerade Party"... At NBC, Dick Van Dyke was scheduled to do a bit of scene changing for "The Morning Show". Plans called for Dick to fly to Paris on a certain weekend and make a film on a Saturday morning for showing the following Monday. Similar excursions were planned for Mexico and Havana... Lucy Ricardo was masquerading as an Italian beauty in order to test Ricky's fidelity... Eric Severeid was presenting the CBS Sunday News on Sunday afternoons from 3:30 to 4... CBS's "You Are There" took viewers to Eli Whitney, who was busy inventing the cotton gin... Warner Anderson and Tom Tully were keeping things under control on "Line-Up"... Bert Parks was screaming "Stop The Music"... and The High School Teachers Association of New York was issuing a protest against radio and television programs that presented, in its opinion, a "degrading and unwarranted stereotype of a teacher." It charged that demeaning characterizations of teachers had occurred on "Mr. Peepers", which was no longer on the air, and on "Our Miss Brooks."

Lynde, Rivers Win AGVA Awards

The ceremonies for the American Guild of Variety Artists' Entertainer of the Year Awards will be broadcast in a 90-minute special on CBS next month. However, the majority of the winners already know who they are.

Ironically, of the 11 winners already announced, only four are members of AGVA.

The rules of the competition stipulate that only AGVA members may vote, but those members may vote for whomever they wish, in or out of the union.

While AGVA predominantly involves live entertainment, particularly in nightclubs and arena concerts, Paul Lynde, who works primarily in television, wound up winning the award for male comedy star of the year.

Other award winners were Joan Rivers, female comedy star of the year, John Denver, male singing star, Shirley Bassey, female singing star, Ben Vereen, song and dance star, Tony Orlando and Dawn, vocal group, Cathy Rigby, novelty act, Linda Ronstadt, country star, Tony the Wonder Horse, animal act, and Ben Vereen again as rising star of the year. Liberate won as instrumental act of the year.

Performers are eligible if they have performed before live audiences. Thus, Paul Lynde's working in front of a live studio audience for television puts him in the running.

The final awards, Entertainer of the Year, and a special Golden Award, have not yet been announced.

'146,851 Surplus From Water Main Project

By TOM HENSHAW

The city of Quincy has wound up with a surplus in its treasury - but it's going to take an act of the legislature to spend it.

The surplus is $146,851.70 left over from a $200,000 bond issue authorized in 1973 to install water mains to Quarry St. and build a standpipe.

Due to a depressed construction market, said Water Division Supt. Owen J. Eaton, the city was able to have the water main constructed for about $76,000.

That left some $124,000 in the city kitty, which has since accumulated $22,964.39 in interest.

But since the bonded money was raised specifically for the Quarry St. project, it cannot be used for any other purpose until two years after the original work is completed.

The Quarry Street main was accepted by the city in March, 1975.

The two-year restriction can be lifted only by act of the State Legislature.

Eaton's request for legislative action was referred to the City Council's Public Works Committee Monday night until Councillors James A. Sheets and John J. Lydon Jr. had a chance to study it.

Eaton said the money probably would be used on a project authorized for South Street.

"Rather than borrow more money," he said, "why not use what we have now."

$32,987 Approved For Library

A request for $32,987.25 by the Library Department was approved by the City Council Monday night - but only after some councillors got in a few licks for branch libraries in their wards.

The money eventually will come from State Aid to Free Public Libraries.

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis E. Harrington took the opportunity to air constituent fears that the Quantum branch of the library has been closed.

Not so, said Library Director Warren Watson. It's open on the same schedule as always.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets expressed the concern of some parents about summer programs at the Furnace Brook branch library.

Watson promised to keep Sheets informed when such matters come before the library board.

Alongi Named City Recreation Director

Mayor Walter Hannon has appointed Charles L. Alongi Jr. as City Recreation Director to succeed the late William F. Ryan.

Alongi, who lives at 125 Common St., West Quincy, is a lifelong resident of the city and has worked for the Recreation Department 11 years.

A 1963 graduate of North Quincy High School, he graduated from Northeastern University in 1970 with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Community Recreation. He is presently completing his thesis requirements towards a Master's Degree in Community Recreation at N U which he attended evenings.

While at Northeastern, his academic achievements included freshman honors, dean's list, graduating first in his class. He received the Ruth Page Sweet Scholarship Award.

During Alongi's 11 years with the Recreation Department, beginning in 1965, he worked as a counselor at Happy Acres Day Camp for Retarded Children in the summer and moved up from assistant recreation leader to recreation supervisor during the winter season.

On July 21, 1970 he was appointed assistant director of recreation. He was promoted to Administrative Assistant on April 1, 1975, had carried out the duties of Mr. Ryan during the latter's illness and following his death last August.

Alongi, a member of the Quincy Youth Commission is also a guest lecturer at Northeastern University in all facets of Recreation Administration and Programming.

Along with Earl Vermillion, Special Needs teacher with the Quincy School System, he has co-authored a chapter "Day Camping for the Retarded" for a test book entitled "Therapeutic Recreation - Ideas and Experiences" by Professor Frank M. Robinson.

His Professional Associations include the Massachusetts Recreation and Park Society, American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation and the National Recreation and Park Association.

Alongi was the first Fund Raising Chairman for the Massachusetts Special Olympics Association Inc., Norfolk County District. Many of Quincy's retarded children have had the opportunity to compete in the 1970, 1972 and 1975 International Special Olympics held in Chicago, Illinois, Los Angeles, California and Pleasantville, Michigan.

Tobin Co-sponsors Bill To Reduce Meals Tax

Senator Arthur H. Tobin announces he has co-sponsored a bill that would further regulate the Meals Excise Law.

The bill, which carries an emergency preamble, reduces the meals tax from eight percent to five percent. The bill appears to have bipartisan support in the Senate.

Tobin said that it is evident the eight percent meals tax "is hurting too many people who can ill afford at this point in time to be hurt further by the imposition of these additional taxes."

The bill, if passed, will take effect Jan. 1. The eight percent meals tax burden, which was imposed by Chapter 684 of the Acts of 1975, "is too high a price for the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to pay for the meals they are sometimes forced to purchase outside of their home," Tobin said.

'100 For Girls Home

The Quincy Youth Commission has received a $100 contribution from the Weymouth Elks Lodge to help support the commission's Home for Girls.

The check was presented to John Mahoney, chairman of the commission, at a recent meeting of the Weymouth Elks.

"This year the Elks all over the country are sponsoring programs aimed at reducing drug abuse," said Exalted Ruler James Cohan in making the presentation. "We're enthusiastic about the program being developed in Quincy and Weymouth Elks want to participate in it."

Mahoney indicated that this is one of many contributions which have been made to support the Home for Girls, which assists girls who are in need of help and support during a particular life crisis.

The Home for Girls, sponsored by the Quincy Youth Commission, is part of Mayor Walter J. Hannon's program of increasing services for the youth of the community.

4 Candidates Square Off Tuesday

Light Vote Seen For State Representative Special Election

City Clerk John Gillis predicts only 3,500 (25 per cent) of the 14,000 Quincy residents eligible to vote in next Tuesday's special final election for state representative will cast ballots.

Gillis said "the time of year and the weather" will combine to keep voters away from the polls in the city's Fourth Norfolk District.

Twenty-six per cent - 3,709 of those eligible - voted in the Nov. 18 special primary in which Councillor James A. Sheets won the Democratic nomination and Atty. Joseph Killion, the American party nod.

Sheets, Killion and two Independent candidates, Councillor John Lydon and Marilyn Hanabury, will square off in the election.

The representative's seat was vacated after the August appointment of William D. Delahunt as Norfolk County District Attorney.

Sheets pinpoints the areas of crime, fiscal responsibility and insurance rates as priorities in his campaign. He favors an examination of the court case loads, a long-range study of the state's tax system and an entire reorganization of the system used to set automobile insurance rates.

Killion, who ran as a Democrat in the primary, placing second to Sheets, accepted the American Party nomination but insists he will uphold "the principles of a Democratic way of life."

If elected, Killion said he will concentrate his efforts on cutting wasteful spending.

Killion also says he favors setting of the auto insurance rates earlier in the year as well as scrutiny of the financial statements submitted by the insurance companies.

Mrs. Hanabury outlined the areas of unemployment, the high cost of living and taxes as her priorities. She said she favors a federal job program to help create jobs for the unemployed. She favors a graduated income tax and opposes 100 per cent valuation.

John Lydon says inflation, unemployment and renewed competition in energy and food markets will be his areas of concern. He also favors adequate health care for all citizens of the state.

Jose Higuera, who had hoped to gain enough write-in votes in the primary to place his name on the final American Party ballot, only received four write-in votes versus the 15 which landed Killion that party's nomination.

In accepting the American Party nomination, Killion said he has been a life-long Democrat and added, "I don't intend to change it." He said:

"My acceptance of the American Party nomination should in no way construe that I adhere to or ally with the American Party platform."

Blasting Killion for this statement, Richard L. Tringue, vice-chairman of the American Party State Committee, wrote to Killion, asking:

"If the American Party platform appears in its entirety in the Quincy papers, can you for the record be specific as to which principles or what particular plank in the platform you object to?"

He continued, "You see, Mr. Killion, we are quite serious with our beliefs and principles. We expect any candidate running under the American Party banner to not only propose them but to live by them, the essence of which is: 'less government, more individual responsibility and with God's help a better world.'"

The Fourth Norfolk District includes West Quincy, Wollaston Hill, part of Wollaston on the Albion Rd. side and parts of Montclair.

Voting places are:

Ward 4, Precinct 1 - Morrisette Legion Post.

Ward 4, Precinct 2 - Willard School.

Ward 4, Precinct 3 - Morrisette Legion Post.

Ward 4, Precinct 4 - Gridley Bryant Church.

Ward 5, Precinct 1 - First Baptist Church.

To Continue Private Practice

Dr. Mahoney Retires As Health Commissioner

Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney will retire as the city's Health Commissioner Friday, ending a five-year term which brought expanded health services to the citizens of Quincy.

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Mahoney cited "personal reasons" for wanting to be relieved of his duties three weeks before the end of his term.

His term expires Jan. 5. Dr. Mahoney, however, will continue his private practice.

Dr. Mahoney began his career as the city's health commissioner in September 1970 when then-mayor James A. McIntyre appointed him to fill the unexpired term of the ailing Dr. John T. Foley. Mayor McIntyre then appointed Dr. Mahoney to a five-year term as health commissioner - a term which began Jan. 5, 1971.

In his letter to Mayor Hannon, Dr. Mahoney wrote: "I wish to express my thanks to you for your cooperation and understanding in regard to the problems of the Quincy Health Department. Your deep interest and concern have brought about many beneficial services for the people of Quincy. It has been a pleasure to serve as Health Commissioner during your administration."

Educated in Chelsea Public Schools, Dr. Mahoney graduated from Boston College and received his medical degree from Tufts School of Medicine in 1936. He has been in private practice in Quincy 38 years.

During his five years as health commissioner, Dr. Mahoney expanded the city's dental clinic program to serve school-age youngsters through grade 12. Previously, the services were offered to children up through grade 6.

Throughout his administration, Dr. Mahoney placed special emphasis on child immunizations in Quincy. He estimates a full 85 per cent of the city's school-age children have completed the full immunization program offered in the city.

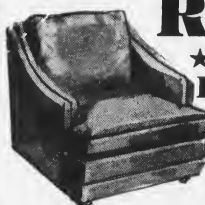

The department was active also in offering services to adults, helping to diagnose disease and refer patients for further treatment.

Dr. Mahoney's retirement as health commissioner in no way signals his retirement.

"I'm going to work," he declares. "My term has expired and I'm going back to the quiet, peaceful private practice of medicine and I'm going to enjoy myself."

Today's Women

VISIBLE WOMAN

Amelia's message still inspires

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

"Amelia has become a symbol of new womanhood — a symbol, I predict, that will be emulously patterned after by thousands of young girls in their quest for the Ideal."

These words were written about an Atchison, Kans., aviatrix, Amelia Earhart, by the editor of Cosmopolitan when he presented that magazine's new aviation editor to the readers back in 1928.

And still, in the 1970s, we are searching for models ... symbols, as it were, of new kinds of women. This woman gained the respect of millions around the world by her numerous aviation feats; surprised thousands with her egalitarian attitudes about work and marriage; broke millions of hearts with her tragic disappearance at sea in 1937. So who was she, really?

Since it's so important to know what our children are reading about women, past and present, I first checked an autobiography from the juvenile department of the library. It was quick reading, entertaining and slick, but my heart sank as I read about her childhood.

She, according to this book, lived in a huge house overlooking the Missouri River, and was dearly loved by a wealthy grandfather and a doting attorney father. They liked the tomboy in Amelia and encouraged her to ride fast sleds and try her intellectual wings.

My heart fell, because it reminded me of other biographies I'd read as a child. They left the definite impression that unless one were born with special advantages, plus loving and superior parents, all was lost. One couldn't amount to a thing. Louisa May Alcott, Clara Barton, and all the women who tugged my curiosity seemed to have fairy-tale childhoods.

But those who edit and buy children's literature are changing, and little girls now tend to be told the truth about their world. I'm glad, because the adult version of Amelia Earhart's life presented a touching, vulnerable and obviously brilliant personality ... someone I could understand.

She actually grew up in a world of contradictions and disappointments. An alcoholic father; a spoiled and dependent mother; a wealthy grandfather ... and an urge to be adventurous, to try the impossible.

She must have been lonely and discouraged at times; she must have been frightened and uncertain; even so, she insisted on being herself, sticking to her beliefs.

During an era when women were expected to stay home and raise children she sought a career; she eventually married, but only with the understanding that she would continue to fly.

During her blazing career, many suggested that Amelia wasn't entirely feminine — the sort of criticism often leveled at brave and competent women — and even as her biographer struggled to assure the reader that AE was entirely womanly, some earlier reader had scrawled graffiti in the margin to the contrary. I couldn't resist the temptation to scrawl my own remark next to it ... WHO REALLY CARES?

Amelia left a message for all women in a letter she wrote to her husband before her fatal attempt to fly around the world. The letter was to be opened only if she died, and it contained these sentences:

"Please know I am quite aware of the hazards.

"I want to do it because I want to do it. Women must try to do things as men have tried. When they fail, their failures must be a challenge to others."

In those last words I think I found the real Amelia Earhart. Or did she find me?

Put Some Sparkle In Your Party

Parties and punches just naturally go together. And at holiday times, a colorful red punch served in a brimming bowl can be the center of attraction on your buffet table. Serve the punch with hors d'oeuvres or with sweet tidbits such as petit fours or miniature fruitcakes decorated with red icing point-tias with centers made from yellow gumdrops.

The punch starts with a base of strong tea which gives body without masking the flavors of the various juices with which it is combined. For a spirited version of the punch, omit the ice cubes in the recipe below and add a bottle of chilled champagne. Either way, the punch will be a sparkling addition to your party.

Sparkling Christmas Punch

(Makes 4 quarts or twenty-two 6 oz. servings)

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 quart water | 1 (18 oz.) can unsweetened pineapple juice, chilled |
| 6 leabags | 1 (28 oz.) bottle carbonated collins mixer, chilled |
| 1 (46 oz.) can fruit juice—red Hawaiian style punch, chilled | Ice cubes |

In medium saucepan, bring water to a full rolling boil. Remove from heat and add teabags. Cover and let stand 5 minutes. Remove teabags. Cool tea to room temperature. In large punch bowl, combine tea, punch and pineapple juice. Slowly stir in collins mixer. Add ice cubes. Ladle into champagne glasses.

OUR CHILDREN

Reading to child bores this parent

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

how expensive all of them are these days. Fortunately we're all healthy, or our situation would be worse.

Lately I find myself avoiding the toy sections of department stores with their costly dolls, games, computerized toys and all the rest. It breaks my heart, but there's nothing I can do about it — or is there?

A. Young children like boxes, pots, pans, inexpensive crayons, and all the improvised toys and activities that any good preschool teacher can tell you about. Older ones can develop games out of paper, pencils, words and the ideas that creative elementary teachers always use.

Many of those big colorful boxes in the toy stores are filled with exciting games, but much is to be gained by children creating their own pleasures.

Remember the endless hours of sheer joy a lot of us had as kids so many years ago with no more than a piece of chalk and a sidewalk on which we drew a "hopscotch" or "Sky Blue" design or when we sat on the steps and played "pie man" or "oly-auction-free" (or however it was pronounced or spelled). I don't think our parents felt, or should have felt, guilty for "depriving" us. Actually they were giving us something very valuable, a chance to exercise and develop our ingenuity and intellect.

Q. Is reading with a young child really so important? I've done it with each of our children, and now the youngest (our third one) is 4 years old.

I'm bored to death, but I keep on night after night after night just the same. It's really a drag.

I wish you'd tell me it's of no value.

A. All right, I will: It's not only of no value, but actually harmful — the way you are doing it.

Reading with children should be a joy, a pleasure for both parent and child. If it isn't, something is wrong.

Parents who divide between themselves what can be such an enjoyable experience, books that are colorful and exciting for adults and children, and youngsters who look forward to the daily sharing of a world that can come alive through books are all the necessary ingredients.

You might try getting your husband or wife or older children in on the act, visit a bookstore or library for new titles, and skip a day or night once in a while.

But to go on as you are with what is apparently sheer drudgery is one of the surest ways of turning a child off to reading.

Q. I feel so guilty because I can't provide my youngsters with the marvelous toys that are now on the market, but they are just too expensive. Food, rent and utilities have to come first, and you know

Tent-shaped letters show tendency to stand firm

By DOROTHY ST. JOHN JACKSON

Dear Dorothy:
It's difficult for me to be two-faced. Therefore, I am blunt and don't make any friends. Is there a cure for this?

P.T.

Dear P. T.:
We were only meant to have one face.

Two faces, and we're in trouble.
You are extremely straightforward, seen in the lack of beginning strokes. Socially, this is your detriment. It hurts other people, because it lacks any softening agent. It acts as a powerful defense trait. Your ego has been injured, and you're going to protect it at any cost. Being defensive is normal.

We all do it, as our ego is the most precious possession we've got. It's not why, but how, we defend that creates an influence upon our social relationships.

It's your strong tendency to present a highly opinionated image. Once you express an opinion, right or wrong, you stand firm, seen in the tent-shaped t's and d's. And, speaking of faces, you don't want to lose it by admitting you've made a wrong decision.

You are blunt and abrupt because of your inflexible nature, brought about by an unsettled you.

With all of us, Old Man Ego runs the show. He dictates our actions and reactions.

Each of us is unique and different, but we all respond to response. People we don't handle and befriend, don't handle and befriend us. But, people we like and accept are people who like and accept us.

PREPARE FOR EMERGENCY

Parents who know the location of the nearest emergency hospital and the quickest route there, can many times avert tragic consequences to childhood accidents. Prompt emergency medical attention can prevent needless deaths and serious crippling conditions resulting from childhood accidents.

Parents should take a practice drive to the hospital to be certain of the fastest, most direct route to take, if and when an emergency strikes. Precious minutes lost searching for a hospital at the time of the accident can endanger the life of the child.

It is not uncommon for parents to take time after an accident to spruce up their children and themselves, before going to the emergency hospital. Don't! Minutes lost may be vital.

Also a list of emergency telephone numbers should be affixed to the phone. This list should include the numbers of your family doctor, fire department, emergency ambulance service, emergency hospital and police department.

North Quincy:

We're Proud Of You

It was a disappointment to North Quincy's Red Raiders and their loyal fans, when it turned out to be the impossible dream.

But last Saturday at the Division One Super Bowl at Boston College, it was simply a case of a good North team finding itself against a better Woburn team.

There were no alibis for the 20-7 loss.

Raider Coach Dave Burke said it all:

"What can I say, we just ran up against an inspired team and they were great both ways."

North was good, all season, game after game. But on this particular Saturday, Woburn was better and deserved to win.

But the Raiders—like the Red Sox in the World Series—can hold their heads high.

They, first year head coach Dave Burke and his assistants, gave local fans a football season to remember. When has a coach making his debut done as well? When has a team thrilled its fans more than this one with a 9-1-0 season record including three victories in pressure-packed tie-breaker overtimes?

And when has a team played better fundamental football?

It may have been a disappointment to lose at the Super Bowl. But they got there, which is the important thing. And they got there the hard way—winning when they had to, coming from behind when they had to.

As Coach Burke put it:

"I'm sorry for the seniors they couldn't have ended with a Super Bowl win, but as far as I am concerned, this didn't take anything away from a very satisfying season."

To which we would like to add:

Congratulations, North. We're proud of you.

QUINCY SUN

SPEAKING OUT

Remember Pearl Harbor

Editor, Quincy Sun:

It's been 34 years and to us that will always remember where we were when we first heard about the "Attack"; "Her Flag is still flying proudly."

On the Island of Oahu, one of the Hawaiian chain, this historic story unfolded and should be remembered this year. Particularly because Emperor Hirohito visited the United States this year. His visit to Oahu while hailed by all, was in awe by some.

The schedule did not allow for the Emperor's plane to come in over Pearl Harbor as most planes usually do. The really historic event took place when the Japanese Emperor, in a rare departure from tradition [bows only] shook hands with our own 4-star Admiral N. F. Weisner, head of Pacific Fleet. The latter wore the Order of the Rising Sun among his military decorations. I'm sure of wounded on that day of infamy—plus on Aug. 6, 1945 in the morning the Japanese people lost 500,000 at Hiroshima; tragic events both—similarly sad to all concerned. War to end all wars. Peace to keep peace for all forever.

To visit the Arizona Memorial, the Battleship that went down in 9 minutes after the attack with over 1,000 of her men plus rear Admiral Kidd her Division Commanding officer and see the oil slick still surfacing and to know that some of the doomed men lived till New Years Eve awaiting rescue. "Her flag still flies" keep our Nation strong and free.

On our only state that has a King in it's history; the red carpet went out and the headlines were in Japanese. Aloha should be adopted as our National "Peaceword". The king had visited Japan 94 years ago and the visit was returned this October. On board the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay the Japanese surrendered. This year Peace Prevailed.

SUNBEAMS

The Guessing Game:
Who's Getting What?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The rumor-mill is working overtime turning out appointments supposedly to be made by Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia when he takes over in January.

Many names are being tossed around but the fact is that LaRaia and his top campaign aides so far have done a good job keeping outsiders' guessing.

Two names have caused considerable interest among the politician watchers: John Salenius of North Quincy and Michael Peatridge who ran for the Ward 5 City Council seat against Warren Powers two years ago.

The pair flanked LaRaia as he marched in the Christmas Festival Parade and caused raised eyebrows among the politically oriented all along Hancock St. from Wollaston to Quincy Sq.

For Salenius to be out stepping with the mayor-elect really wasn't too great a surprise. He had been visibly active in LaRaia's camp since around the preliminary election.

But Peatridge couldn't have caused more of a stir marching alongside LaRaia in the parade if he had been the Jolly Green Giant. Peatridge had not been noticeable to most observers during LaRaia's run for mayor.

Salenius' three-mile spotlight march with LaRaia has fueled speculation he will be the new mayor's executive secretary. (Although Arthur Casey of North Quincy, who knocked on doors with LaRaia is also being mentioned for that post.)

But what about Peatridge? Since his march down Hancock St., the Speculation Corps figures he must be in line for an appointment, too. But what? Right now he's the mystery man in the picture.

Salenius and Peatridge, however, are close friends. In fact Salenius was Peatridge's campaign manager when the latter ran fairly close but unsuccessfully against Powers in Ward 5.

Word around was that Peatridge was going to run for state representative against incumbent Joseph Brett next year with Salenius again his campaign manager.

But that could get a little sticky, if true, because Brett gave his whole-hearted support to LaRaia this year. And it wouldn't seem that Salenius if names executive secretary could run Peatridge's campaign next year against Brett. Or Peatridge could march beside LaRaia this year and run against Brett next year.

ANYWAY, IF YOU want to play the current guessing game as to who's going to be named to what, try these for size straight from ye old rumor factory:

Atty. Thomas Williams, campaign coordinator, city solicitor.

Atty. Louis Bertucci, assistant solicitor.

Grace Saphir, who tossed her support to LaRaia after her preliminary election defeat, commissioner of natural resources.

Sarah Saccone, now an accountant in the city auditor's office, budget director. (She's also being mentioned for city treasurer-tax collector although some observers now think LaRaia will keep likeable and dedicated Robert Foy.)

Contractor Ralph Cappola or Vincent Lbicero, public works commissioner.

Locicero is superintendent of buildings for the O'Connell Brothers, apartment developers.

Agatha Deschenes, principal clerk in the purchasing department, city purchasing agent.

Pasquale DiStefano, director Veterans Services, executive director Council on Aging, planning director—take your choice. (He's also being mentioned as the mayor's executive secretary.)

Robert McCarthy, press secretary.

Hugo Fabrizio, Quincy Housing Authority board next year to succeed Hugo Salati.

Those are some of the guesses being made around town. How many are right, how many wrong? Time will tell.

YOU MAY SOON be able to stop guessing about some of them. LaRaia reportedly plans to announce some of his appointments shortly—perhaps Friday night at a friendship dance for him at Quincy Armory.

The event will be from 8 p.m. to midnight. Tickets, at $6 per person, may be obtained by contacting James Short at 471-0011. Over 1000 are expected to turn out.

ANOTHER POLITICAL SOCIAL is on for tonight (Thursday) for Councillor John Lydon, Independent candidate for state representative in Quincy's Fourth Norfolk District. A rally and dance will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, Hollis Ave. and Hancock St. Tickets available at the door.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Firefighter Clarence Metcalf of Montclair Ave., North Quincy was injured during the recent two-alarm fire at Quincy Vocational Technical School. Metcalf suffered a concussion when he fell from the ladder turntable atop an aerial ladder truck.

Several students representing the Vocational Industrial Club of America (VICA) at the school visited him at Quincy City Hospital and brought him a fruit basket.

A newspaper account (not The Sun) said "Students began applauding and cheering" after Metcalf took the fall. But School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creodon clarifies that report:

When Metcalf fell from the ladder, he turned a somersault and immediately hopped to his feet. It was then the students cheered—thinking he was uninjured, not hurt.

Creodon, incidentally, says he was "very, very proud" of the way students conducted themselves throughout the fire and evacuation.

By PAUL HAROLD

Supporters of a new secondary school in the northern section of the city appealed to civic, fraternal and PTA groups in North Quincy, Wollaston, and Squantum for their support in the campaign for a new school.

The largest crowd in 30 years — 85,000 — viewed Quincy's Christmas parade. This was the largest number of persons on hand for a parade since the city's Tercentenary parade in 1925.

Winners of second and third place trophies were the "Christmas in Other Lands" float by Mass. Fields PTA, and "Undneath the Christmas Tree" by the Houghs Neck Community Council. Senator Charles Hedges was parade chief marshal while Rev. Thomas Tierney of St. John's was parade chairman for the fourth year in a row.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Common Situs Picketing Is Bad News

By ERIC SWIDER

The U.S. Congress is about to enact a devastating piece of legislation which would seriously hamper our economic recovery and could virtually halt construction in the country.

Under the high sounding name, The Construction Industry Collective Bargaining Act of 1975, our congressional representatives are preparing to permit construction trade unions to engage in secondary boycott picketing against innocent third parties.

In any given construction project there are about 17 crafts, subcontractors, and unions involved. Up until now the law has made it illegal for any single union on strike to close down the project to the other crafts. Under this new scheme, any one of the 17 unions involved in a dispute with a subcontractor could bring the whole project to a screaming halt.

Secretary of Labor Dunlop, with the support of organized labor, is pushing this legislation and wants to gain a presidential signature before year end.

While you might concur with the basic premise that a building trades employee should be able to peacefully picket his employment site during a labor dispute with his own employer, I'm sure you'll agree that the idea that an outside employee should be forced or allowed to join in a picket against an employer not his own makes no sense.

For example, a plumber should be able to picket against his own employer, but should not be forced to picket against an electrical employer, or for that matter, be allowed to picket against the general contractor. It is the secondary boycott aspects that are extremely troublesome, since the general contractor on any project plays no part in negotiation of wages and fringe benefits of employers of subcontractors nor does a plumbing firm decide the wages of an electrician. Any given construction project is only a temporary marriage between subcontractors.

Congress seems oblivious to the fact that the country as a whole doesn't want any truck with common situs picketing. A recent survey conducted by Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, New Jersey shows that 68 percent of the American people are against it. Even more significantly, 57 percent of union members oppose it.

With nearly a year to go before election day,

AFL-CIO unions are making tens of thousands of dollars in political donations to supporters of this bill. An unofficial tally shows organized labor gave $1.4 million in 1974 political donations to many Senators whose votes have now helped virtually assure passage of Common Situs Picketing.

If the building trades unions are given secondary boycott power, I can see no result other than a dramatic increase in the cost of construction and a decrease in productivity and efficiency.

In the process, thousands of non-union craftsmen will be threatened with the loss of their jobs as unions press for all union construction sites. The competition that now exists between union and non-union employers will be severely diminished, and the individual right of free choice will be eroded even further.

A presidential veto is one of the two last remaining hopes for blocking this power-grab, which would enable a union to shut down a complete construction site whenever it has a dispute with one of the subcontractors working there.

The second hope lies in defeating the Conference Report when it is presented to the House and the Senate, which is expected to be done momentarily.

I am sad to report that our local Congressional delegation, Congressmen Burke and Studds and Senators Kennedy and Brooke, have previously voted in support of House and Senate adopted versions of the Common Situs picketing bill. I would like to think it's because of their lack of total understanding on the implications of this legislation.

I know the value of good unions in our society, but I cannot see good union leaders wanting or needing this type of power. Of what value can any labor agreement be if a union from an unrelated employer can picket a job site encompassing areas not involved in disputes, thereby leaving the uninvolved worker the choice of not working or crossing a picket line with the possibility of violence.

Please contact your Congressman now and ask him to re-think this legislation. Times are not prosperous, yet construction workers are better paid than most. Construction union workers simply don't need The Construction Industry Collective Bargaining Act of 1975.

'Cabin Fever' Babysitting Co-op Being Organized

"Cabin Fever," an organization of mothers of young children, is forming a babysitting co-op in Quincy. The co-op is sponsored by the Southwest Community Center.

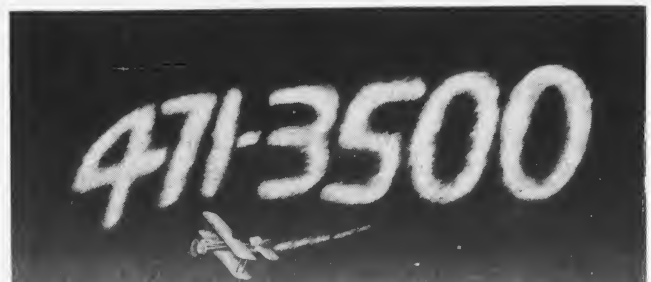

"Cabin Fever" was conceived a year ago and membership reached as high as 20 at one point. The co-op, working on the principle of hours of babysitting exchanged, instead of money, is aimed to serve mothers who need a few free hours each week.

The women hold monthly meetings, which give them a chance to meet new members of the organization and discuss problems regarding parenting. Each woman is expected to keep the record book for one month, and to hold the monthly meeting in her home at the end of her month of service. All hours of service are kept in the record book, to insure each woman is repaid for her hours spent.

Mothers interested in the co-op are asked to contact Jane Green at the Southwest Community Center, 471-0796.

Now we're even easier to talk to.

Election Probers Question Hannon, LaRaia, Saphir

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The team investigating the city's controversial mayoral election has questioned both Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia as the probe nears the end of its second week.

State police from the offices of both District Attorney William D. Delahunt and Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti are expected to complete their on-going probe at week's end.

Police quizzed Hannon last week for about an hour and questioned LaRaia Tuesday for one and one-half hours.

Delahunt originally said the probe would take one week but he last week extended the investigation another week.

Although Delahunt refuses to reveal who has been questioned to date, Hannon confirmed he himself as well as his executive secretary Joseph Shea have both been questioned by investigators.

Grace E. Saphir, eliminated from the mayoral race following the Sept. 23 preliminary election, said she has been interviewed twice by investigators and expects to be questioned a third time.

Last week Delahunt pledged the investigation would be "the most thorough...ever carried out in Quincy," with the investigating team quizzing all wardens and clerks in the city's 39 voting precincts.

Tuesday, he told The Quincy Sun:

"Anyone who had intimate involvement with the election will be interviewed."

"I checked with the team of investigators today [Tuesday] and I would feel they would conclude their initial interviews towards the end of the week and then draft a preliminary report for the attorney general and myself."

"We will then review the report and make some decisions as to how to proceed at that point, indicating whether we feel further investigation would be desirable."

Mayor Hannon initiated the probe, but said he felt there was no wrong-doing involved in the election.

LaRaia, who had charged "irregularities" at the polls, has said he is satisfied by the recount. He has made no attempt to pursue the matter further.

Six blocks of 50 votes shifted from Hannon to LaRaia during the Nov. 23 recount, giving LaRaia a 483-vote margin victory. Originally, Hannon had been declared the winner of the Nov. 4 election by a slim 134-vote margin.

The final official tally showed LaRaia with 17,231 votes versus Hannon with 16,748.

Women's Political Caucus Steering Committee Meets

A meeting of the Steering Committee of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus was held recently at the home of Acting Chairwoman, Joyce Baker of 162 Warren Ave., Wollaston.

Among those present were Carol Leman, treasurer, Jane Ford, publicity, Norma Gacicia, membership, and Kathy Roberts, programming.

The general consensus of the group was that spring programming should concentrate on two areas of concern. First, many of the new members feel they need an introduction to the structure and function of local and state government. Second, many members want to develop a platform for endorsing candidates. This group also wants to develop ways of encouraging women to seek political office.

The January meeting will have two workshops, one on each of the above topics. The meeting will be held Jan. 19, at the Hollow Restaurant.

S. Boston Furor Dilutes MDC Police Protection In W. Quincy

A spin-off from the South Boston school busing furor touched Quincy last week.

City Councillor James A. Sheets complained that the dilution of MDC police coverage in West Quincy has left youngsters unprotected at Furnace Brook Parkway crossings and at Shea Rink.

The MDC policemen who should be on crossing duty, said Sheets, are being sent to South Boston in the school busing dispute.

"Youngsters from St. Mary's School have to cross Furnace Brook Parkway without proper protection," he said.

Budget cuts by the Dukakis Administration, he said, have diluted MDC police protection at Shea Rink to a point where, in the past three weeks, two West Quincy youths have been beaten up there.

"It is the duty of the MDC police to maintain proper security at the rink," said Sheets. "Custodial personnel at the rink are not trained for such things."

The City Council voted to have Police Chief Francis Finn confer with MDC officials to see that the city is informed whenever a reduction in police protection is imminent.

The council also voted to ask the Quincy legislative delegation to find out if reduction in MDC forces in West Quincy is really necessary.

Cerasoli Opposes Time Extension To Clean Up Town River Debris

Rep. Robert Cerasoli has urged the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering not to grant a time extension to the Bruton Development Corp. to clean the Town River-Harbor View Marina site.

Calling the area an "unsightly mess," Cerasoli said three piers, a tug boat and a barge crowd the shoreline, "creating a hazard to navigation" in the area.

The Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, Division of Waterways, inspected the area in August, responding to a complaint filed by Cerasoli.

The Division gave the Bruton

Political Advertisement

Corp. 60 days to complete necessary clean-up operations on or before Nov. 29, Cerasoli said.

But the Division later informed Cerasoli of its intention to allow the Bruton Corp. "a reasonable time" to rid the area of debris, saying the Corp. had, in the Division's opinion, made an effort to clean the area in question.

The decision came after the Bruton Corp. wrote to the Division, saying inadequate funds made it impossible to carry out clean-up operations at the time. In a letter to the Division, the Corporation wrote:

"We are not in the financial position at the moment to expend the sums necessary to complete the work...When finances permit, we will resume removal of certain other materials from the water and also from the shore."

The Bruton Co., reports it has already spent $11,000 to clean up the area.

But Cerasoli says the Corporation has delayed work at the site for two years. As recently as Nov. 18, 1975, Cerasoli said he himself inspected the site. He told The Quincy Sun:

"The Bruton Development Corporation has still not taken any action to dispose of hazardous piers and damaged vessels...As of Nov. 18, no progress has been made nor has there been any effort to clean up the area at all."

Cerasoli said the corporation removed a barge from the water but simply dumped it on the shoreline where the water can still touch the craft.

Unmoved by the corporation's claim of no finances to do the clean-up job, Cerasoli said:

"They could say they have no finances until time immemorial. I want to push them to get the place cleaned up."

"This clean-up effort has been delayed for the last two years and I do not want to see it delayed any longer."

'Christmas Past' Exhibit At Historical Society Library

The Library and Museum of the Quincy Historical Society will offer a look at Christmas celebrations in Quincy's past.

An exhibit, entitled "Christmas Past" began Nov. 30 and runs concurrently with the "Celebration: 1625-1925-1975" exhibit which opened the museum in October.

The Library and Museum of the Quincy Historical Society is operated by the non-profit organization to help residents of the area gain an appreciation for the rich and varied heritage of Quincy. Both Society members and the general public are welcome to visit the Museum located at the Adams Academy building on Hancock St. at Adams St., Tuesday through Saturday between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The "Celebration: 1625-1925-1975" program features original photographs, costumes, publications and memorabilia from Quincy's first settlement down to the Centennial ceremonies of 1925. Objects in the collection range from a 1625 Indian Trade axe and the trunk of the cedar tree which appears in the City seal to pictures taken of the hundreds of participants in the 1925 celebration.

"Christmas Past", the second program to be offered in the Society's new headquarters, will continue along with the 350th Anniversary exhibit "Celebration" through the end of the year.

Children are invited to visit the museum during the holiday season and view the collection of toys and clothing which span hundreds of years of local history. As a feature of the exhibit the Society is now soliciting its many friends to loan or contribute either old or unique toys, children's clothing and Christmas ornaments.

All persons who would like to share their "piece of history" by displaying it this holiday season are urged to contact the Society's Executive Director Lawrence Yerdon at 773-1144.

Grant Sought To Create

Historical Re-enactment Program

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board announces that the Recreation Department through Quincy Heritage has applied to the American Revolution Bicentennial Board for a Bicentennial Grant.

Charles L. Alongi, Administrative Assistant for the Recreation Department, said if the funds are approved they will be used to create a Historical Re-enactment Program which will be available for performances throughout the city. The Heritage Players, as they will be called, will consist of Quincy children interested in dramatics.

The coordination of the program and its instructors will be handled by the Recreation Department with Quincy Heritage overseeing the selection of scripts, costumes and other historical data.

It is hoped that this type of program will increase public awareness and enjoyment of Quincy's historical heritage and help boost community pride. The Historical Re-enactment Program will give Quincy the vehicle to commemorate its rich past and to celebrate the city's many achievements, Alongi said.

ONE OF THE CHEAPEST WAYS TO BORROW MONEY INSTANTLY.

THE SAVERS LOAN. At Quincy Savings Bank.

Like the regular passbook loan, the new Savers Loan lets you borrow money by using your savings as collateral. It lets you keep your nest egg intact, earning good interest. But unlike the passbook loan, the Savers Loan lets you borrow up to 100% of your balance* (not 95%). And chances are you'll pay less in the long run since the interest decreases with each payment. Interest is charged only against your outstanding balance.

You can make a Savers Loan for any purpose and get the money in minutes (not days). You also get free life insurance and you can keep your passbook.

The new Savers Loan is substantially cheaper than a conventional loan. In fact, it's one of the cheapest ways there is to borrow money. Want to know more? Call us at our new telephone number.

Bridgewater Students Visit Sun, First Parish Church

A total of 45 second and third graders from the Martha A. Burnell School in Bridgewater recently toured The Quincy Sun and the neighboring historic United First Parish Church in Quincy Square.

The Martha A. Burnell School is a laboratory school located on the campus of Bridgewater State College.

While half the class toured The Quincy Sun office, the others were escorted by Sun columnist Paul Harold to the "Church of Presidents" where Church Historian William Flavin told the youngsters about the two Quincy born presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams. They visited the Presidents tombs in the basement crypt and also saw the pew in which the sixth president worshiped.

The children then came back to The Quincy Sun to tour the office while the other group took its turn in visiting First Parish Church.

At The Quincy Sun, the group toured the editorial and advertising departments and visited the production department located downstairs where artists demonstrated the procedures used in arranging the stories which will appear in the newspaper.

Several of the youngsters are working on the production of a class newspaper, writing and collecting stories and news to print in the edition. They are Heidi Scheffler, and Wendy Hanson, both second graders, and Catherine Bent, Robert Chew, John Dillman, Kathleen Edgerly, Daniel Flaherty, Shaun McMahon and Curtis Trimmer, all third graders.

Other second graders visiting The Sun were Susan Kelley, Inger Knudson, Egl Lawson, Kelly Lynch, Michaela Mayo, Kourtney McMahon, Thomas Plaskus, Amy-Beth Roach, Beth Schaefer, Kurt Walker and Kathryn Woodard.

Other third graders on the tour were Noelle Benoit, Lana Berryman, Kelly Boughton, Michael Carey, Wilmon Chipman, Thomas Conn, Peter Flynn, Mathew King, Stephen King, Elaina Meadows, Lori Metcalf, Linda Meuse, Robert Mitchell, David Morin, Elizabeth Ohlen, Lisa Ouellette and Todd Wyman.

Two teachers and seven student teachers accompanied the children. They were Mrs. Karen Powers, second grade teacher; Miss Margaret Joyce, substituting for Mrs. Barbara Poe Sepp, third-grade teacher.

Student teachers were Donna Ballerini, Dianne Burke, Donna Bosworth, Lance Blackwood, Rita Poiniton, Jeanne Oliver and Susan Stelberger.

Before leaving The Quincy Sun office, each pupil received a

Hanabury Approves 'Life-Line' Bill

Mrs. Marilyn Hanabury, independent candidate for state representative in the Fourth Norfolk District, has voiced approval of the "life-line" bill which she says would provide consumers basic electrical service "at a fair and reasonable cost."

Urging citizens to convey support of the bill to senators and representatives, Mrs. Hanabury said:

"This act provides for a life-line service of electrical power to cover electrical service for basic necessities at a fair and reasonable cost. This would guarantee the average user a minimum charge and would mean that the poor, the elderly and the working people will get enough electricity to live on and a bill that they can afford."

She also noted the bill would halt what she called "the current practice of rewarding waste of our limited resources."

She added: "This bill cannot wait for action by the Department of Public Utilities. Consumers need relief this winter."

Koch Club Busy With Christmas Season Activities

Koch Club activities have begun for the Christmas season on four different fronts.

The 20th annual Christmas Basket Fund Drive is underway. Any members or friends wishing to donate canned goods or non-perishable foods can leave them with officers of their leagues or the Executive or District Directors. Members may also donate money toward the turkeys that are given with each basket to needy families. Thomas F. Nestor is Chairman. Deadline for donations is Saturday, Dec. 20.

The 19th annual Santa Claus visit to shut-in children will be conducted Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 20 and 21, between 2:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. This program is conducted for children who are shut-ins year round. Originally, the service was offered in Quincy only but the South Shore is now included. Only parents of the shut-in children may request Santa's visit and should contact Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury Avenue, North Quincy, 328-8286, to arrange for a time convenient for the parents of the children to be visited. Richard M. Morrissey is chairman of Santa's visits.

The 28th annual Children's Christmas Party will be conducted Saturday afternoon, Dec. 20, between 2:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Road, Quincy Point. Santa Claus will be present to list the Christmas wants of the children and distribute candy. There will be the singing of Christmas songs and carols by the children attending. Mothers with children too small, sick or unable to see Santa at the stores are welcome to bring them to the party.

The Koch Club is again seeking used toys, books, games and dolls for distribution to needy children at Christmas. In 1971, members and friends started a collection drive repairing, painting and distributing 200 in 1971 and increased the project to 5000 toys, games, books and dolls last year. Boys and girls are asked to help sacrifice one of their good used toys for someone less fortunate at Christmas.

Fine Arts Chorale Opens With Christmas Concert Dec. 13-14

Three premieres will be featured works when the Fine Arts Chorale opens its 10th anniversary season Dec. 13-14 at Weymouth North High School. The events will celebrate the founding of the South Shore group which has sung to more than 20,000 music lovers during the past 10 years.

The program will begin with the American premiere of Joseph Messner's "Mass in B" which is a romantic setting of the standard text of the Roman Catholic Mass. It is accompanied by a brass sextet and soprano solo and will serve as a link to the past and as a framework for the more modern compositions which follow.

Also in the first half of the program will be the New England premiere of "The Winter Journey" by Alan Bush, an English communist who has composed in all media using a straightforward technique consisting of easily recognized motives, woven in a complex counterpoint.

In this work, the familiar story of Mary and Joseph's entrance into Bethlehem and the reaction of the city residents to their needs and the enormity of the event drawn on a familiar thread of apathy from today's society provide a unique listening experience. The work is accompanied by a string quintet and harp, with baritone and soprano solos.

The final work on the program will be the world premiere of Nancy Plummer Faxon's "A Christmas Fantasy" which has been commissioned by the Fine Arts Chorale for this occasion. She has joined together 14 familiar Christmas Carols in a contemporary setting using a full Romantic orchestra and soprano solo. Some of the familiar carols included in this new work are: O Come, O Come, Emmanuel; What Strangers are These? Angels, we have Heard on High; Bring a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella; and others.

For tickets to all performances call 335-2134 or 337-3023 [Heinz Sammer, 118 Sunny Plain Ave., South Weymouth]

Retiring After 51 Years Service

Friends Honor North Quincy Librarian Louise Dinegan

More than 75 close friends, relatives, city officials and members of the North Quincy business community gathered at Walsh's Restaurant Monday to honor Miss M. Louise Dinegan, librarian at the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

A resident of Wollaston, Miss Dinegan is retiring after 51 years of service to the city of Quincy. Members of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association (NQBPA) planned the buffet and reception for Miss Dinegan as a small expression of thanks for the librarian's devotion to the city.

Joseph Doran, secretary-treasurer of the NQBPA and toastmaster for the evening at Walsh's, said Miss Dinegan always "bent over backwards" for the business community. He said:

"Miss Dinegan was so active and so cooperative with the business community. She would do window decorations during Book Week, she would help to put paintings on display during Sidewalk Bazaar. She just bent over backwards to help."

At Monday's reception, Mayor Walter J. Hannon presented Miss Dinegan a plaque "from a grateful city". Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin gave her a framed Senate citation, praising Miss Dinegan for her work throughout the city, and John Horrigan, president of the NQBPA, presented her a check.

Members of the committee planning the event included Horrigan, Doran, Andrew Walsh, Gino Marini, Vito Barresi and Harold Glickman.

Miss Dinegan began her career in Quincy in 1924, serving as a librarian at the Parkway Branch in West Quincy.

Five years later she was assigned to the newly-opened Lakin Square Branch where she remained until 1941. At that time she became librarian of the Norfolk Downs Branch on Tyler St.

In 1953, the branch was re-located in the Regent Theatre building on Hancock St. Ten years later, the branch moved to its present location at 381 Hancock St. and its name was changed to North Quincy Branch Library.

Stationed at this branch 12 years, Miss Dinegan has been in charge of a modern library facility including a separate children's department and reference rooms.

Educated in Quincy schools, Miss Dinegan attended Simmons

College. She belongs to the Altruza Club of Quincy, the Quincy Women's Club and the Quincy Historical Society.

Quincy residents and friends wishing to greet Miss Dinegan will be able to attend an Open House at the North Quincy Branch Tuesday, Dec. 16 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Miss Dinegan's retirement will be effective Dec. 31.

Raiders Have No Alibis

Good (North) Team Bows To Better (Woburn) Team

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's "dream" football season ended on an unhappy note last Saturday in the Division One Super Bowl at Boston College, but Dave Burke's first season as Raider coach is one he, his able assistants and players won't soon forget.

The Raiders went into their first Super Bowl against Woburn as the top-rated team in Division One. They were favored by many, who felt the Suburban League was superior to the Middlesex league, which only recently was moved up from Division 2.

North had tied Brookline for the Suburban League title and finished 9-1-0, with only a loss to Brockton. The Raiders had been in some pressure-packed games.

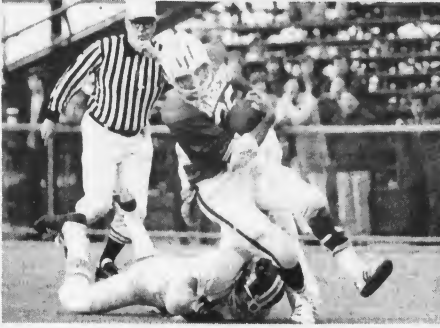

Meanwhile, Woburn outclassed its Middlesex League foes, scoring 347 points, shutting out six teams and finishing 10-0-0.

It didn't seem possible any team could outclass North, but Woburn did just that at B.C. Alumni Stadium as it shocked the Raiders, 20-7, spent most of the game in North territory, and thoroughly dominated the game.

The figures seem unbelievable but are true. Woburn finished with 322 net yards to just 141 for North, had 17 first downs to North's eight and ran off 68 plays to only 46 for the Raiders.

The Tanners moved inside North Quincy's 10-yard line four other times and they stymied the Raiders with four pass interceptions.

"What can I say, we just ran

MATTY CONSTANTINO, North Quincy's hard working fullback, picks up yardage against Woburn in the Super Bowl game at Boston College. (Quincy Sun Photos by Steve Liiss)

LONE TOUCHDOWN for North in Saturday's Super Bowl gave these fans their only opportunity to cheer as the Raiders bowed to Woburn.

up against an inspired team and they were great both ways," said the disappointed Burke. "Their speed was a factor and their line played very well. They had something to prove, as many were saying our league was stronger than theirs.

But we weren't buying any of that and we knew we were in for a tough game. We saw some of their game films and were very impressed. After all, any team that can score 347 points has to be doing something right.

"That boy [Steve] McCue [134 yards on 32 carries] was one of the best backs we faced all year, and their quarterback [Ed Melanson, 7 of 11 for 131 yards] was outstanding.

"I'm sorry for the seniors they couldn't have ended with a Super Bowl win, but as far as I am concerned, this didn't take anything away from a very satisfying season. After all, we were number one in Division One and it was just a great year. I am very proud of all our players, they always gave me 100 percent, and I want to thank my assistant coaches and my co-captains for all their help. It was just one fine season for all of us."

Woburn which had seen North game films, knew it had to stop Brian Doherty, who gained 828 yards during the season while missing two games, and end Cooper Jordan, who had caught many passes including five for touchdowns.

And the Tanners did just that, stopping Doherty with just 47 yards in 15 carries and limiting Jordan to one reception, a 38-yarder from Mike Holleran to set up North's only score with time running out in the half.

McCue put Woburn on the board first, scoring from the two to finish off a 65-yard drive, after carrying six times himself. Steve Giordano kicked the point. This score came early in the second period.

Later in the period Eric Hanson scored from the one and Giordano again converted.

With only seconds left on the clock, Holleran hit Jordan and a face mask penalty against Woburn gave North the ball on Woburn's six. On fourth down Holleran went around left end for the touchdown and Ed McCue kicked the point, his 16th in 17 tries.

There was no more scoring until the final minute of the game when, after one of Woburn's four interceptions, McCue carried eight times and scored from the one.

Except for its one scoring drive, North moved across the 50 only once and that time was stopped on Woburn's 30.

Super Bowl or no Super Bowl, it is hats off to North Quincy for a great season.

Quincy Faces Jamaica Plain

Quincy's basketball team opens its season next Wednesday with a non-league home game against Jamaica Plain and will start its second Suburban League season Dec. 19 at Waltham.

Coach Joe Amoroso, whose Presidents finished with a disappointing 8-12 record last year, is hoping for a better than .500 season.

"Our record was deceiving last year, as we lost four games by one or two points," Amoroso said. "I feel we have a good nucleus from last year and we have some fine players up from the jayvees.

"We have a solid program here at Quincy and the boys have come up through this program. I think we will have a team which can give any team in the league, which I feel is one of the strongest in the state, a battle."

Last Saturday Quincy hosted Bradford, Vt., in a scrimmage. Bradford has gone to the finals or semifinals on the state tournament the last four years. The team arrived in Quincy Friday night and the players stayed at the homes of the Quincy players.

Amoroso has several players who saw varsity service last year, headed by 6-6 junior center Jack Uhlar, 5-10 senior guard Steve Connolly and 6-3 senior forward Bob Dacey, all of whom played regularly a year ago.

Other seniors are forward Chuck McDermott [6-1], who played varsity ball; forward John Riggs [6-3], coming off a fine football season, who was a varsity player but missed the second half of the season due to an injury; guard Kevin Donovan [5-10], also coming off an excellent football season, who was out much of last year with mononucleosis; guard Bob Silva [5-8] and guard Mike Connell [5-8].

Juniors include Lyle Morrison, 6-1 guard; Roger Kvan, 6-1 guard; Mike Lamie, 6-1 forward; Mike Kennedy, 6-1 forward, who had an outstanding season as goalie on the soccer team; and Ed Daley, 5-8 guard.

Also slated to stick with the varsity is 6-3 sophomore Brian Burke, who played at Broad Meadows Junior High last year.

"I'm not making any predictions, but I think we will give the fans some good basketball and we will win our share of games," Amoroso concluded.

Mike Saniuk is back as Amoroso's assistant and junior varsity coach.

North Opens Against B.C. High

Bob Nolan is starting his 11th season as North Quincy's basketball coach and he is hoping to lead the Raiders into the state tournament for the eighth time after being sidetracked last year.

North will open its season next Wednesday at home against B.C. High in a non-league game and opens its second Suburban League campaign on Dec. 19 at home against Newton.

"We had only a 10-10 record last year but it was one of the most exciting seasons since I've been here," Nolan said. "We played four games which went down to the final buzzer against Weymouth North, B.C. High, Quincy and Newton. We lost some outstanding players from that squad but we have some excellent boys again this year and we should give the fans something to cheer about."

Nolan pointed to the fact that all of the players who graduated, Mark Reale, Tim Clifford, Jack Powell, Steve Marinelli, Jack Rable and Walter Melton, are now at college or prep school. Virtually all of his players of the past 10 years have gone on to college.

Nolan's co-captains are Rich Mahoney and Paul Kelleher, a pair of 6-2 guards. They and Jay Nelson, 6-4 center, are the only returning lettermen.

The other seniors are Jack Browne, 6-1 forward, Joel Devlin, 6-foot guard, Michael Leith, 5-11 forward, Tom D'Angelo, 5-9 guard, and Mike Holleran, 6-1 forward who is coming off a fine season as quarterback on the Raiders' Super Bowl football team.

"I have some fine juniors and sophomores, from whom I will pick the rest of the varsity squad, but I have made no cuts yet and haven't decided on the remaining players," Nolan said at this writing. "I plan to carry a 15-man varsity squad."

"It is a real pleasure to coach the boys here, the spirit is so great. None of my players have ever given me less than 100 percent and I just love to coach them."

Bob paid tribute to his assistant coach, Eddie Miller, a former North star himself, who has led the jayvees to some outstanding seasons.

Central Wins Junior Football Crown

"The spirit and fine sportsmanship were evident during the season and we, the coaches, are proud of this because we work for teamwork and sportsmanship between Central and the other schools," Casali said.

"We started the season with 135 boys and finished with 98. The reason for this is tremendous attitude of our assistant coaches, Bob Louis, who coaches the seventh grade team, and Joe Ryan, the eighth grade coach.

"Won-lost records go out the window with these fine men. They make sure ALL boys play in every game and, because of this, they stay out for the teams. Another plus factor are the two volunteer coaches [no pay], Bob Schiess and Gene Schlicher. I can't say enough about them. They gave all of their time free every afternoon during the season. Where else but at Central could this happen?

"I love the faculty and students at Central and it was my pleasure to be part of the team's winning season."

Louis' seventh grade team finished with a 3-3-1 mark.

Playing for this squad were Steve Belcastro, Ian Bishop, Bob Bolster, John Brown, Brett Buckley, Shawn Burnes, Bob Campbell, Tom Canavan, Bob Carey, Rich Carr, Mike Cronin, Rich Dargon, Bill DeCarli, Luciano DiPietro, Jim Eno, Ron Fronduto, Paul Furey, John Herald, Steve Cavanagh, Dick Lawyer, John Leone, Chris Loeb and Ed Mackey.

Also, Paul Mallory, Joe MacFadden, Jim Manolakis, Rich McCarthy, Kevin McCormick, Brian O'Leary, Jim O'Leary, Peter Palmer, Joe Phelan, Brian Radzik, Dana Sacchetti, Jim Sullivan, Brian Tobin, Bruce Tobin, Steve Walsh and Dave Wolfe.

Ryan's eighth graders had only a 1-7 record but he had several players who he feels will help the ninth grade team next year.

One of the happiest North fans on the holiday was Pete Zoia, who played a prominent role in the Raiders' 6-0 win in 1933, the first game ever played between the rivals.

Incidentally, Pete's son was an outstanding member of this year's North sophomore team.

John Hammond Special On Ch. 2

A marathon seven-hour taping session in Chicago this past summer resulted in a spectacular two-part television program, "The World of John Hammond," which will be aired Friday, Dec. 12 and Saturday, Dec. 13 at 10 p.m. on WGBH-TV, Channel 2.

It was a dream of an idea. John Hammond was retiring after an incredible 45 years in the record business, 45 years in which he was personally responsible for the discovery and success of dozens of great musicians - from top jazz artists of the swing era to the rock stars of the 60's and 70's. From jazz-great, Benny Goodman, to the incomparable Bob Dylan. Then why not get some of those great artists together and pay tribute to the man who, more than anyone else, had changed the course of popular music in America.

What happened was even better than the dream. An astonishing assembly of performers, including Dylan, Goodman, gospel singer Marion Williams, country-blues harpist Sonny Terry, jazz guitarist George Benson, jazz pianist Teddy Wilson, singer Helen Humes, drummer Jo Jones, bassist Milt Hinton, Red Norvo and Benny Carter, produced a night of extraordinary music.

Highlights include a lightning-fingered duet by Goodman and guitarist Benson on "Seven Come Eleven," and a three-number Dylan segment that includes an electric performance of "Hurricane Carter."

Throughout both parts of this two-part program, Hammond reminisces about the musicians he's worked with, and, in most cases, made famous. Clearly, Hammond's career was as fascinating as it was successful. And just as clearly, this musical tribute to Hammond is a once-in-a-lifetime occasion.

'Phyllis' Only Top Newcomer Of Season

JOHN WILLIS, co-host of Channel 5's "Good Morning!" has been named host of the annual American Cancer Society's celebrity golf tournament at Poland Springs, Maine ... It's interesting to note that of the 70 television series that started the 1975-76 season, only 39 will still be in their September time slots when the second-season changes are made. Of the 27 new series, only 12 will remain. And of those newcomers surviving, only CLORIS LEACHMAN's "Phyllis" has made the top 30 rating list every week since its debut. It's even more interesting to note that almost all of the axed series are casualties of the family hour ... MARTHA RAYE will make her dramatic television debut in a two-hour segment of the ROCK HUDSON, SUSAN ST. JAMES series, "McMillan and Wife" ... After a year's worth of legal maneuvering, CBS has finally purchased "Papillon" for $3,750,000. Starring STEVE McQUEEN and DUSTIN HOFFMAN, the film will not be shown until December 1978 because of a clause in McQueen's contract ... When television producer NORMAN LEAR was an Emerson student living in a Back Bay boarding house, one of his favorite haunts was the fabled house of burlesque, the Old Howard ... NBC has scheduled "City Of Angels," starring former M*A*S*H ("Trapper John") star, WAYNE ROGERS, in a Tuesday-night-at-10 time slot beginning Feb. 3. There may be a name change because of a conflict with a book by the same title, but Rogers will play a 30's private-eye in Los Angeles, somewhat along the lines of JACK NICOLSON's "Chinatown" ... WGBH-TV's two and a half hour dramatization "The Watergate Cover-Up Trial," first broadcast in Boston on the anniversary of Nixon's resignation, has been bought by 50 other public television stations around the country ... The BBC has paid $200,000-plus to be the first television network in the world to show PAUL NEWMAN's "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" ... English actor, ROY DOCTRICE, has been signed to play the lead role in "Dickens of London," the 13 hour series on the life of Charles Dickens. Doctrice will portray the author from the age of 39 to his death. Two other actors will play Dickens during his boyhood. A 1976 showing is planned ... DONNY and MARIE OSMOND will have their own variety hour on ABC ... Have you noticed how many of the same Christmas specials crop up each year? Perhaps it's because Christmas is a time for traditional events and activities. After all, aren't the most popular Christmas carols the ones that have been around for years and years? Television is no different. Audiences always seem to gravitate back to the perennial favorites. "A Christmas Carol" always appears in one form or another, Charlie Brown and his gang are always welcome, and no matter how evil The Grinch may be, we feel at home with him. GREER GARSON's narration of "The Little Drummer Boy" sounded as fresh and touching last week as it did eight years ago. And as for Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer, this year marked the 12th time he's saved television's Christmas by guiding Santa's sleigh with the glowing beacon. Next Friday will mark the debut of a new special, "The First Christmas - The Story of the First Christmas Snow," which will be narrated by ANGELA LANSBURY.

In December of 1960 ... Big Brother, Bob Emery was seen on Channel 4 every day at 12:15 ... Dorothy Provine was Pinky Pinkham, star entertainer at the Charleston Club in "The Roaring Twenties" ... Jackie Cooper was starring in "Hennessey" ... Marion Lorne and Art Carney were starring in a television adaptation of "Harvey" for the Dupont Show of the Month on CBS ... Walter Brennan was Grandpa Amos on "The Real McCoys" ... Durwood Kirby was the voice of a parrot in an episode of Allen Funt's "Candid Camera" ... Walt Disney was switching from ABC to NBC ... Annie Farge and Marshall Thompson were being seen each week in "Angel" ... With Charles Collingwood as host, "Person to Person" was being dropped from CBS's schedule. It had been on the air since 1953 ... Betty Grable was guesting on "The Perry Como Show" ... Louise Morgan was seen each day on Channel 7. Amusement was provided for the children by "Crusader Rabbit" ... Mondays at 8, Harry Morgan and Cara Williams were "Pete & Gladys" ... Robert Horton was starring in "Wagon Train" ... Rod Sterling's "Twilight Zone" was providing chills for everyone ... The Shirley Temple Theatre was presenting Nathaniel Hawthorne's "House of the Seven Gables," with Agnes Moorhead and Robert Culp ... Fred MacMurray and William Frawley were handling the motherless brood on "My Three Sons" ... ABC announced plans to begin a new game show in January called "Camouflage." Contestants would have to identify objects hidden within a camouflage drawing ... After several successful seasons, Lucille Ball had left weekly television. However, the opening of her Broadway show, "Wildcat" was postponed from Dec. 15 to Dec. 16 when the show's scenery was stuck in a truck trapped in a snow storm in New Jersey ... Genevieve was guesting with Jack Paar ... John Forsythe was papa to Quincy's Noreen Corcoran on "Bachelor Father" ... and "The Wizard of Oz" was making its third television appearance. The classic film starring Judy Garland, Jack Haley, Burt Lahr and Ray Bolger was first shown in November of 1956. Its second showing came in December of 1959.

Hannon Takes S.S. Chamber Job Over 2 Other Offers

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will begin a new career in January, heading up the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Group.

His salary in the new post was not disclosed.

Hannon will succeed Atty. Harold Davis, school committee member who made an unsuccessful bid for councilor-at-large in the recent city election. Davis has announced his plans to return to the full-time private practice of law, joining the Quincy firm of Flavin, McCormick and Corcoran.

Eric Swider, executive vice-president of the Chamber, made the appointment of Hannon and incoming Chamber president Jack Conway made the formal announcement at a Wednesday morning press conference at the Chamber headquarters.

Acknowledging he had "two or three" job options, Hannon said he felt he had "some expertise" in the area of economic development. He told The Quincy Sun:

"I had two or three different job offers - which I was very pleased at. But this is the one I feel I can accept. I feel I have some expertise in it."

NEW POST -- Mayor Walter J. Hannon, who will assume in January the duties of South Shore Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Manager, receives 1976 program outline from incoming Chamber President Jack Conway.

While Hannon cited extension of the MBTA line and the Fore River Bridge as two key areas in which he will be involved, he added:

"It's not only in Quincy, I have to be non-parochial. I'll be working to encourage businesses to stay in the South Shore area and to expand, and also to entice new business to the entire South Shore, not just Quincy, I look forward to it."

Citing Hannon's five terms as a state representative and two terms as Quincy mayor, Swider said Hannon will be in a unique position "to get answers" and spur economic development action. He said: "Walter will be a real, positive addition to the staff. He's got more vigor and energy than almost anyone I've ever met. He comes to the job of director of

Council Postpones Proposal To Study Voting Machine Use

The City Council Monday night postponed a proposal to establish a committee to study the use of voting machines in Quincy.

Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers said he was prompted to ask for the committee by the "charges and countercharges of errors, human or otherwise" arising from the last election.

But the Council decided to hold Powers' proposal for further study until Monday's adjourned meeting is resumed.

Powers asked for a committee made up of City Clerk John Gillis and four councillors "to look into the implementation of mechanical, electric or any other type of voting devices."

Council President Arthur H. Tobin suggested that action be postponed until he had a chance to confer with Gillis and Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia.

"It may be better to expand the committee to include others outside the Council," he said.

Councillor John J. Quinn suggested that members of the legislature from Quincy check with the Secretary of State Paul Guzzi to see if the state might pay for the voting machines.

'Christmas Is Sharing'

This Week's 'Young Ideas' Theme

By CATHY CONLEY

"Christmas is Sharing" is the theme of this week's issue of "Young Ideas". The Quincy Sun's four-page newspaper designed for elementary school children.

The "Young Ideas" pullout section starts on Page 13 and is sponsored by State Street Bank and Trust.

Guest editors are pupils in Connie McGillicuddy's first grade and the three fifth graders at Atherton Hough School. Fifth grade teachers are Kathleen Morris, Susan Devlin and Carl Bossi.

Our guest editors followed through on their Christmas-is-Sharing theme. The first graders collected toys for needy children. The fifth graders concentrated on the other end of the age spectrum. They designed and gave gifts to the elderly. Several of the children also wrote beautiful essays about what it must be like to be a senior citizen.

Several children answered the question "If You Had Lots of Money, What Gift Would You Give?"

One fifth grader interviewed A. Edward Allinson, Senior Vice President of State Street Bank and Trust, and John K.

Benson, President of SSB Realty, Inc., about stocks, bonds and mutual funds.

There is also a break-the-code contest with the first prize a $25 bond from State Street Bank and Trust. All correct entries will be placed in a box and the winning name will be pulled at random. Deadline is Jan. 2. Don't forget that Friday, Dec. 19, is the deadline for the John Hancock coloring contest sponsored by Hancock Bank. The prize is a $25 bond. Also, runners-up prizes will be given to the best entry from each grade, kindergarten to the sixth grade.

Killion Runnerup

Sheets Wins House Seat In Special Election

By RON IACOBUCCI

City Councillor James A. Sheets easily won Quincy's Fourth Norfolk District state representative seat in Tuesday's special election.

Sheets, the Democratic nominee, polled 2,727 votes to top American Party candidate Joseph Killion who had 1,149 votes. The margin of victory was 1,578 votes.

Councillor John J. Lydon, running as an Independent, was third with 1,109.

Marilyn Hannabury, another Independent candidate, was fourth with 246 votes.

Santa C. Faren, whose name was still on the ballot although she had withdrawn as a candidate, got 12 votes.

Some 5,274 of the 14,000 eligible voters in the district, or 38.1 per cent - cast ballots. The predicted turnout was only 25 per cent.

Sheets, Ward 4 councillor, fills the vacancy created in August by the appointment of William D. Delahunt as Norfolk County district attorney.

Sheets had won both the Democratic and Republican nominations in the primary Nov. 18 but decided to run as a Democrat only.

Killion was runnerup to Sheets in that primary but won the American Party nomination on write-ins. He decided to accept the nomination but not the American Party platform.

American Party officials sharply criticized Killion for that.

The Fourth Norfolk District includes West Quincy, Wollaston Hill, a part of Wollaston on the Albion Rd side and parts of Montclair.

JAMES SHEETS

The 40-year-old Sheets pinpointed crime, fiscal responsibility and insurance rates as top issues during his campaign.

He also said he favors an examination of the courts case load, and a long-range study of the state's tax system.

He has called for a sweeping revamping of the system used to set automobile insurance rates.

Sheets, lives at 926 Furnace Brook Parkway, and is a professor at Quincy Junior College.

He was re-elected to a second term in the city council in November, running unopposed.

Sheets' easy win Tuesday came somewhat of a surprise to many political observers who saw a much closer race between him and fellow city councillor Lydon.

Mrs. Carter Says Mistrust Of Government U.S. Major Concern

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The past seven months, Mrs. Rosalynn Smith Carter, wife of Democratic Presidential candidate and former governor Jimmy Carter, has stomped in over 15 states in the union, discovering, she says, America's major concern is mistrust of its own government.

Hearing that Watergate-ers lament which will apparently long-echo throughout the country, Mrs. Carter said people nation-wide feel government "of the people, by the people, for the people," is a mere myth. Her voice softly hinting of a Southern draw, she said:

"People have lost confidence in the government. They don't believe the government can function properly, or in the interests of the people. It's sad. And it's a real concern of the American people."

A full-time campaigner for her husband, the former governor of Georgia, Mrs. Carter ranks her spouse's fiscal planning and management ability as the twin fortes qualifying him for the presidency.

Mrs. Carter made her remarks during a recent campaign visit to The Quincy Sun.

Highlighting what she termed her husband's "major accomplishments", during his tenure as Georgia's governor, Mrs. Carter said her husband untangled and streamlined state government, slashing 278 of Georgia's 200 agencies and reducing administrative costs by 50 per cent.

At the same time, Mrs. Carter said her husband vastly increased services to the state's citizens. She said:

"The number of services tremendously multiplied when Jimmy was governor. We had 136 community mental health services in the state when Jimmy left office."

The crux of Mrs. Carter's campaign message is her husband can perform the same type of bureaucratic streamlining, fiscal management and increase in services if elected president of the United States. She said:

"Jimmy's priority would be to reorganize the government, cut down bureaucracy in government, manage the government. We haven't had an administrator in this country for a long time. We've been reacting to crises in this country instead of planning. Jimmy wants to plan for next year, and the year after and five years from now and 10 years from now."

Carter, 51, served as Georgia's governor from 1970 to 1974. Prior to his election, Carter had behind him two terms of experience in the Georgia Senate. At one time, he also worked as a peanut farmer in his Georgia hometown of Plains, developing a supply house for area farmers. Mrs. Carter helped by keeping the business books.

As Georgia's First Lady, Mrs. Carter delved into the area of mental health, visiting state and private mental facilities and serving as a volunteer at the Georgia Regional Hospital in Atlanta. Honorary chairman of the Georgia Special Olympics for Retarded Children five years, Mrs. Carter accompanied the Georgia team to California in 1972.

Now one of her husband's most avid and tireless campaigners, Mrs. Carter has concentrated much of her efforts in Florida - traditionally a stronghold for Alabama Gov. George Wallace in his bids for the Democratic Presidential nomination. A win in Florida - the first Southern state to hold a primary and the third nationwide - will be a crucial vote-getting test for Carter. Mrs. Carter said:

"Florida is so important to us. We plan to do well there. We want to cut down on the strength Wallace has had there and make a good showing."

Also helping out on the long-winding campaign trail are the three Carter sons.

"The whole family is campaigning," said Mrs. Carter. "Everyone except Amy - she's eight."

"And they are all in different directions," she continued. "Jack, 28, and Chip, 25, are in Florida - each in different cities - and Jeff, 23, is in Atlanta. But he and his wife will be moving to New Hampshire soon and they'll take care of the New England area."

Home to Plains, Ga., only two days every week, Mrs. Carter said she and other supporters have just begun to lay the groundwork for a strong organization in Massachusetts.

And with wifely enthusiasm and unwavering optimism, she said:

"I think Jimmy is going to be President."

Pledges Business Community Cooperation

LaRaia May Remove Some Downtown Parking Meters

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia says his administration will investigate the possibility of removing some of the parking meters in Quincy Sq. to entice more shoppers to the business district.

Speaking at a special South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting attended by 175 Quincy-area members, last week at State Street South, North Quincy, LaRaia pledged to maintain "a constant concern with the business community" in an effort to represent that community "as fairly and as equitable as possible."

Always speaking in the plural "we" instead of the singular "I," LaRaia told the group:

"We want your ideas and suggestions. It is necessary that you tell us how you feel progress in Quincy should be guided...We rely on your judgement."

LaRaia offered the suggestion of removal of some parking meters in Quincy Square as one of the ways "to make Quincy more accessible to shoppers."

"We really have to evaluate the value of meters in Quincy," he said. "We want your ideas."

"We must investigate our metered system of parking with the possibility of taking out meters in Quincy Square."

In his first major address since the Nov. 23 recount proclaimed him Quincy's new mayor, LaRaia announced his campaign press secretary Robert McCarthy, 24, will serve in the new administration.

McCarthy said he was surprised LaRaia made the announcement at the Wednesday meeting and admitted he did not know in what capacity he will be serving. Observers, however, expect him to remain LaRaia's press aide.

Although LaRaia frankly admitted he did not go to the meeting armed with "some grandiose plans," he did outline what he called "the problems facing the city," in relation to its business prosperity.

"We have to attract a retail enterprise - at least one major development in Quincy Sq. - to increase desirability to shoppers both within and outside Quincy. We must seek out and obtain retail development or developments."

Referring to the Hilgenhurst Quincy Center Development Plan prepared under Mayor Walter J. Hannon's administration, LaRaia pinpointed another area of concern as traffic and pedestrian patterns in the city.

"It is important to continue to follow these guidelines to provide better traffic patterns and pedestrian patterns for shoppers," he said.

LaRaia completely avoided mention of the proposed South Quincy MBTA Station which he staunchly opposed during his campaign, referring only to the "overflow of cars" at the MBTA station.

"We'll have to contend with that problem, too," he said.

The mayor-elect also emphasized his administration will not only be concerned with business problems in Quincy Square but throughout the entire city.

Pledging competent and cooperative government, LaRaia told the group.

"We will promise you when we come into office in January we will be well-equipped with the proper talent to enable us to have a good administration."

"I feel cooperation is important. We intend to be very cooperative, very available and to have your input into progress in Quincy."

LaRaia listed "the paring of the cost of government" as his administration's top priority. Pledging to cut "excessive and unnecessary" governmental costs, LaRaia suggested possible consolidation of city departments, computerization of certain functions and organization of a motor pool for city vehicles.

"We will be reviewing all of our city departments to provide the most services at the least amount of tax dollars," he said.

LaRaia closed his address by inviting those attending to meet with him informally after the meeting to ask any questions or discuss concerns. He also extended the group a standing invitation to meet with him.

"My door is open at any time," he said. "Feel free to call or to sit down with me as a group or as an individual and review the things that concern you."

Thanking the mayor-elect for speaking before the group of business people, William Kelley, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, quipped: "If we don't hear from you, you'll hear from us anyway. But by far, the dialogue is the better way to do it."

Plum Of A Pie For The Holidays

Borrowing customs from around the world, Americans have translated them into a unique ethnic blend that makes the holiday season a special time of the year. The idea for this pie is taken from Plum Pudding, which is made with dried fruit and served by the English after their traditional holiday feast.

Plum Pudding Pie

- | | |
|---------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1 unbaked (9-inch) pastry shell | 1/3 cup Karo dark corn syrup |
| 1 cup unsifted flour | 1/4 cup chopped candied fruit |
| 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon | 1 1/2 cups prepared mincemeat |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt | 1/2 cup chopped walnuts |
| 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves | 3 eggs, separated |
| 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice | |
| 1/3 cup margarine | |

In large bowl mix together flour, cinnamon, salt, cloves and allspice. Cut in margarine with pastry blender or 2 knives until coarse crumbs form. Mix corn syrup and candied fruit. Stir fruit mixture, mincemeat and walnuts into flour mixture. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored and stir into flour mixture. Fold in egg whites. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in 350° F oven about 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm.

THE MERRY SEASON

There's an eggnog for every occasion

So you're planning on throwing a little yuletide celebration and you want to do it right.

What better way to make sure the cheer is all good than with an eggnog that you whipped together yourself?

Forget this stuff the milkman brings or you buy in the supermarket. These ready-made varieties can't hold a Christmas candle to concoctions you can create in the confines of your own kitchen.

For instance:

WILLIAMSBURG EGGNOG

What better way to kick off the Christmas season and the approaching Bicentennial year?

— Beat 18 egg yolks until they are thick and pale in color.

— Add two and one-half cups of fine granulated sugar and continue to beat the mixture until the sugar is dissolved.

— Very slowly add one-fifth of cognac and set the mixture aside.

— Beat 18 egg whites with one-half cup sugar until they are very light.

— To the egg yolk mixture add one quart each of milk and heavy cream and pour it into a punch bowl.

— Pour in two-fifths of cognac slowly and blend thoroughly. Fold in the egg whites and sprinkle the mixture generously with grated nutmeg.

— Makes 25 servings.

If you would rather have a European flavor to your celebration, why not try:

ITALIAN EGGNOG

— Combine one cup milk and one egg.

— Beat or shake vigorously.

Derringer

The Florist

ly.

— Add one ounce of brandy and one ounce of Liqueur Galliano.

— Pour into a brandy snifter and chill in the refrigerator.

— Garnish with chocolate curls or chopped nuts before serving.

— Makes one serving.

If you prefer something with a down-home flavor, you might want to try:

SOUTHERN EGGNOG

— Beat in 18 egg yolks until they are light.

— Add gradually two cups of fine granulated sugar and continue to beat until yolks are thick and light in color.

— Slowly stir in two-fifths of bourbon and one-half-cup Jamaican rum.

— Add two cups of chilled light cream.

— Whip six cups heavy cream and blend it lightly into the mixture.

— Fold in 18 egg whites, very stiffly beaten.

— Pour the eggnog into a punch bowl and sprinkle each serving with nutmeg.

— Makes 25 servings.

KENTUCKY EGGNOG

— Beat 12 egg yolks until they are thick and pale in color.

— Add two cups fine granulated sugar and continue to beat the mixture until the sugar is dissolved.

— Chill the mixture two hours.

— To serve, pour the batter into a punch bowl and slowly blend in two-fifths of bourbon, and one cup each of golden rum and cognac.

— Add two cups of chilled milk and six cups of chilled heavy cream and fold in 12 egg whites stiffly beaten.

— Sprinkle the eggnog generously with grated nutmeg.

— Makes 25 servings.

Or, if your tastes run a trifle more cosmopolitan, you might try:

BALTIMORE EGGNOG

— Beat 12 egg yolks until they're thick and pale in color.

— Add two cups of sugar and continue to beat mixture until the yolks are thick and light in color.

— Chill the mixture.

— To serve, pour the egg mixture into a punch bowl and slowly stir in one-fifth cognac, one-fifth golden rum and one cup peach brandy.

— Add six cups chilled milk, three cups chilled heavy cream and 12 stiffly beaten egg whites.

— Makes 25 servings.

Teens and giggles go together

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. Do all 11-year-old girls giggle and whisper when they are together? Perhaps it's just my curiosity about what is so funny to them, but this habit (if that's what it is) certainly gets on my nerves. And if you think it bothers me, you ought to hear my husband. When she called long distance from summer camp, it was one constant giggle — and the same with her friends whom I heard in the background.

I really don't remember my being so silly when I was that age, but maybe I've just blocked out the memory because it's so painful to see it in action now.

What suggestions can you share with me? Please don't tell me that I'm just imagining things, because it's all too real.

A. Go to a movie, read a book, turn on a TV show, escape into another room — and take your husband with you.

I'm sorry to tell you this, but it may only be the beginning. Just wait until the almost endless teen-age telephone conversations that are just around the corner.

Your daughter is deep into a well-traveled path, and so are you. Yes, "this too shall pass," but not by tomorrow.

Know The Seven Toy Dangers

This year's toy buying season is well under way, but it's not too late to remember that all toys may not be safe. An estimated 124,000 children are treated annually in hospital emergency rooms for toy-related injuries.

To protect your child, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission suggests that you be aware of the following seven toy dangers when you buy:

1) WRONG TOY FOR CHILD'S AGE. Remember that toys safe for older children can be hazardous for smaller children.

2) SHARP EDGES. Poorly constructed toys may have sharp edges or be made of brittle plastic or glass that breaks easily.

3) SMALL PARTS. Removable small parts, and those exposed when toys break open, can be swallowed or inhaled.

4) LOUD NOISES. Toy caps, noise-making guns and other toys may produce noise levels loud enough to damage hearing.

5) SHARP POINTS. Ribbons and other parts on dolls and stuffed animals could be attached with pins, staples and wires that can cut.

6) PROPELLED OBJECTS. Children should never play with adult lawn darts or other sharp-pointed sports equipment. Look for soft rubber or other protective tips on children's arrows and flying toys.

7) ELECTRIC TOYS. Electric toys with heating elements are not suitable for children under 8 years old.

Proper adult supervision of play will also help protect your child from injury.

For more information, to report a dangerous toy or a toy-related injury, write to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207. In the continental United States, call the toll-free hotline 800-638-2666. Maryland residents only, call 800-492-2937.

Patchwork blanket a big hit

By BETTY W. KINSER

What do you do with blankets that are beginning to "go?"

Dear Mrs. Kinser: I sure enjoy your column and the help you are giving. How can I sew the good parts of a blanket together to make a smaller one without bulges where they are sewn together? It would sort of make a patchwork blanket. — Mary Moore, Pahrump, NV

It certainly would, and a great idea it is. Use an old sheet (or a preshrunk new one) for backing. Cut the good parts of the blanket into large crazy patches. Baste to the sheet, overlapping the edges where necessary. Zig-zag around all edges of the patches in a dominant color. Use blanket binding or wide bias tape to bind the blanket edges. Chances are, your "old" patchwork blanket is going to make a bigger hit than a new one.

Dear Betty: A possible solution for the dilemma of fitting patterns back in the envelope: I use a 5x7-inch or 8x10-inch manila envelope or a file folder. Cut apart the pattern envelope and attach front and back to the larger folder. All the information is right there.

Pattern tissue has given me all kinds of problems by ripping when I trace darts, etc. Now I reinforce those markings with transparent tape and it works beautifully. I have several old-print patterns that I've used many times. — Wendy Wetzel, Spokane, Wash.

Thanks, Wendy. You sound so tidy. Would you like to come and sort my patterns?

Dear Mrs. Kinser: My suggestion for sewing rubber-backed dapers — Place a strip of tissue paper under the drape seam and one on top. This is for sewing two seams together. I never sew the bottom hem by machine. Take a little more time and sew it by hand. I alter drapes in my home and this works slicker than a whistle. — Mrs. Alfred Sick Nothing beats a word from an expert. Thank you, Mrs. Sick. The reader who first wrote of the problem had already tried using the tissue paper and wasn't having much luck, so we suggested the glue.

SWIMMING FOR HEALTH

Swimming is the best all-around sport for overall health. All muscles (particularly the heart) are spurred into action, as well as your breathing apparatus. Back and abdominal muscles are especially strengthened. And swimming is relaxing.

Overweight? Swimming is ideal. Calories are burned up in cold water when your body tries to maintain its core temperature. For women, studies have demonstrated that swimming fosters good tone in veins and leg muscles, so that the breakdown of blood vessels in legs (varicose veins) can be retarded.

You have to do enough active swimming to profit from it and to give your heart a good workout. It does nothing for you if you just paddle around.

Tips. Warm up with a breaststroke, then swim more vigorously and faster, until you can swim for 20 minutes without stopping. When you finish, stay in the water for at least five minutes before leaving it. For maximum health advantages, you should swim for at least half an hour every other day.

LaRaia-Businessmen Meeting Encouraging

Ever since the recent recount made Joseph LaRaia Quincy's next mayor, the business community has been somewhat apprehensive about the next two years.

Mayor Walter Hannon during his four years as the city's chief executive has been most cooperative with business and industry, realizing their importance in trying to maintain local economic stability.

Mayor-elect LaRaia, during his campaign, hardly projected a strong pro-business image and appeared closely allied with a number of anti-this and anti-that groups.

Well, the new mayor-to-be made his first public venture into the business community last week since the astonishing recount and came away making a quite favorable impression.

Mr. LaRaia, those attending the South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting at State Street South, discovered doesn't have horns after all.

Although he avoided the South Quincy MBTA Station issue, and spoke in generalities rather than getting specific, he said a few things that those in attendance wanted to hear.

Furthermore, perhaps, was his promise to maintain "a constant concern with the business community" and to represent that community "as fairly and as equitable as possible."

He was keeping open the line of communication between City Hall and the business community. He was not slamming the door, as some had feared.

"We want your ideas and suggestions," he told the gathered business leaders. "It is necessary that you tell us how you feel progress in Quincy should be guided. We rely on your judgement."

"We have to attract a retail enterprise—at least one major development in Quincy Sq.—to increase desirability to shoppers both within and outside Quincy. We must seek out and obtain retail development or developments."

He emphasized, however, that his administration will be concerned with business problems throughout the entire city—not just in downtown Quincy.

For the most part, the mayor-elect sounded not unlike the man he will succeed in office.

But one difference was quite evident when Mr. LaRaia got around to the subject of parking meters.

Mr. Hannon has been a strong advocate of meters. Mr. LaRaia is not that sold on them—or at least some of them.

He suggested removing some meters in downtown Quincy as one way "to make Quincy more accessible to shoppers."

"We really have to evaluate the value of meters in Quincy. We want your ideas. We must investigate our metered system of parking with the possibility of taking out meters in Quincy Sq."

Actually there are mixed feelings about meters in the business community itself. Proponents argue that they are a "must" to keep a continued turnover in the parking spaces so that more shoppers can use one space. Without the meters, they insist, store employees and MBTA commuters would hog the spaces all day.

Opponents counter that some of those spaces are being hogged right now. They also contend that women shoppers whose cars are tagged at expired meters are frightened by the experience and shun Quincy after it. They also point out that the meters do not allow for leisurely (and more) shopping that women get in non-metered shopping centers.

Perhaps there is a happy medium. Maybe, as it has been suggested in the past, the municipal parking garage could be changed over from meters to a ticket or some other system.

But whatever the fate of meters may be, we hope that the mayor-elect and the business community will give it careful thought before action is taken.

If some attending last week's meeting were disappointed that Mayor-elect LaRaia did not get into more specifics, they should remember he has an inaugural address to make Jan. 5. The specifics are probably being saved for that.

But we found it encouraging for the new mayor to stress the importance of cooperation and communication between City Hall and the business community.

A healthy business community is a must to keep the residential community from sliding downhill.

We hope business leaders take the new mayor up on his offer, to give him their input. And that he will use it in the best interests of the city

Chosen for grand jury duty were: Allen D. Dwyer, 534 Washington St.; William B. Dunbar, 15 Meadow St.; Grace L. Blaikie, 20 Roberta Lane; Mary J. Nicholson, 119 Glendale Rd.

Chosen for civil and criminal jury duty were: John R. Oakes, 13 Oakridge Rd.; Walter P. Griffin, 96 Farrington St.; Bernardine M. Smigorski, 235 Adams St.; Henry C. Costa, 233 Liberty St.; George Douglas Jr., 18 Lawn Ave.; Lee E. Amrhein, 50 Elm Ave.; Jeremiah B. Walsh, 127 Whitwell Ave.

The City Council extended a tribute to Miss M. Louise Dinegan, who is retiring at the end of this month after 51 years as a librarian at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The Council noted that Miss Dinegan "served and participated so greatly in our community" through involvement in the Altruza Club, the P.M. Division of the Quincy Women's Club and the Quincy Historical Society.

The City Council accepted the gift of a half acre of land along Pope's Creek in Squantum from Barbara and Harry W. Chandler, former Quincy residents.

City Solicitor Richard J. McCormick said the Chandlers sold their home on an adjoining parcel of land and moved to the Cape leaving the half acre of unsaleable marshland.

The City Council passed on to the Traffic Commission requests for stop signs on the following locations:

- * Rawson Rd at the intersection of Beech Street.

- * Billings Rd at the intersection of West Elm Avenue.

Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers said accidents at both placed have increased and residents have given him petitions for traffic control signs.

The Council voted to accept as city streets Winthrop from Babcock to Parkhurst, and Stoughton from Manet Ave. to Winthrop, all in the Hough's Neck section.

The Council voted a 2-hour limit on parking on the east side of Spear St., 150 feet from Francis Ave., in Quincy Center.

SUNBEAMS

If You Can't Beat 'Em Join 'Em

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Well, they say if you can't beat 'em, join 'em.

And so some of them did the other night at the $6 per head fund-raising friendship dance at Quincy Armory for Mayor-elect Joseph LaRaia.

An estimated 1,300 jammed the armory contributing at least $6,000 to help LaRaia's campaign debts.

And among the 1,300 were a number of new faces—new to the LaRaia camp. They included people—a few fairly well known—who had worked or contributed to Mayor Walter Hannon's campaign.

Some of the LaRaia people were amused by their presence and spent part of the evening pointing out to one another some of the "strangers." One LaRaia supporter was overheard telling another as he pointed to one of the newcomers: "I remember him carrying a Hannon sign on election day."

But that's politics.

PART OF THE money raised at the dance will be used to finance LaRaia's inaugural reception Jan. 5. There will be no big ball-too expensive LaRaia feels. And there won't be formal invitations going out to all residents. Too expensive, too, thinks LaRaia.

LaRaia, according to press aide Robert McCarthy, hopes to keep the inaugural reception expense under $1,000.

MICHAEL PEATRIDGE frankly confirms he is interested in running for state representative in Quincy's Third Norfolk District as noted here last week.

But, says he, he definitely would not run for the post if incumbent Brett seeks re-election next year. "I just won't run against Joe Brett," says Peatridge.

There's some speculation, incidentally that Brett may be appointed to a city post by LaRaia.

JAMES PAPILE of the well-known Quincy Papile family, is being mentioned for an appointment by LaRaia. The Speculation Corps thinks it may be assessor — if he wants it. If not he'll get another post.

SPEAKING OF APPOINTMENTS, outgoing Mayor Hannon is filling a few vacancies before the LaRaia administration takes over. This is par for the political course.

The most interesting one, is the naming of John Cheney to the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers to succeed former City Councillor Carl Anderson. Cheney, city development coordinator destined for the LaRaia axe, has long been one of Hannon's top campaign aides and advisors. His appointment to the hospital board doesn't expire until January, 1980. So even if LaRaia could build a political dynasty, he will have a strong Hannon man to contend with at the hospital for the next four years.

KATHY O'DONNELL kicked off her campaign for Democratic state committeewoman with an open house Sunday at her Executive House apartment. More than 100 attended. Democratic and Republican state committee members will be elected on the March 2 Presidential primary ballot.

REMEMBER WHEN YOU used to picture senior citizens sitting in rocking chairs? Well, now you can find a lot of them out skiing among other activities. In fact there must be so many of them skiing, the MDC is offering them reduced rates at the Blue Hills Ski Area when the slopes open for the winter season. They can purchase weekday lift tickets for $3.25, half-day lift tickets for $2.75 and weekday-night tickets for $2.75. All the seniors have to do is show their drivers license or MBTA ID cards. [They seem to be having all the fun.]

Hedges Seeks Repeal Of Meals Tax

Rep. Charles Hedges filed a bill this week to repeal the 5 per cent tax on meals of $1. or more which was scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1.

The 5 per cent tax was enacted by the legislature to raise funds to help defray the increased cost of old age assistance because of the liberalization of the law voted last session.

Many complaints were raised against the meal tax and it was reported that there were attempts to sabotage the law.

Hedges said he hoped that increased taxes on liquor and dog and horse racing would be substituted for the meal tax.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY— Good Intentions, Bad Economics

By ERIC SWIDER

Are you getting tired of noble-sounding proposals that never seem to turn out right in practice?

Well, here's another one for you: The "Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1975", introduced by Representative John D. Dent [D-Pa.].

On the surface, this bill would raise the minimum wage for most workers to $3 on January 1, 1977. Thereafter, the rate would go up automatically with rises in the Consumer Price Index, with an added one percent bonus increase each time it does.

The bill would also specify a rate for overtime work [over 40 hours a week] of 2.5 times the base rate [it's now 1.5]. And "tipped" employees - waiters and waitresses, etc. - would receive the full minimum wage in addition to their tips. [Under the present law, employers may use tips to offset 50% of the minimum wage.]

Sounds alluring, doesn't it? After all, how can anybody be against a raise for those at the low end of the wage scale.

But in practice, such laws accomplish nothing at best and at worst can actually hurt those they are supposed to help. To see why, take a close look at the major premises of this bill:

* Income for workers at the bottom of the wage scale can be raised by a law requiring employers to pay more.

What if the employer doesn't have the money? The government isn't proposing to give it to him. And with labor costs accounting for 70 to 80 percent of the cost of most products and services, most employers would have difficulty swallowing a big increase. Such a boost would increase production costs with increasing productivity - thus raising prices and contributing to inflation.

Of course, there is another alternative for the employer. He can try to maintain production with fewer people. In this case, it will be the low-skilled who are the first to be laid off. An employer just can't pay workers more than their work is worth.

[If the official minimum wage rate is lower than the rates established by the marketplace, then it doesn't do much good or much harm either - except to make the least skilled even less attractive to potential employers.]

* Nobody should have to work at an income below the poverty level.

The official "poverty level" is calculated for a family of four. What about the single teenager who's living at home and looking for his first job? He [or she] needs experience and training. But an employee who must be trained is not able to pull his weight immediately.

If employers are forced to pay the unskilled as much as it would cost them to hire the skilled, then obviously they'll hire the skilled in preference. That's why we have such high unemployment rates among the ranks of teenagers.

* High enough minimum rates for overtime will encourage employers to hire new people rather than working their present employees longer.

Most overtime work is a sometime thing - it comes and goes. Even at very high legislated rates for overtime pay, it still wouldn't pay an employer to add new full-time employees to his staff just to handle a seasonal peak or temporary backlog.

The effect of this kind of law is really counter-productive. If the cost of overtime pay is especially high, then the work will be given only to the most highly skilled, most productive employees - either that, or the overtime hours will be eliminated altogether and services reduced.

Nor does the damage end with the above list of disadvantages. Worst of all, this bill would start a rapidly escalating cycle of inflation that could only end in a spectacular collapse. If the minimum wage goes up automatically with the CPI when prices rise, then most other pay would rise too, to maintain differentials up the line. An Automatic rise in labor costs would cause another rise in prices, and so on.

Representative Dent is walking through a powder mill with a lighted match, looking for ways to be kind to the workers there.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce].

SPEAKING OUT

Labor Responds To Swider On Situs

Editor, Quincy Sun:

After reading Mr. Eric Swider's article concerning the Common Situs Picketing Bill now before Congress, and realizing Mr. Swider is the Executive Vice President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, I am convinced wholeheartedly he believes that what is good for the Chamber of Commerce is good for the USA.

Realizing this, I can see why some pertinent information was not included in Mr. Swider's vivid portrayal of the Bill, with words like "devastating", "innocent third parties", "screaming halt", etc. So quoting from the Bill itself, and other sources, I will try to supply some information to your readers concerning the other side of the Common Situs Picketing question.

The provision of this new law will clarify a technicality in the current law, and correct an unfair restriction placed on Unions in the Building and Construction industry under Section 8 [B] [4] of the Taft-Hartley Act. This 8 [B] [4] provision, as interpreted by the National Labor Relations Board in a 1949 decision, denies to the Building Trades Unions the right of peaceful picketing at the employment site - a right that is accorded all other Labor Unions.

Over the last 25 years, the past 5 Presidents of the United States [both political Parties] have endorsed legislation to correct this inequity against building tradesmen. The Secretaries of Labor of both Parties in the past five administrations have worked actively to secure this much-needed legislation. Year after year a small minority of Southern Senators filibuster against voting on this Bill, realizing a 2/3 vote was needed to end the filibuster. The legislation was never afforded the right, yes the right, to be voted up or down because of this political maneuver. Anyone familiar with the legislative process knows this maneuver is taken to keep a bill from coming to a vote. It is interesting to note that the Southern Senators who use this type of politicking against the Situs Bill come from notoriously anti-union Southern states. Maybe the Chamber of Commerce was more influential there.

Mr. Swider did make a very valid point when he said in the article that, "Any given construction project is only a temporary marriage between subcontractors." This is true, and this includes the general contractor, and this is the exact point that the Building Trades Unions and Congress is trying to bring out in the Bill - that there is a voluntary contractual agreement between parties on the same site, and the Building Trades Unions should have the right of peaceful demonstration or picketing at this particular site, if need be.

I cannot conceive of Mr. Swider saying he is sad to report that our local Congressional delegation, Congressmen Burke and Studds and Senators Kennedy and Brooke have voted to support this Bill, because "they may have a lack of total understanding of this legislation." BUT he did say it, and this puts them in with the entire Massachusetts Congressional delegation, both Democrat and Republican alike, because they all voted for H.R. 5900 - Common Situs Picketing. Interestingly enough, this puts them in with some pretty good company - like our past five Presidents [from Truman through Nixon] and the past eight Secretaries of Labor, who were all very knowledgeable on this subject. I congratulate them for having the rights and interests of building tradesmen at heart. Our entire Massachusetts Congressional delegation should be thanked for this demonstration of unity for a cause which would rectify an injustice placed on the working men and women of this country. And, that percentage of union members who Mr. Swider says the polls say are opposed to the Bill, are opposed only because they want even less restrictions against them than this Bill provides for.

I suggest to Mr. Swider that he read the companion bill that accompanies the Situs Bill, rather than commenting only on half a measure. And I further suggest that maybe the Chamber of Commerce in general, and Mr. Swider, may be out of step and marching to the beat of a different drum from that of the working men and women of this Nation.

In closing, I would like to quote Dwight Eisenhower, a Republican President, certainly not a foe of the Chamber of Commerce, but even he recognized the injustice of the Situs Bill that had to be corrected. This is taken from President Eisenhower's Labor-Management Relation Message, and can be found in House Document No. 291, January 11, 1954:

"The prohibitions in the Act against secondary boycotts are designed to protect innocent third parties from being injured in labor disputes that are not their concern. The true secondary boycott is indefensible and must not be permitted. The Act must not, however, prohibit legitimate concerted activities against other than innocent parties. I recommend that the Act be clarified by making it explicit that concerted action against an employer on a construction project, who, together with other employers, is engaged in work on the site of the project, will not be treated as a secondary boycott."

Christmas is Sharing

Laura Schofield, 10, gives flowers from her class to Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell, 84, at the Eventide Home, Quincy.

Lots of people take old people for granted. They think now that they're old they'll have nothing to do with them because people think they're boring. Well they're not.

Before I moved I went to my friend's house, she was an old lady and I know that I made her happy by visiting her. All it takes is a little of your time to visit an old person and make him or her happy. I hope these gifts that our class made for the Nursing Homes and Senior Citizens Club will make them happy and show that we care about them. So please try to help them out whenever you can.

By Laura Schofield

Senior Citizens are older. I hope that they don't die before I am a teenager so I can help them. Senior Citizens are good people. I like them very much. I think that everybody should be nice to older people.

By Ben Yonnie

"Christmas is sharing" is the theme of our Christmas issue. Our guest editors from Atherton Hough School are living proof of this spirit. Mrs. McGillicuddy's first graders collected toys for needy children as a class Christmas project. Miss Morris' fifth graders concentrated on the other end of the age spectrum. They made gifts for the elderly and brought them to nursing and retirement homes. Some of the children wrote beautiful essays on how they feel about the elderly. We wish we could have reprinted all. Here are a few.

During the past years people have not been paying attention to the older people. Young people should pay more attention to the older people. They should help them with their bags and visit them. People in nursing homes get lonely. So spend a little time with them, Please!

By Steven Johnston, Mike Miller, James McPartlin

We like to think of the older people. We are giving these gifts because we know they have given so much during their lifetime. We are giving these gifts to make them feel happy. We want to let them know that we care about them. Just because they're older now doesn't mean they have been forgotten by us. They should get just as much care as we do. We hope to make them happy when we give these gifts. We appreciate what the older people have done for our country.

By Kathy Collagan, Ellen Deady

First graders Kathleen Ryan and Robert Callahan bring toys for needy children, to class.

Older people are the most important people in the world. Some of them are very helpless. They need lots of help. Some people forget that older people were once young and that is why our country is what it is now because they made it grow.

By Joseph Dobbs

We're always having fun while we don't think and care enough about the people we should. Who? The Senior citizens. So we're making some crafts to make the Senior Citizen happy. We have a good teacher to help us. We think Christmas is a time to give as well as receive. This is what we're making.

First we're making some vases with flowers made of glass. Then we're using Leggs' eggs and Santa Claus stickers on them. We're making pins for the ladies to wear. Then we're making some pencil holders for the men. It's not much but that is all we could give.

By Mike McArdle, Ted Walsh, Chris Richman

If You Had Lots of Money,

I would give a notebook to our principal, Mr. Baccari because I think he works hard and has a lot to remember. He could write down the things he wants to do.

By Tanya James, 6

I'd give a car to my mother. And I'd give Santa some money because he has to give a lot of toys and the prices are high.

By Marc Farrand, 6

I like Curly on the Three Stooges. I would give him a fire engine because he likes noise and a hat to keep his bald head warm.

By Clyde Mitchell, 6

I would give a new pair of Sox to Carl Yastreski because his had holes in them in the World Series. And I would give the president a helper -- a rich one who could use his money to help him make the world clean.

By Vincent Norton, 6

I would like to give a lot of money to starving people so they could eat and buy some clothes. Then they would get big and strong instead of being weak and hungry. I would give some of my money to orphanages so the children could get well if they had something wrong with them.

By Kevin Murphy, 10

We would give clothes, food, toys and nurses and doctors to the people of Vietnam because we feel sick about the way they live. To the children, we would give toys and anything else they wanted. We would give each person in Vietnam ten Christmas presents each.

Hannon Accepts S.S. Chamber Post

economic development with knowledgeability of political process and where to go very quickly to get the answers. Walter will certainly provide an awful lot of leadership in that direction."

Conceding the appointment could be "controversial", Swider said: "Hiring him might be a controversial type of decision. The South Shore Chamber of Commerce is a non-profit, non-political organization. But in real terms, I think it was a very right decision - a unique opportunity to get a guy who can produce pretty quick results."

In his new post, Hannon will manage a $55,000 budget. The Chamber's total budget is $250,000.

Hannon will report to Swider and will work with a director coordinating team headed by Boston Whaler President David Loveless.

In a statement released at Wednesday's press conference, Swider said some of Hannon's major responsibilities will be to:

- Retain industrial jobs.
- Launch a program to secure design funds for a new Fore River Bridge.
- Continue work with the Quincy Division of Employment Security to increase placements by 20 per cent.
- Conduct two Job Fairs to find jobs for 400.
- Attract new jobs, expanding the Market Outreach Program.
- Conduct South Shore VIP tours for land developers, exposing them to the area's opportunities.

Conduct a work-force training program which will secure employment through education.

Swider, who noted Hannon helped to bring State Street South, the Jordan Marsh Warehouse and Kemper Insurance to Quincy, said:

"Walter's understanding of business' needs will be an invaluable asset to us in expanding our program on contacts with potential new employers throughout our entire market area."

Hannon, who will step into his new post in early January, says he will leave the mayor's office with no regrets. He told The Sun:

"It would be less than the truth to say I wasn't disappointed I wasn't elected. I loved the job. I loved being mayor. I wanted very much to be mayor two more years. I wanted it, but I lost it. You wake up one morning and find out you're not the mayor anymore. So you do something else."

"I've no regrets of what I've ever said or done. Whatever I did, I did for one purpose - what I thought was in the best interest of the city."

Council Delays Action On Voting Machines

[Cont'd from Page 1]

"They would be used in state, federal and county as well as city elections," he said. "I don't think the city should be burdened with the entire expense of purchasing them."

He suggested that the machines could be loaned out to neighboring towns for their elections, which take place usually in March.

Powers disclosed he has written to John Cloonan of the State Election Department requesting information on the following points:

- What cities currently have voting machines?
- What companies make voting machines?
- What would be the estimated cost of machines for 50,000 voters?

● What problems have been encountered with machines currently in use?

Powers said the purpose of a study committee would be to gather information on voting machines in three areas: accuracy, tamperproof safeguards and durability of equipment.

"I hope we can begin this study as soon as possible," he said. "There were a lot of heartaches on both sides in the recent election."

The election saw six blocks of 50 votes shift from Mayor Walter J. Hannon to challenger LaRaia in a recount, turning a 134-vote defeat into a 483-vote victory for LaRaia.

Model Legislation Passed

Norfolk County To Get First Full-Time D.A.'s

Model legislation has been passed to make Norfolk County the first in the state requiring all assistant district attorneys to become full-time and to give up their private law practices.

The bill is expected to be on Gov. Michael Dukakis' desk by the beginning of next week for his anticipated signature.

Guided through the legislature by Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin, the bill requires the change to full-time status by Feb. 1, 1976.

Filed at the request of Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt—who himself gave up his private law practice to serve as a full-time district attorney—the bill reduces from 13 to five the number of assistant district attorney positions funded by the state.

Calling the measure "model legislation", Delahunt said:

"This bill also eliminates any question of conflict of interest. No longer will a Norfolk County Prosecutor appear for the Commonwealth in one court and have a private client in another. I believe this model is one you will see others follow in the future."

Delahunt also hailed the legislation as "an important step forward in professionalizing public prosecution in this county and in Massachusetts."

The full-time assistant district attorney legislation follows legislation passed earlier in the session requiring the district attorney position to be full-time by 1979.

Under the current system, state funds pay the 13 assistants' salaries varying between $6,000 and $13,000 per year for a total cost of $137,000.

The recently-passed legislation uses the same sum total towards the five full-time prosecutors at annual salaries ranging from $23,000 to $30,000.

The legislation also cuts four positions funded by the county and upgrades the salaries of five assistants to a full-time basis, reducing the entire district attorney budget by $14,000.

Federal funding will provide for the salaries of seven assistant district attorneys, bringing the total full-time staff to 17. Delahunt said:

"We have had some outstanding attorneys representing this office, but, on major crimes especially, they are confronted with some of the top attorneys in the nation. Criminal prosecution deserves full-time professional attention in this county and in the Commonwealth."

Delahunt said he has been meeting with area police departments in an effort to develop "a working relationship" between his assistant district attorneys and police officials. He said:

"I anticipate that full-time assistants will serve as legal advisors to these departments. Supreme Court decisions have made criminal investigation a very difficult business. One mistake, one minor violation, can mean that a case is lost."

Delahunt said assistant district attorneys will be assigned to various police departments and be available "on a 24-hour basis" to answer questions or provide legal assistance. He said:

"This also means that our staff will become more familiar with the cases from the moment a crime is committed instead of being briefed just before entering the courtroom."

An Interview at State Street Bank and Trust

What Does It Mean You Do Your Homework ?

Our Guest Editors say 'thank you'

Mrs. McGillicuddy's First Grade

Miss Morris' Fifth Grade

Mr. Allinson, it says in your ads that you do your homework. What does that mean. Well, Stephen, we want to do a thorough and complete job for our customers. To do this requires a complete study of our banking services and of our customers' needs. We might find that one, or a combination of several, banking services could be tailored to meet all of the customer's requirements.

Do you have tests?

You can be sure of that, Stephen! It is our customers who mark us. If we do not do a good job for them, then we won't get a passing grade. We are getting good marks when we keep our present customers happy and when we draw new ones.

Mr. Benson, why would State Street Bank and Trust sponsor a paper-for children like "Young Ideas"?

Well, Stephen, we think business is exciting. We would like young people to feel the excitement of the business world and to understand it. Business creates jobs. And jobs create a better life for everyone. We think that our business, banking, is one of the most interesting. The earlier in life that people understand banking, the better. Another reason we would sponsor a paper for children is State Street Bank and Trust is a part of the community of Quincy. And we feel this is a worth while project.

Mr. Allinson, do you just lend people money?

Stephen, we are a full service bank. We accept deposits and we pay interest. We have checking accounts for our customers: We lend money to people and corporations to run their businesses. We provide trust services which means we help people to make investment decisions. We are involved in securities. We are the custodian of $14 billion worth of mutual funds. And we allow savings institutions to use our computer. All in all, we provide over 100 services to individuals and to huge corporations.

Mr. Benson, what are mutual funds?

Stephen, mutual funds simply means people pool their money to buy stocks. They get advice from professionals whose job is determining what companies will bring a profit to the customer.

Mr. Benson, could you explain what the stock market is?

The stock market enables you to actually buy a small part of a company. You become a part owner. The stock market is a way for a lot of people to make the same investment. Then when the company makes money, you make money on each share that you own. This is called the owner's return on his investment.

Mr. Allinson, what do you use your computer for?

Actually, Stephen, the computer is just a giant adding machine. Therefore we use it for any type of arithmetic we have to do. Did you know the computer works in nano-seconds -- that is, billionths of a second? We keep our own customers' records on the computer. And we provide computer services to over 100 savings institutions.

Mr. Allinson, are you glad you moved to Quincy?

We are very happy. We can operate more efficiently. We are now able to have all of our operations under one roof, and we think that the people of Quincy are very nice. Did you know that almost 300 Quincy residents work for State Street Bank and Trust?

Spotlight On Health Department

Free Services Include Pap Tests, Chest X-Rays, Electrocardiograms

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

(Fourth in a Series)

To date, The Quincy Sun Health Center Spotlight series has focused on the range of services offered to the city's infants, toddlers, and school-age youngsters up to the high school student.

What about the adult?

Quincy's Health Center indeed does not neglect the adult. The Center offers myriad screening services to Quincy adults, ranging from electrocardiograms to Pap tests to chest X-rays.

Unlike the walk-in Well-Baby Clinic, the adult clinic requires an advance appointment. Mrs. Edith Collins, R.N. emphasizes the adult clinic is a screening clinic where nurses and a technician administer tests to pinpoint problems or to present the patient that comforting "clean bill of health." No physician is present to examine or treat patients.

Working Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. by appointment only, the small adult screening staff administers chest X-rays, vitalometer testing, electrocardiograms (EKG), tuberculosis, skin tests, Pap smears and immunizations to adult Quincy residents.

Mrs. Collins, who conducts many of the tests offered at the clinic, emphasizes every one attending the adult clinic must have a private physician to whom the completed test reports can be sent. Mrs. Collins explained:

"We send the processed reports out to the physician himself within a week to 10 days. But if I see something needing immediate attention, I hand-deliver it."

While some physicians send a patient directly to the screening for a certain test, Quincy residents may still utilize the screening services offered without the request of a private physician.

"People may feel they are in need of the service even before seeing a doctor. They can come in for a test, too."

But Mrs. Collins stressed: "This is a screening clinic. A visit here does not take the place of a visit to a physician."

A simple chest X-ray can tag a range of ailments. Mrs. Collins said:

"We pick up many things with the chest x-ray. We have spotted tumors, cancer, tuberculosis and emphysema."

Chest x-rays results reach the patient's private physician within 10 days, Mrs. Collins noted.

Another test administered at the clinic involves the vitalometer - a machine which can help tag chronic obstruction in the lung through evaluation of a person's breathing. Used in conjunction with the chest x-ray, the vitalometer can be a helpful diagnostic tool to a physician, said Mrs. Collins.

According to Mrs. Collins, electrocardiogram testing forms "a very busy part" of the adult screening program. Technician Ella Morrill readies the patient for the EKG test; strapping electrodes to the arms and legs. This test taps the electric activity in the heart, examining the organ from 12 different angles.

Although Mrs. Collins explains the EKG does not prevent heart attacks, the test can tell a doctor vital information about any past heart problems and can also anticipate other problems and complications.

As part of a city-wide, community project, the health center administers the Mantoux tuberculosis skin test not only at the adult screening clinic but throughout the entire Quincy School System and in city-wide nursing homes.

In fact, the clinic is now in the process of checking all Quincy City Hospital personnel for any evidence of exposure to the disease.

Quincy Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney says the health department checks the entire public school personnel for tuberculosis every two years. Everyone - from school administrators to school teachers to school bus drivers to lunch matrons to custodians and tutors - receives a Mantoux skin test.

Mrs. Collins notes the patient must return to the clinic - or to wherever the test was administered - within two to three days, enabling the nurse to "read" each person's arm, checking for a positive reaction to the shot. Mrs. Collins warned:

"If a patient fails to return within 48 to 72 hours, he has to start all over again - much to his or her dismay."

The clinic also administers PAP tests which check for any trace of cervical cancer. Mrs. Collins recommends a yearly PAP smear for all women as well as a yearly internal examination.

Once a month, the Center offers an evening adult clinic. Although December's clinic has been cancelled, evening services will be offered again beginning in January.

No specific day of the month is reserved for the evening clinic but Dr. Mahoney says the clinic usually lands around the middle of the month.

These evening clinics operate from 5-8 p.m. - again, by appointment only - and offer all the above test screenings with the exception of the PAP smears.

In addition, the evening clinics offer another service not provided during the daytime sessions: adult immunization against tetanus and polio. Surprisingly, Dr.

Mahoney reports a sizeable number of adults lack the proper immunization against both. He said:

"A lot of adults are not immunized against tetanus and many have not carried out the proper polio immunizations."

Explaining the rule of thumb to follow, Dr. Mahoney said a person should receive a tetanus shot immediately if cut with a contaminated, dirty instrument if that person has not received a tetanus shot within the past two years. Otherwise, the individual should receive a tetanus immunization once every ten years.

A glance at this year's January through October figures show the adult clinic as active indeed. During that 10-month period, the clinic staff administered 1,490 x-rays, 950 vitalometer tests, 2,292 tuberculosis tests, 1,211 EKGs, 214 PAP tests, 246 polio shots and 196 tetanus immunizations.

While it's nice to know what the adult screening clinic does offer, it's equally as nice to know just what the clinic does not offer. Mrs. Collins said:

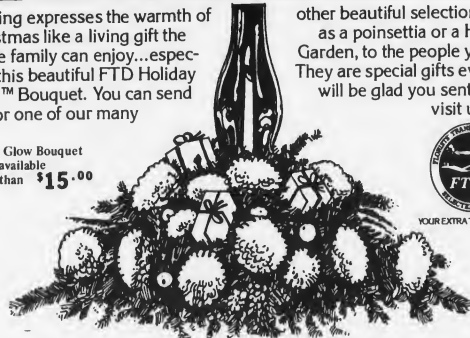

"This is not an emergency clinic. If you are in a lot of pain and suspect you are having a heart attack, don't come here! Go to the hospital! They are equipped to handle that type of emergency. We aren't!"

Presidents Eye State Tourney Berth

By TOM SULLIVAN

Bob Sylvia is starting his 10th year as Quincy hockey coach and he is aiming for a return to the state tournament after missing his sixth tourney berth last year by the margin of a single win or tie.

"We just missed with a 13-5 record, but this year we are playing 20 league games instead of 18," Sylvia said. "We don't boast much varsity experience, but we have a lot of good skaters and shooters and I feel we will have the firepower to score some goals, but our goalies and defensemen are untested."

The Presidents last Saturday played a period against Weymouth North and a period against Hingham in a jamboree at the Quincy Youth Arena. They opened their season last night [Wednesday] against Cambridge Latin and Saturday at 7 p.m. will host North Quincy at the Youth Arena. Monday they will be home to Rindge Tech at 7:30, also at the Youth Arena, and Tuesday will play Weymouth South at Randolph at 2 o'clock.

The big man for Quincy, of course, is the brilliant Frankie Guest, a senior and one of the best schoolboy players in New England.

Guest is centering the line with junior Bill Hamill and sophomore Mark Giordano at the wings. A year ago Guest scored 30 goals in the strong Suburban League.

Guest, Hamill, Lynch, Barry and Previte are veterans.

The only veteran defenseman is senior Dennis Berton, who comes from one of Quincy's leading hockey families. His sophomore brother Brian is another defenseman and his older brother Hal is a former Quincy star.

Another veteran, Nick Cyr, has been sidelined with an injury but is expected to start playing soon. Other defensemen are seniors Bill Dalton, Bruce Aristide and Gerry DeLuca and

The goalies are senior Pete Hajjar, junior Jim Buchan and sophomore Jim Deitsch. Hajjar and Buchan have had limited experience and Deitsch played for the freshman team and has a good deal of youth hockey experience.

"I think Quincy Youth Hockey is beginning to pay off for us and for North Quincy," Sylvia said. "We had more than 70 boys turnout and everyone has had some experience, thanks to youth hockey. It used to be when I began coaching at Quincy that any boy who could skate could make the team. Now, with so many boys coming up from the youth hockey program, it is very hard to know who to keep. My hardest job is telling a boy he has to be cut. It costs a boy's family so much to play youth hockey, I hate to have to cut any of them."

Sylvia this year has one of his former captains, Jackie Crowley, as his assistant coach. "He was my first captain and the best player I have ever coached," Bob said. Crowley has been coaching junior hockey.

All Quincy home games will be played at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Veteran Raiders Squad Looks For Scoring Punch

Last year North Quincy's hockey team had only a 4-10-4 record, but this season Coach Ron Erikson is loaded with veterans and, if he can come up with some scoring power, he feels the Raiders could have their best season in several years.

Erikson boasts one of the outstanding goalies in the state in Dick Wilson, and some experienced defensemen.

"I feel we can keep the other teams' scores down but we must do some scoring ourselves," he said. "That was our big problem last year. Wilson did a tremendous job in goal and our defense was strong, but we had trouble scoring."

North opened its second Suburban League season last night [Wednesday] against Weymouth North, expected to be one of the league powers. Last Saturday the Raiders played a period against Weymouth South and one against Milton in the jamboree at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Saturday night at 7 the Raiders will meet Quincy at the Youth Arena, Monday at 7:30 will play at Waltham and next Tuesday at 2 will play at Brookline.

"Virtually all our seniors and juniors played last year," Erikson pointed out. "We lost only five players, but they were good ones."

The only players who graduated were Paul O'Donnell, Mike McLean, Al Thomas, Joe Pistorino and John Mackiewicz. Erikson will start Wilson in goal with Steve Keough and Steve Giglio on defense and a line of center Glenn Hanson and wings Kevin Murphy and Paul Hurley.

The second line is expected to comprise center Steve Cronin and wings Frank McGinnis and Matt Schaefer.

A third line has John Cooney at center and Mike Marks and Jim Moore on the wings, while a fourth line sees Dave Hurley at center and Paul Doran and Ken Drain at wing.

Mike Smith and John Andrews make up the number two defense duo, while Jeff Gavin and Brian Watts are the number three pair.

Rounding out the Raider squad are goalies Ron Beresznewicz and Jim Coffey, defenseman Greg Dillon, Ed Santry, Rich Troy and Tom Pistorino and forwards Andy Burke, Bob Carmody, Bob Weddleton, Tom Koelsch, Paul MacDonald and Mike Pitts.

Erikson had a turnout of 55 and he said, "the quality is far superior than that of past years."

Bob Troup is back as junior varsity coach and Ed Grogan as freshman skipper. Paul Duggan and John Dolbec are the managers.

All North home games will be played at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Raiders Win Division 2 Title

North Quincy's cross country team finished its most successful season in history recently when it placed second to league champion Brockton in the all-Suburban League meet over the Houghton Pond course.

Although the Raiders, beaten only by Brockton in league competition, were second in the league meet, Bart Petracca, unbeaten in dual meet competition, won the race. North's Marty Levenson was fifth, Mike Morin 13th and Jim Gavigan 14th. Quincy's Bob Thorne was second.

Earlier North, which finished with a 12-1 record, winning 12 in a row after its opening day loss to unbeaten Brockton, had won the state Division Two title over the Franklin Park course.

Lou Tozzi's North harriers finished well ahead of runnerup Concord-Carlisle, which had 128 points. The Raiders placed fourth a year ago.

North ace Bart Petracca, who has been suffering for the past two weeks from an injury, finished second to Mike Hurron of Tewksbury. Despite the injury Bart may have won the meet if he hadn't taken a fall. Marty Levenson was 12th, Bob Levenson 16th, Mike Morin 25th, Jim Gavigan 26th and Ken O'Brien 31st. Jerry Keyes was North's other finisher.

"I want to pay tribute to my captains, Petracca and O'Brien, our only seniors," Tozzi said. "They are great leaders and a real inspiration."

Also qualifying for the state championships was Quincy's Bob Thorne, who placed second to Tim Sullivan of Needham in Division One. Although not qualifying, Quincy sophomore John Saville did very well and placed 15th.

North earlier last week defeated Quincy for the third year in a row, 25-34, as Petracca easily broke his own course record in his final regular season meet of his schoolboy career.

Petracca, unbeaten in dual meet competition this year and loser of only one meet last year, covered the course in 11:31, bettering his own record by 31 seconds.

Quincy's Kevin O'Brien was second and North's Marty Levenson was third, defeating Quincy's top scorers, Thorne [fourth] and sophomore Saville [fifth]. Following were Gavigan, Morin, Bob Levenson, O'Brien and Peter Maloney, all of North.

North finished 12-1 overall and 8-1 in the Suburban League, while Quincy was 5-5 overall and 4-5 in the league, a marked improvement over last year. North's only loss was in its opener to Brockton, which is unbeaten over the last three years.

The Quincy girls edged North, 28-30, to make their record 6-3. The Raiderettes are 3-5.

Quincy took the first three places as Ellen Caramanica was the winner, Paula Constatas second and Dottie Irvine third. All are only sophomores. North's Debbie Coutts was fourth, setting a new school record, and North took the next five places with Maureen Tracey, Mary Horrigan, Michele Seltzer, Judy Malloy and Paula MacKenzie finishing in that order. Quincy's Laura Noenick was 10th.

● Soccer

A-N Wins 3rd Crown

For the third successive year the Atlantic-North soccer team won the city junior high school championship as Coach Leo Donovan's booters finished unbeaten with a 6-0-2 record.

Only one goal was scored against the A-N team, with a 1-1 tie with Sterling resulting in the only opposition goal. The other tie was scoreless against Broad Meadows.

The team's wins were over Point, 1-0; Sterling, 4-0; Central, 3-0; Point, 3-0; Broad Meadows, 2-0, and Central, 2-0.

Tom Reney and Mark Will were the co-captains. The leading scorer was Dave Donovan with six goals.

Broad Meadows Girls City JV Champions

The Broad Meadows girls' basketball teams recently ended their seasons and for the second year in a row the junior varsity won the city championship with an undefeated record.

While the jayvees were 8-0, Coach Corinne Mitchell's varsity girls finished with a 5-3 mark.

The junior varsity defeated Central, 28-10; Atlantic-North, 21-4; Sterling, 17-11; Point, 33-2; Central, 21-8; Atlantic-North, 26-10; Sterling, 25-7, and Point, 30-8.

Co-Captains Susan Callahan and Laura Riley led the scorers with 51 and 47 points respectively. Second year veterans Joanne Pacetti and Donna DePietro performed well at center, replacing Callahan.

Newcomers Patrice Bohmbach, Maureen Maher, Donna Reardon, Carol Carpenter and Marla Bloom from the eighth grade made great strides in offensive technique, while Clare Lynch and Laura Miller concentrated on defense and did a fine job, according to Mrs. Mitchell.

"The seventh graders made many fine contributions," the coach said. "Linda Brennan was especially strong on defense and also scored 23 points. Camille Brooks, Ann McCarron, Peggy Morrell, Paula Morrison and Robin Lotti worked hard at developing their potential as forwards, while Nancy Chludzinski, Karen Deady, Joan Giordani, Kathy Petrilli, Sandy Walters and Ruthann Roche worked hard all season at being versatile players.

"The girls have done a fine job and have given me 100 percent effort all year. The eighth graders have been undefeated in 16 games over two years and are developing into an excellent all-round team. I am proud of their development as a team."

Co-Capt. Lynne Powers was high scorer for the varsity with 56 points, followed by Nancy Campbell with 54.

"Co-Captain Paula Lynch, Hazel Conroy, Lorraine Denver and Brenda Morrison were three year veterans who improved tremendously," the BM coach continued. "The other players who complemented the three-year girls, Carol Caramanica, Linda Deady, Annemarie Lydon, Barbara McClelland, Paula Miller, Peggy Rugg, Joan St Angelo and Kathy Ward, did a fine job as well."

Dawn Magee was the team manager.

The ninth graders leave Broad Meadows with an excellent three-year record of 18-5-1.

QJC Jaguars Face Tough Schedule

The Quincy Junior College basketball team, now known as the Jaguars (name selected by the student government), this year is playing an independent schedule as the Mass. Junior College Conference, of which QJC was a charter member, has disbanded.

Coch Earl Vermillion's team is facing probably the toughest schedule ever with such opponents as Bristol Community College, Massasoit C.C., Dean Junior College, Mass Bay C.C., Rhode Island Junior College and Quinsigamond C.C., all selected for the N.E. NJCAA Region 21 championship playoffs within the past two years.

Other top foes are Worcester Ind. Tech and Essex A & T, 1974-75 co-champions of the Mass. Jr. College Conference, Harvard Junior Varsity, Bridgewater State JV, Worcester Jr. College, Wentworth Institute and Mt. Wachusett C.C.

Vermillion has a good nucleus of veterans including Co-Capt. Jim Rogers from Christopher Columbus High School, a 6-4 center who was second in rebounding and ninth in scoring in New England last year, averaging 20 points, 15 rebounds and five assists; Co-Capt. Bernie Holleran from North Quincy High, a six-foot guard who averaged 12 points, five rebounds and five assists a year ago; Tom Carmody, of Columbus H.S., 6-4 guard-forward who averaged 12 points, nine rebounds and five assists a game last season; Tony Mitchell from Jamaica Plain, a six-foot guard, who averaged eight points, four rebounds and five assists last season; Dan Donahue from Boston Tech, a 6-5 forward who is a fine rebounder and a good shooter, and Steve Orlando, from North Quincy High, a 5-9 guard who is currently recovering from knee surgery.

Vermillion has 10 freshmen who should give the squad good depth and balance. They are:

Tom Perry, Quincy High, 6-5 center-forward, a fine rebounder, shooter and defender.

Bob Christensen, Don Bosco High, 6-3 guard who shows great potential with his quick moves to the basket.

Ken Baumeister, Weymouth North High, 5-9 guard, a quick, aggressive defender and playermaker.

Charlie Djerf, Quincy High, six-foot guard-forward who has strong quick moves, is a fine off-balance shooter and aggressive defender.

Tom D'Arcy, Sacred Heart High, Weymouth, 6-4 center, a tough, aggressive defender and rebounder.

John MacDonald, Quincy High, 6-4 forward, an excellent shooter who is expected to see considerable action.

Bill Wentworth, Braintree High, 6-3 forward, a fine rebounder and shooter.

Bob Prakop, Quincy High,

5-9 guard, who looks good as a playmaker and defender.

Pat Hartigan, Sacred Heart High, 5-8 guard, a steady heads-up player capable of running the offense.

Gary Beggelman, Quincy High, 6-3 forward who has quick moves and is a good shooter.

After bowing to Bristol and the Harvard Junior Varsity, QJC topped Wentworth, 82-69, for its first win.

The Jaguars were runnersup in the recent Sam Craig Memorial Tournament at Quincy Vo-Tech, losing an 89-85 squeaker to Massasoit Community College in the finals after defeating Middlesex Community in the first round.

Rogers was named to the all-tournament team and Carmody was named the Most Valuable Player. QJC also received a trophy for sportsmanship. At the post-tournament banquet the Jaguars retired Kevin Gibson's number 23. Gibson, now at Eastern Nazarene, is the first QJC player to be named a Junior College All-American.

Last week QJC made its record 3-4 on the season with an 89-75 win over Mt. Wachusett Community College. Rogers and Carmody had 21 and 20 points respectively, while Christensen and Perry combined for 27. Perry also hauled down 14 rebounds and Rogers had 13. Christensen had eight assists.

TV SHORTS Don't Look Now, Barbara, But That Was CBS

Were you one of the soap opera fans who was faced with disappointment at the time delay in WCVB-TV's broadcasting of "The Edge of Night"? More than 2,000 people called the station in Needham to complain about the shift. Channel 5 wants all irate fans to know that they have booked the series' co-stars, DONALD MAY and LOIS KIBBEE as special guests for "Good Morning!" Jan. 6.

BARBARA WALTERS wound up in an unusual situation during the President's recent trip to China. BETTY FORD had just completed her impromptu dance recital when Barbara decided she had a perfect opportunity to do a quick on-the-spot interview. She hollered for a camera team and a sound and camera man responded. The scene was soon on tape, but what Barbara hadn't realized was that the filming team was from CBS, not NBC, which is home network of her daily "Today" show.

The crime, the hunt and the trial that shocked the world will be with us again when NBC presents "The Lindbergh Kidnapping case." The three-hour factual re-enactment will star CLIFF DEYOUNG, ANTHONY HOPKINS, MARTIN BALSAM, JOSEPH BALSAM, WALTER PIDGEON, KEENAN WYNN and SIAN BARBARA ALLEN.

It's no secret by now that MARY TYLER MOORE will soon be flying off to Moscow to host the American version of the Bolshoi Theatre Ballet's performance of Prokofiev's "Romeo and Juliet." Mary will be leaving for the Soviet Union in mid-January although the finished special will not be aired on CBS until later next year.

LISA LUCAS will return as Addie Mills when "Addie and the King of Hearts" turns up as a Valentine special on CBS. Returning with Lisa will be familiar cast members MILDRED NATWICK and JASON ROBARDS.

The Family Viewing Hour will be the topic of discussion on NBC's "Tomorrow" program with host TOM SNYDER. Among the participants will be producer, NORMAN LEAR. Syndicated talk show host, LOU GORDON, is scheduled for open heart surgery to replace an aorta valve damaged by viral pneumonia last year. Gordon's shows have been taped through the rest of the month and guests have been selected to host later segments until Gordon returns, possibly three months from now.

The CBS series "Joe and Sons" has been canceled in favor of "Popi," a weekly series based on the 1969 movie of the same name concerning a Puerto Rican father who holds three part-time jobs in order to raise his two sons in a New York City barrio. As well, ANNE MEARA and ALEX ROCCO, both having their respective shows canceled ["Kate McShane" and "Three For The Road"] are being teamed by CBS for a new situation comedy called "This Better Be It"...

The Hollywood Women's Press Club's 35th annual Golden Apple Awards were given out recently and SUSAN CLARK was named "New Female Star of the Year" for her highly acclaimed performance as Babe Didrickson Zaharias in the television film, "Babe"...

Rosalind Russell's pleas to send donations to the Arthritis Foundation in lieu of flowers during her recent illness resulted in donations of more than $100,000.

MIKE DOUGLAS is filming two weeks worth of his shows in Miami Beach. Co-hosts and guests will include JACKIE GLEASON, JERRY LEWIS, CHRISTOPHER PLUMMER, SEAN CONNERY, MICHAEL CAINE, BARRY NEWMAN.

Skating Champions Stars Of Ice Capades 1975-'76

Ice Capades has always showcased some of the finest figure skaters in the world, and this year is no exception.

The brand-new ice spectacular opens Dec. 26 at The Boston Garden for 17 performances through Jan. 4.

Returning in their fourth spectacular season, three-time U.S. Pair Champions and twice World Bronze Medalists, Jo Jo Starbuck and Ken Shelley are two of the most exciting skaters in the professional ranks. The pair display their brilliant form to the music of "Grieg's Piano Concerto in A Minor." Ken, who also won the U.S. Men's title, shines in the production, "The Story of Tsing-Tsu."

Portraying Miss Physical Fitness, Jo Jo shows the audience how to get into shape in "Gym 'n Ice Tricks." She is joined by International Grand Prix Gold Medalist Billy Chapel, an inventive dancer and aspiring choreographer. Paul Guzman, Ice Capades' Soul Man on Ice, assists them. Paul made his name in several Southern California skating competitions. His training in gymnastics, modern dance and jazz enhances his dashing performance.

Romantic adagio stylings are the specialty of Peter Gordon and Barbara Wilson. Peter held the title of New York Free-Style Champion from 1964 through '66, while Barbara formerly won the British Columbia Senior Ladies Pair Championship, the Most Artistic Award of the B.C. Championships, and a Silver Medal in Ice Dance.

Tops on ice, teenage star Albert Lucas juggles like a wizard.

Tickets are available at The Boston Garden Box Office.

THE DAZZLING DUO — Former U.S. Pair Champions Jo Jo Starbuck and Ken Shelley, headline the all new 36th Anniversary Edition of Ice Capades opening at The Boston Garden Dec. 26 for 17 performances through Jan. 4.

Council Declines To Tap Emergency Fund

By TOM HENSHAW

The future of $818,000 in the city's emergency fund is so uncertain that the City Council refused to draw on it Monday night - not even for a $420 electric typewriter for central accounting.

A good deal of the problem was blamed on cuts in the state budget for social services.

"We don't know yet what the impact of the state's withdrawal of funds from general relief recipients will have on City Hospital receipts," said City Auditor Charles L. Shea.

He estimated that the city may have to pay about $250,000 out of its excess and deficiency fund next year to make up for the loss of state money.

An undetermined amount of money also will have to be taken from the emergency fund to pay the increased costs of Blue Cross premiums for city employees, said Shea.

As a result, the City Council refused to dip into the excess and deficiency fund Monday night for any reason. Lost in the shuffle of Council caution were:

- * $1,230 for two electric typewriters and two electronic calculators for the purchasing department.

- * $420 for an electric typewriter for central accounting.

- * $2,000 for the Council on Aging.

- * $25,000 to pay anticipated interest on money not yet borrowed for operating costs.

- * $11,291 requested by Quincy Heritage for repairs to the fire alarm protection and other problems at the Birthplaces of the Presidents.

The requests for funds for temporary loan interest and repairs to the Adams houses were tabled at the request of Councilor and Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia.

The appropriation for interest payments was tabled despite the pleas of Shea and City Treasurer Robert Foy.

In Candid Farewell Interview:

"I'm not closing the door on politics..."

"Cities go to hell because people in the position to do something, did nothing..."

"The union employee has to realize there is a bottom to the barrel..."

"I could have gone to wakes and weddings and been a ceremonial mayor..."

"I wish the new mayor all the success he's going to have to have..."

- Hannon Sees Rising Costs LaRaia's Toughest Job
- May Return To Politics ● Hits Negative Element
- Calls S.Q. MBTA Station Vital To City's Future
- Proudly Says He Never Deceived The People

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Walter J. Hannon's days as Mayor of Quincy are winding down to a precious few, but he is not bidding a blunt or sour good-bye to the city nor to politics.

In an interview with The Quincy Sun as he prepared to depart City Hall and assume his new post as Manager of Economic Development at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce - Hannon talked freely of his tenure as Quincy's mayor - the accomplishments, the frustrations - and wished his successor, Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia who unseated him in the Nov. 22 mayoral recount, best wishes and "all the success he's going to have to have."

In candid, outspoken characteristic style, Hannon said he:

- Has not ruled out the possibility of re-entering politics.

- See the Mayor-elect's toughest job as keeping the cost of government "within a liveable dimension."

- Feels he has made a contribution to his community during his two terms as Mayor.

- Battled a negative element in the city eager to oppose progress in Quincy.

- Never deceived the people of Quincy on his stand on issues.

- Views the South Quincy MBTA Station, the accompanying roads and ramps as vital to the economy of Quincy.

Following are questions posed to Hannon and his responses:

Q: What do you think was the greatest accomplishment, spurred by you, during your last term as mayor?

A: "We fought long and hard for the North Quincy High School issue. I didn't like the way it turned out. The City Council said 'Take this or nothing.' The easy way would have been to take nothing and then we wouldn't have been able to build a new North Quincy High School or an addition."

"I strongly feel schools are important to a city - a very intricate part of a city. Cities have fallen into disrepair because they have neglected their neighborhoods and their schools in those neighborhoods. When that starts you get a great exodus to the suburbs. They go elsewhere."

"Quincy has historically been in the forefront of good schools and I wanted to carry on that tradition."

"We also pushed hard for the extension of the MBTA... The MBTA, the roads and ramps are vital to the economic growth of the city. You see, the whole thrust of the last four years was to bring in a new type of thinking to government."

"It should be run like a business not like a political pork barrel. We wanted the opportunity to bring government a new dimension... run the government the same as you would your own business or your own household for that matter. When you do that you pay a price for it."

"The firemen were always good to me politically... With new leadership, there was no bottom to the barrel - get as much out of it as you possibly can. A man from

The three youngest Vo children stare about them with incomprehending, bewildered eyes.

Frowns crease their young faces and they stand stiff - like tiny soldiers - as their mother, Dieu Thi Lanh, prods them into the desired poses for newspaper pictures.

The camera clicks but only Vo Viet Dung - the head of the refugee family from Saigon - his wife and two oldest children smile. The little ones just don't understand.

Newly-arrived in Quincy under the sponsorship of Bethany Congregational Church, the Vo family, grateful for their gracious and warm reception in Quincy, are nonetheless awed by the ultra-foreign customs, culture and environment of a new land. Mr. Vo, so quick to smile, grows serious and earnest as he tells of his flight from Saigon:

"We were comfortable in Saigon. We had a big home in the center of Saigon, we had a car. But we lost everything. On our way to Thailand I was robbed twice. All our savings are gone.

"We left the car, our home, my wife's parents. I was a high-ranking customs official for 20 years. I feared for reprisals. I must not live in Vietnam now... My wife wept many, many times."

Hassey To Leave Executive Director's Post At Survival

Robert Hassey, Executive Director of Survival Inc., will leave his position shortly after the first of the year.

Hassey has been head of the Quincy-based drug and youth program since May of 1973.

Under his direction, the program has grown to include four facilities offering the community of the South Shore residential treatment, out-patient counseling, court liaison, foster homes, and crisis intervention for troubled young persons in the area. Survival now employs 18 persons and has more than 50 volunteers. The agency's budget is currently around $250,000. In 1975, more than 4,000 persons have received a variety of services, all free of charge.

"It's been very rewarding to have helped so many persons," Hassey said. "Nothing has ever been handed to Survival, and I am very proud of the efforts of our Board, staff, and volunteers, who have continued to fight for different ways to help young persons, a number of whom had been given up on."

"I only feel discouraged that some persons still will ignore or will not attempt to understand the different problems of young persons today, but at least we are way ahead of where we used to be."

TUGS MOVE LNG-1, first liquefied natural gas tanker built in the United States into outfitting pier at General Dynamics Quincy Shipbuilding Division following launching. After installation of the five spherical aluminum cargo tanks the 125,000 cubic meter tanker will transport liquefied natural gas from Algeria to Northeast U.S. Ports.

LNG Tanker Launching At GD Another Quincy 'First'

The first 125,000 cubic meter liquefied natural gas (LNG) tanker to be installed in the ship starting in mid-1976. Each of the tanks has the capacity to store 25,000 cubic meters of LNG at -265 degrees Fahrenheit. The tanks are currently under construction at General Dynamics Charleston, S.C. facility and will be barged to Quincy.

The 936-foot-long ship was floated from a building basin at the yard and, guided by tugs, moved down the Fore River to an outfitting pier for dock trials and final outfitting.

The five huge 120-foot-diameter spherical aluminum tanks in which the gas will be carried will be installed in the ship starting in mid-1976. Each of the tanks has the capacity to store 25,000 cubic meters of LNG at -265 degrees Fahrenheit. The tanks are currently under construction at General Dynamics Charleston, S.C. facility and will be barged to Quincy.

Formal christening ceremonies for the ship launched today will be held next year after installation of the LNG tanks.

Immediately following today's launch the second ship in the series of eight LNG tankers currently under contract at the shipyard was floated into the same building basin where a 136-foot-long bow section and a seven-story-high deckhouse will be added.

Construction of the eight ships currently under contract is scheduled through 1979.

Adams Birthplace Caretaker's Quarters Refurbished

Refurbishing of the caretaker's quarters at the John Adams birthplace on Franklin St. has been completed as part of Quincy Heritage's efforts to see required repairs and improvements accomplished at the historic site.

A changeover of resident caretakers at the birthplace made it possible to make the necessary renovations at this time, said Gordon MacPhee, Quincy Heritage Information Officer.

He said costs for the improvements were kept to a minimum by utilizing city personnel to do the work, under the direction of Herbert Blake, Superintendent of Public Buildings.

Improvements included the painting, wallpapering, and refinishing of the living quarters, located at the rear of the house.

In addition, a new gas heater was recently installed to meet required safety standards.

MacPhee said that Heritage has been working closely with Joyce Baker, chairman of the Quincy Historical Society's House Committee, and Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers, Chairman of the city council Historic Places Committee, to correct deficiencies at the birthplaces and to insure that all areas of the houses be preserved for future generations.

Williams Solicitor, Salenius Executive Secretary, Saccone Budget Director

LaRaia Announces First 5 Key City Appointments

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia named five key members of his coming administration Monday, possibly the youngest group of high city officials that Quincy has ever had.

LaRaia, who assumes office Jan. 5, named Thomas F. Williams, 27, city solicitor; Louis G. Bertucci, 27, assistant collector; Sarah F. Saccone, 33, budget coordinator; John E. Salenius, 22, executive secretary; and Arthur F. Casey, 24, administrative aide.

LaRaia said he will fill several other important posts, among them downtown development coordinator, public health commissioner and public works commissioner by next Tuesday.

He hinted that some may be holdovers from the administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon, whom LaRaia defeated in a bitterly contested election that went to a recount.

Those appointed Monday:

Thomas F. Williams, 437 Washington St., Quincy Point, senior partner in the law firm of Williams and Bertucci and a grandson of John J. Duane, founder of the wrecking company.

He is a graduate of Boston University and BU Law School, ran unsuccessfully for state representative in 1974 and leans strongly toward real estate and tax law. He and his wife, Patricia, have two children, Tiffany 4 and Victoria 2.

One of his first projects as city solicitor, he said, will be to recodify the city ordinances, which were updated for the last time in 1965. He said he plans to spend "a majority" of his time at his city hall desk.

Louis G. Bertucci, Williams' law partner, is a graduate of Marquette University in Wisconsin and Suffolk Law School. Despite his exotic education he is a lifelong resident of Quincy.

A trial attorney of note, he lives at 52 Standish Ave., Wollaston, with his wife, Frances, and their son, Louis G. III, who was born the day before the election.

Sarah P. [Dolly] Saccone, 21 James St., has worked as an accountant in the Quincy auditor's office since 1966. She is a graduate of Quincy Junior College and Stonehill.

"One of the easiest appointments I made," said LaRaia adding, "She's a member of the majority party — females." He said at least one or more appointees will be a woman.

John E. Salenius, 1 Webster St., North Quincy, is a graduate of Boston University, attends the New England School of Law and works as a legal research assistant in office of Williams and Bertucci. He is single.

Arthur F. Casey, 48 Hovey St., is a graduate of Boston College with a degree in business administration and, until he joined the LaRaia campaign in March, he was business manager of Neelon Insurance Agency in Braintree.

He is an ex-Marine lieutenant and single.

Casey's post as administrative aide is a new title, approximating that of mayor's secretary in the Hannon Administration.

LaRaia said the jobs of executive secretary and administrative aide "will be equated as to duties and salaries. The executive secretary will get a cut in pay and the administrative aide will get a raise."

The executive secretary's job currently pays $18,934 and mayor's secretary $11,000 and LaRaia said "it would be fair to talk about $15,000 for each. There will be no increase in cost to the city."

LaRaia said Salenius will be his contact with the public while Casey will be liaison between the mayor and the city departments.

LaRaia said he has spent the last couple of weeks reviewing resumes and interviewing people who have indicated an interest in his administration.

"I've gone slow because I wanted to evaluate some of the present office holders," he said. "In the final analysis it is possible that we might keep some."

"We have notified the people we are replacing to make it as comfortable as possible for them."

He said there has been no discussion about the treasurer's post currently held by Robert Foy, who has been rumored to be one of those who will survive the transition from Hannon to LaRaia.

LaRaia said he has asked for a leave of absence from his job with the Massachusetts Welfare Department [where he has civil service status] and expects to have the request granted shortly.

CHRISTMAS 'MAGIC — Kerry Anne Mitchell, 2, and brother, Robbie, 5, marvel at antique toys and trimmings in Quincy Historical Society's exhibit, "Christmas Past," at Adams Academy. Robbie is attracted to 1899 crank-style organ, while Kerry Anne reaches for popcorn and cranberry string. Tree ornaments are replicas of ornaments used in late 1800's. Ice skates, toy furniture, and sled also date to late 1800's. Cymbals date circa 1860. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Mitchell of 1344 Quincy Shore Dr., Merrymount.

Holidays needn't mean weight

The holiday season is anticipated with mixed emotions by people who have a weight problem, because the festivities often seem to be associated with rich eating and overeating.

If you are preparing the meals consider using fruits, such as peaches, pears, apricots, crab apples, strawberries, pineapple, tangerines, oranges and grapefruit in your menus. They add color and taste to any meal and can be served in limitless combinations.

Avoid eggnogs and punches laced with sugars. Try distilled liquors with water or soda, or dry white wines.

The hors d'oeuvres can consist of attractively cut vegetables served on cracked ice. A hollowed out large head of lettuce or cabbage can hold whipped low fat cottage cheese, colored with a few drops of red or green food color, and spiked with onion, garlic and celery powder.

Carrots, celery, cauliflower, broccoli and water chestnuts wrapped in bacon are other delicious, yet acceptable snacks for anyone's taste or diet.

There are wide choices of items which can be served cold and skewered on round toothpicks. These include small bits of turkey, chicken or other cold meats, hard cooked eggs, cheeses, tongue, smoked salmon, herring, crab meat and shrimp.

Turkey And The Holidays

by Martha Logan

What would the holidays be without a golden brown roast turkey on the family dinner table? Turkey is traditional.

Start the tradition by allowing 1½ pounds per person of ready-to-stuff Butterball Swift's Premium Turkey. This amount will give generous servings for the holiday dinner with some left for the family the following day. Thawing directions are on the wrapper. However, since the giblets and necks are placed in plastic bags, they can be removed from the neck and body cavities easily without waiting for the bird to thaw completely.

For this holiday season, there is a rich cashew nut stuffing. The stuffing is easily prepared and offers a characteristic flavor originating from the sauteur wine, cashews and seasonings. In addition to the turkey and stuffing, broiled apple rings with cranberries make an attractive garnish.

Cashew Nut Stuffing

Yield: 8 cups

(Enough to stuff a 12 pound turkey)

½ cup chopped onion	1 teaspoon salt
2 cups chopped celery	1 teaspoon sage
½ cup butter or margarine	½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
6 cups dry bread cubes	¼ cup water
(½ inch cubes)
1½ cups coarsely chopped cashew nuts	¼ cup sauteur wine
	1 egg

Cook onion and celery in butter in skillet until tender. Add mixture to bread cubes and cashews. Mix in seasonings, water, wine and egg. Stuff bird immediately and roast.

Old-Style Half-Slips Make Pretty Nightgowns

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Dear Betty:

My teen-age daughter and I made pretty nightgowns from half-slips that were unfashionably long. Open the side seams at the top and bind opening for armholes. Finish the top by removing elastic and adding a casing for drawstring ribbon or by leaving elastic and finishing cut edges as you finish the armhole. For straps, add lengths of ribbon. The lace is already on the hem. Good idea: Use a new ballpoint needle for each knit garment, especially some cotton knits. A blunt needle can make holes in the fabric. — Darlene Finney, White Lake, S.D.

Thanks for your save-a-dollar tip, Darlene. And for reminding us not to be stingy with new needles. It pays in the long run.

Dear Mrs. Kinser:

I really need advice on how to lengthen the crotch of body suits. I found a couple on sale, but unfortunately they are too short. Can you help, please? — Mrs. Roy O. Brett, Omaha need to add. Divide this measurement by two. This will give the amount needed for each crotch section. Carefully remove the snaps or snap-tape from the crotch. Save it if it is reusable.

Remove stitching from hem of crotch sections. From a lingerie knit fabric, cut two strips the necessary length plus 1", and as wide as the crotch plus 1". On each side edge of each strip, turn under one-quarter inch, press. Turn under one-quarter inch again, stitch. Attach each strip to each crotch section in a one-half inch seam. Stitch again close to the first row of stitching and trim seam allowances. Hem raw edge of each crotch strip and attach snap-tape. Before this last step, it might be a good idea to try body suit on to be sure of fit.

More than $2.3 billion will be spent on wedding gifts in the United States this year by the end of December, and that will include 32 per cent of all the waffle irons sold in the country for 12 months, says the newspaper National Observer after a survey.

Chocolate-Almond Treats

For gift boxes or holiday parties, here are two very special recipes featuring ever-popular chocolate and almonds.

Almond-Choco Confections

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|---|
| 2 bars (1.26 oz. ea.) milk chocolate | 1 package (12 oz.) vanilla wafers, crushed (3 cups) |
| 2 teaspoons grated orange rind | 2 tablespoons orange juice |
| 1/2 cup orange juice | 1 cup whole natural (unblanched) almonds, chopped |
| 1/2 cup sugar | |

Break up bars; combine with orange rind, 1/2 cup water and sugar; cook over medium heat, stirring until sugar dissolves and chocolate melts. Off heat, mix with wafers, 2 tablespoons juice and almonds. Chill 1 hour, then shape small balls. Roll in additional chopped almonds if you wish. Refrigerate in closed container several days for best flavor. Makes about 3 dozen.

IN SEARCH OF SWEET BREATH

"Denture Breath" is a highly advertised term that may be overused. The dentures themselves are as simple to clean as your dinner plates - you can use almost any soap and water. They are also virtually tasteless and odorless. However, do-it-yourself relines are like a sponge, capturing every smell that goes through your mouth and generating a few of their own.

Denture powders and cream adhesives, which glue the dentures in place, are fairly safe from odors for a reasonable time. At least once a day, however, all of the gel must be cleaned out of the denture and off the gums; otherwise, it will accumulate, and the trapped saliva and bacteria will begin to ferment. This is especially liable to happen if you are a smoker.

Occasionally, dentures should be refitted, so that the least amount of adhesive - or none at all - will be necessary. If all these precautions are taken, denture wearers should have even less of a breath problem than people with natural teeth.

'Adopted' Vietnamese Family Finds Quincy 'Incredible'

Water St., South Quincy. Overwhelmed by the open-hearted reception given them by Bethany's "Nucleus Committee" which planned for the family's arrival, Mr. Vo, interviewed with his family at Bethany Church, said:

"It's incredible! When we moved into our home, there was furniture, they did repainting, cleaning, everything...Everyone is very wonderful and happy-for us. You Americans here are magnanimous and generous. This is the biggest difference in custom," (between Vietnam and the United States). "But many, many things are different and strange."

Mr. Vo is the only member of his family who speaks English. Though his wife knows a smattering of English words, Mr. Vo is the spokesman for his family.

Although his pronunciation of the word "savings" sounds like the word "servants," a little extra attention, concentration and patience on the part of the listener erases any communication difficulty.

While Mr. Vo admits to having "some problems" with the language, he says, "I'll get practice with the American people."

A graduate of the University of Saigon, Mr. Vo holds a bachelor degree in law and has owned his own air-conditioning and electrical repair shop. He would like to work as an electrician in Quincy. He said:

"I would have to study American law for three or four years to become an attorney here. It is more practical to get a job with my hands."

Though the family has not yet met any neighbors in South Quincy, Mr. Vo breaks into wide grin as he tells about his "adopted mother-in-law."

Pointing to Miss Muriel Goudey - retired Quincy High School English teacher and member of the Bethany Committee welcoming the Vos to Quincy - Mr. Vo said:

"All my children call Miss Goudey 'Ngoai' - grandmother. And she says we are her family. I am her son-in-law, my wife is her daughter-in-law and all my children are her grandchildren."

And Miss Goudey, repeating her new foreign title over and over - "Ngoai, Ngoai, Ngoai" - knelt in front of the Bethany parlor coach where the family had gathered and mused.

Government Should Be Run Like A Business--Not Political Pork Barrell, Says Hannon

Rhode Island, under the binding arbitration law, set the salaries for the firemen. I could have bought them off with tax dollars - I could have bought the nurses off. But first of all, we wouldn't have a zero tax rate."

"I thought people would appreciate a zero tax rate. . . that they'd say, 'Gee, Mayor, you've done a good job. The city is clean, you've done a good job with the schools, there's a zero tax rate.' The policemen were out there at the polls. . . My question is: what did my opponent promise them? They didn't do it for fun but for money. . . The union employee has to realize there is a bottom to the barrel."

Q: What will be the Mayor-elect's hardest job in the next two years?

A: "Keeping the cost of government within a liveable dimension. He has a different style than I have. . . But he is going to be faced with a lot of rising costs. I know of no municipal union which has decided not to ask for wage increases and new benefits."

Q: Do you foresee the possibility of entering politics again?

A: "I'm not going to close the door on politics entirely. I love the government. I have something to offer. But when you've lost, you have to sit back and assess things. I have to think about what I'm going to do in the next 20 years. Since 1962 I've been in public office. I have enjoyed it immensely and I've received a great deal of satisfaction in what I've tried to do. I feel I have made a contribution to a place I live in. . . I feel proud of the fact I had the opportunity to be a City Councillor, a state representative and a mayor. As for coming back again - that's another story."

Q: Given all the frustrations and headaches and long hours involved in being Mayor, why is it you love politics and government so much? What's the attraction for you?

A: "There's the great adventure in it, a challenge. I don't like to lead a dull life. I love the hurly-burly of it all. . . I get a great deal of pride out of the park next door (McIntyre Mall). It's the most beautiful thing we have in Quincy. But like most things, it became controversial. . . That's the part that's so crazy. If I had listened to the people who said - 'Don't build the park.' It's like the people who said 'Don't build the Mystic River Bridge. We don't need it.'"

"Or take the case of James Michael Curley. When you turn on a water faucet, you don't cross yourself and say 'Thank God James Michael Curley built the Quabbin Reservoir.' But what if he had backed down under pressure. . . Someone had the foresight to say we're going to need a water system."

"There's a negative group of people in the city. No matter what happens, they are against it. They are the same ones against North Quincy High School and the South Quincy Station. They are against any progress in the city. But I had enough faith in myself in making decisions."

Q: Is there anything left undone in your last term which you wish had been done?

A: "There are a lot of things left to do. First of all, there is Squantum Gardens and the Naval Air Station. That area has to be developed. It will be to be one of our top priorities."

"There is also development needed in Quincy Sq. And there is no new valuation in the city. The increase in government costs will be borne by the taxpayers. There is no State Street South on the horizon. We have an eight-story height limitation. We have the restrictions which will impede the development of the city. . . There is absolutely nothing on the drawing boards. Again, using the analogy to a business, unless you sell more of your produce, the overhead is going to catch up to you. Government should be no different."

Q: In his campaign, the Mayor-elect voiced strong opposition to the construction of a South Quincy MBTA Station. Do you feel he can be successful in preventing that construction?

A: "He could delay the start of construction. I don't think he can - I don't know. Maybe he can. He has come out and said he is for the ramps and he is for the roads. But you can't get the ramps and roads without the station."

"He could fight the good fight and then say to the people - 'Look, I've done everything I could.'"

"The other alternative is that the secretary of transportation (Frederick Salvucci) will ask for the $45 million to go somewhere else. People will say, 'Will you put the Blue Line up to Lynn or the Red Line somewhere else or the Green Line somewhere else?'"

"It's a disaster to have that station terminate in a downtown. It's ridiculous!"

"A mayor's job is to make sound, rational, and responsible judgements under the term of leadership. I have never deceived this community in any thoughts or words or about what we should be doing. . . The key to success in politics is to do nothing for a short period of time."

"Be a nice guy and do nothing. But the city suffers. . . Cities go to hell because people in the position to do something, did nothing. . . I wanted to be elected but under my terms and conditions. . . I've done things the way I think it should be done. I'd rather go down as a doer than as a do-nothing."

"I could have gone to wakes and weddings and been a ceremonial mayor. If people wanted me to do that, they should have said: 'You should be a ceremonial mayor, you should go to wakes and weddings and be very, very pleasant.' But someone has to do the nitty-gritty."

"I wish the new mayor all the success he's going to have to have. And best wishes to him."

CRUSADE FLAG RAISED AT CITY HALL

In observance of Crusade for Freedom Day, a special blue and white Crusade flag was raised above City Hall.

Hoisted by Mayor Thomas Burgin, the flag was presented by Delevere King, Quincy banker and philanthropist.

Some $430.17 was raised by the Quincy Crusade for Freedom committee from Quincy public school students and teachers to support the committee's campaign to correct Soviet propaganda with Western truths. Joseph McDonough was chairman of the committee.

CHRISTMAS PLANNED FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Dr. Ensio Ronka, director of the Quincy City Hospital said that everything possible would be done for the 200 patients who had to spend Christmas in the hospital.

Ronka said that employees would try to turn the institution into a home away from home.

The hospital was decorated with wreaths and evergreens, while the Student Nurses Glee Club toured the wards singing Christmas carols. It was expected that Santa Claus would pay a special visit to the children's ward.

RED FEATHER PROVIDES

MERRY CHRISTMAS FOR NEEDY

Robert Faxon, president of Quincy Community Chest and Council, reported that thanks to the money raised by the Quincy Red Feather campaign, toys and Christmas dinners would be provided for needy families in the city.

Red Feather agencies such as the Family Services Society, Quincy Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, YMCA, Salvation Army and St. Vincent DePaul Society conducted parties, provided dinners and furnished toys for needy families.

CLARK CRITICIZES COUNCIL'S DELAY

"The whole thing kind of burnt me up," said A. Wendell Clark, vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee. His remarks were made in response to the city council's recent action in delaying the school construction program.

The committee had asked the council to take action as soon as possible on a loan order for the school building program, but the decision was left for the new council that would be sworn in next week.

LIVING TODAY

Why Aren't Men Affectionate?

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

Dear Dr. Knox:

I'm writing to ask you a question. You being a man may know better than a woman the answer. WHY DO MEN ONLY GIVE AFFECTION WHEN THEY WANT SEX? my husband is like that. The rest of the time he practically ignores me. He makes me feel so cheap, as though I am just a thing to be used by the owner when he needs me. I want to feel wanted. The truth is that I've come to dislike him so much that I don't even want to have sex with him. I wish I hadn't married. Are all men this way? Please write something in your column that I can show him. Maybe it will help our marriage before it's too late.

Sincerely, A.C.

Dear A.C.

No, all men are not "this way". All men are not any one way. Neither are women. We are all different. The concept of individual differences is basic to understanding people and relationships. Your man is "this way" ... unfortunately. But he can change. We are what we want to be.

There are two reasons why some men are unaffectionate, except when they want to have sex. One is that for some men Life Responsibilities Are Just Too Heavy ... decisions ... payrolls ... job competition ... decline in income with creditors hounding him ... employee problems. With all these on a man's mind, he isn't thinking much about being affectionate to a wife and family. Not so of all men ... some find their wives their retreat from the responsibilities of work, and find themselves rejuvenated by talking and touching her as she shares with him the weights of his heart. But more and more men are finding life too heavy ... some even become impotent in one way or another.

A second reason why some men are unaffectionate is IGNORANCE. Some men just don't know women. Some think that a woman exists for the man's pleasure ... and that she should be always available to him at his beck and call. This is degrading to a woman. It is a way of life which she may have seen in the way his father treated his mother ... continued in his teens in his treatment of girls ... and now practiced in his marriage. Fortunate is the boy who grows up seeing his father being kind ... speaking with warmth ... hugging and kissing his mother and showing affection to her and his children. This boy learns early that women are to be loved and respected ... not just to be used in bed.

No woman is justified in being an accomplice to this misbehavior by going along with it year after year. A man can ... and will change ... but you may have to demand the change.

SPEAKING OUT

Hopes Borden Will Be Retained By LaRai

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I was very disappointed and saddened to read in today's issue of The Sun that Mr. Putnam Borden, executive director Council on Aging may be replaced.

Mr. Borden has and is doing an excellent job. He has been very helpful in answering questions etc. He has had many problems, one of which was transporting many of the seniors to Boston for examination of eyes. He also had the follow-up program for those with eye problems. He has had so many helpful programs.

I do hope he will be allowed to continue as Executive Director.

Sincerely,

Margaret Cahill

Make Holiday Brighter

Salvation Army, Koch Club, Elks Distribute Christmas Baskets, Toys

Christmas will be a little brighter for hundreds of needy families and children, thanks to the work of Quincy service organizations and their tradition of distributing holiday baskets of food and toys.

For the 20th year, the Koch Club will bring baskets filled with turkey, canned goods, fruit and vegetables to senior citizens and families throughout the city.

The club also continued for the fifth year its distribution of toys to children in Quincy, around the South Shore and in Boston's South End. More than 2,000 toys were passed out.

The toy-giving tradition started four years ago when members of the Koch Club sprang into action to gather 200 toys for the young victims of a fire in Roxbury.

Part of the toy drive was the second annual "Dress a Doll for Christmas" project.

South Shore citizens ranging from the South Weymouth Campfire Girls to an 85-year-old Quincy woman donated their time and efforts to making dresses for more than 300 dolls.

The Kochs held their 28th annual Christmas party for children under the age of 10 Saturday [Dec. 20] in the Fore River Clubhouse.

Other Koch Club Christmas activities.

* Two table radios, a pop corn popper and games and toys were donated to the Children's Ward at Tewksbury Hospital.

* Santa Claus visited some 10 youngsters who are shut-ins year round over the weekend.

Club President Richard Koch said children at the Parker School donated canned goods for the Christmas baskets and third graders at Massachusetts Fields School gave gifts for children.

Gifts also were received from the Otis Elevator Company and the Koch Club Girls' Bowling League donate $100 for turkeys. The Salvation Army planned to distribute Christmas baskets to more than 100 needy families, according to Mrs. Geoffrey Banfield.

The toy shop opened Saturday [Dec. 20] and parents were afforded an opportunity to select one gift for each child out of some 600 toys on hand.

The toys included 230 dolls dressed by women workers at State Street South.

"Sunshine Boxes" containing personal toiletries were distributed to 669 patients in 12 nursing homes around Quincy.

The choir under the direction of David Galbraith sang "Joy to the World" Sunday and Tuesday evening the Quincy Temple band caroled at South Shore Plaza.

The Salvation Army's annual Christmas dinner for Sunday School kids was held Sunday with about 60 youngsters in attendance. Santa was there too.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks distributed Christmas baskets to 150 families. The baskets included turkeys and all the fixings -- squash, turnips, stuffing, apples and oranges.

Quincy City Club Donates $1,000 For Gifts To Needy

The Quincy City Club, Inc., launched only two months ago, has raised $1,000 in personal membership contributions to purchase equipment and Christmas gifts for hospital patients, youngsters and residents of Faxon House.

The 84-member club raised $560 towards the purchase of four wheelchairs - one with an elevating leg rest - to be loaned to health organizations and individuals in need of the equipment.

Dr. Allen H. Yacubian will be responsible for assigning the chairs to organizations and persons and will also conduct a periodic check on the location and use of the units.

In addition, a total of $40 was donated in escrow for repairs to the wheelchairs.

The Faxon House Detoxification Unit will receive a total of $200 raised by the Club to purchase 20 new bed pillows and 300 pairs of throw-away slippers.

The Club also donated $100 to buy gifts and refreshments for the up-coming Retarded Children's Christmas Party and donated $100 to the Boston State Hospital for Christmas gifts to patients in the Mental Health Hospital.

Donald E. Conboy and Paul Lee served as co-chairmen of the fund-raising drive.

Announcement of the successful drive was made at the Club's first Christmas breakfast and Business meeting Sunday. The meeting was held in the Quincy Room at Walsh's Restaurant with James B. Moody acting as breakfast chairman.

In announcing the total awards made by the Club, Richard Koch, club president, said:

"On behalf of the officers and committee, I wish to express our sincere gratitude to all members for their total support of this project. It was the Quincy City Club members' personal sacrifice that made the $1,000 dream of two months ago become a reality."

Other club officers are Thomas R. Burke, treasurer and Joseph N. Lydon, secretary and clerk.

St. Nick has gladdened hearts since 4th Century

Copley News Service

If ever there was a true world traveler he has to be Santa Claus.

A lot of folks may think Santa came to life first in 1822. When Dr. Clement C. Moore gave him ever lasting fame in his poem, "The Night Before Christmas." Not so.

Santa, with one name or another, has been around some 1,700 years and has visited in most regions of the globe. It's just that he became popular as "Santa Claus" in Dr. Moore's poem, which pictures the fabled gift-giver as a "jolly old elf" with "a round little belly that shook when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly."

Before that poem, Santa often was pictured as thin, tall, short or obese, according to where he was at the time.

Not only that, but Santa originally rode earth-bound horses instead of reindeer in the sky. And in some nations he delivered gifts at times other than Christmas Eve or Christmas day.

If you're wondering why Santa has white hair, it's those 1,700 years of making toys and then delivering them to every corner of the earth.

Santa began his apprenticeship in the fourth Century in Turkey, which has nothing to do with why we eat turkey on Christmas Day. The Turks called him St. Nicholas, the patron saint of children, because of his kindness and generosity. St. Nicholas, or St. Nick, has stuck as one of Santa's monickers over the centuries.

In a spirit of fun, the Scots adopted St. Nick and christened him "Abbot of Unreason" and "Lord of Misrule." The British raised him to a higher station and crowned Santa "King of the Bean."

In Germany, religious leader Martin Luther in the 1400's decreed Christmas as the birthday of Christ and put emphasis on the fact that the three Wise Men took the Child gifts of gold, myrrh and frankincense. He christened St. Nicholas "Christkindlein," after the Christ Child, and for a time German children thought it was He who brought gifts secretly on Christmas Eve.

When German people began to arrive in America as immigrants many years later, they changed "Christkindlein" to Kris Kringle. It still is used today among some families in this country.

It was the Dutch people who finally began calling St.

Nicholas "Santa Claus." The Norwegians call their Santa "Julienissen" while the lady Santa in Italy is named "La Befana."

As for his clothes, Santa has tried a variety of styles. And he rode a horse until the Scandinavians put him in a sleigh because it snows so much in that part of the world. Then the reindeer learned to fly, and so did Santa.

The Scandinavians were thinking of the Norse god, Thor, who was said to have ridden through the sky in a chariot. Santa's red coat was selected to be reminiscent of the pagan feast of Yule.

While Christmas Eve finds Santa the busiest, he delivers gifts on a lot of other dates in various countries. In Mexico, Spain and Italy, presents are given Jan. 6. Called "The Twelfth Day of Christmas," "Epiphany" and "Day of the Three Kings," it's the day when the Wise Man presented their gifts to the Christ Child.

The first day of the New Year is gift-giving day in France and Scotland. English children have their visits from Santa on the day after Christmas or Christmas Eve.

But universal in all nations is the legend that children must be good if Santa Claus is to remember them.

Best Wishes

Christmas is a time to rekindle friendships ... sharing its good times with all. Be sure and have a happy!

CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS IN CHURCH

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. This first census took place while Cyrenus was governor of Syria.

And all were going, each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a Manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round about them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

A holiday schedule will prevail on Christmas Day and New Years Day, the Service said.

The post-Christmas workload is expected to be heavier this year, the Postal Service noted, because of two main factors:

customers depositing mail earlier than normal in order to avoid the higher postage rates that take effect Dec. 28, and the commencement of deliveries

Dec. 26 of Internal Revenue Service tax forms to 71 million households.

On Christmas Day and New Years Day, there will be no window service, regular residential, rural or business mail delivery. Lockbox service and special delivery will be available in some areas.

Hunting 1 Ward Reopens After Renovations

The Hunting 1 Ward of Quincy City Hospital has been repainted and re-opened after complete renovations.

The fourth major renovation project by the hospital in three years, the ward has been repainted, wallpapered, and remodeled.

Financed through the $1,500,000 capital bond monies recently appropriated to the hospital, all patient rooms, utility rooms, and the nurse's station have been repainted and re-done with vinyl wallpaper. New ceilings and lighting were also installed in parts of the ward. Much of the work was done by hospital personnel and costs were kept to a minimum according to Harlan Paine, Director of the hospital.

All bathrooms in the ward were remodeled and tiled. New hospital phones were installed and a medical-surgical supply cart system introduced. The supply cart system, on an experimental basis in other wards of the hospital, is expected to save the hospital $40,000 annually if successful.

The 27-bed ward was closed down for renovations Aug. 13. The M6, S4, and S5 wards have also undergone similar renovation projects in the past three years.

Mannix Receives 2 Citations

20 Police Officers Commended By Chief Finn

Twenty Quincy police officers, one of them a policewoman, have been honored with official commendations for their bravery, dedication to duty and good judgement during the past year by Chief Francis Finn.

One of them, Officer Dennis Mannix, received commendations for two separate incidents of police work on consecutive tours of duty.

Mannix was one of six Quincy policemen who, along with State and Somerville police, were sent to an address in Germantown at 2:30 a.m. Oct. 30, to arrest a man wanted for murder in Somerville.

The man was said to have three guns in his possession and boasted that he would not be taken alive.

Rather than risk the lives of innocent occupants of the building by laying siege or using tear gas, the officers rushed the stairwell and captured the suspect without a shot being fired.

Honored with Mannix were Lt. Walter Lynch, Sgt. William Surran, Sgt. Donald Riley, Det. Robert Perchard and Officer Paul Quinn.

The following night, Mannix was one of four officers who groped through heavy smoke to alert and rescue some 50 persons from a burning apartment house at 1621 Hancock St.

Also commended for that act were Officers Stephen O'Brien, who discovered the fire and sounded the alarm, Ralph Bergonzi and Michael Lukeman. Firefighters also assisted in the rescue.

Officer Linda Sparks was commended for good judgement and professional manner in the capture of a man suspected of holding up the Naborhood Pharmacy on Hancock St. May 4.

Officer Sparks walked into the drug store while the man was covertly holding a gun on the clerk. She ignored what was taking place and walked to a rear room where she radioed the police station.

Then she followed the man until Sgt. Donald Riley arrived on routine patrol and arrested him.

Officers Robert Edgar and Ronald McKim were honored for their alertness and bravery for rescuing a man and saving a 15-year-old girl from injury during a fire in a two-story house on Arthur St. Feb. 10.

Sgt. Michael Barry and Officers Frank Bertoni and Gerald Queeney were cited for their rescue of occupants of the Carlton House during a fire Sept. 20 that engulfed the second floor in smoke.

Bertoni and Queeney crawled from door to door on hands and knees to rouse the occupants and send them to Sgt. Barry who escorted them out of the building.

All three officers suffered from smoke inhalation and Officer Bertoni was hospitalized after becoming unconscious.

Sgt. John Morton and Officers Robert Cugini and Michael Sullivan were commended for their capture of a burglary suspect at the Grossman Store on Granite St. May 4.

The three policemen responded to a silent alarm at the store and found a window broken. Cugini entered through the window while Sgt. Morton and Sullivan guarded the exits.

The suspect attacked Cugini and Morton and Sullivan rushed in to help subdue the man and make the arrest.

Officers Robert Crowley and John Kelley were honored for arresting an armed robbery suspect in Wollaston April 28.

Crowley and Kelley were patrolling in an unmarked car when they spotted two men acting suspiciously around the Dacey Brothers store on Beale St.

Crowley approached the men on foot and was threatened with a knife by one of the men who demanded: "Give me what you have." Crowley and Kelley, who was following in the car, made the arrest.

Burke House Conferees On Tax Reduction Bill

Congressman James A. Burke has been appointed to serve as a House Conferee on the Tax Reform Act of 1975.

The Conference Committee convened recently for the first time in an effort to iron out House and Senate differences and, hopefully, get a bill passed by both Houses as promptly as possible.

The Tax Reform proposal currently under consideration by the House-Senate Conferees includes extension of most of the tax cuts enacted earlier this year.

Quincy, North Off To Good Starts

The Quincy and North Quincy basketball teams are off to a good start with impressive wins in their first two games and the coaches can look to the future with optimism.

Joe Amoroso's Quincy team will host cross-town rival North Quincy Saturday and next Tuesday Quincy will be home to Weymouth South and North will play at Brookline.

Quincy, combining good defense, rebounding and foul shooting, opened its Suburban League season last Friday with a 57-51 win over Waltham.

Big Jack Uhlar had 16 points and John Riggs 14, and the pair combined for 26 rebounds. Amoroso was especially pleased with the performance of Jack Connolly, who had 10 points and had eight rebounds. Quincy Clinched the game by outscored the Hawks, 18-7, in the second period.

Earlier in the week the Presidents had defeated Jamaica Plain, 77-61, in a non-league game as 6-5 Uhlar had 28 points and 11 rebounds and Riggs 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Bob Nolan's North quintet started off in the Suburban League Friday by defeating Newton North, 60-55. The Raiders led at one time by 16 points but Newton kept pecking away.

Nolan praised Paul Kelleher and Dick Mahoney for sparking the offense and Keith Lindberg and Mike Holleran for backboning the defense. He also had good words for Scott Roberts, who came in to settle the Raiders down in the third period.

Mahoney scored 22 points and Kelleher 17 to pace the Raiders to their second win in a row.

Earlier the Raiders had breezed over B.C. High by a surprising 71-49 score in a non-league, outscoring the Eagles, 14-4, in a big third period.

"This was an outstanding defensive effort," Nolan said. "And the offense also was excellent." North hit for 55 percent from the floor and 66 percent from the foul line.

Jay Nelson led all scorers with 19 points, Kelleher had 17 and Mahoney 12. Nolan also praised Joel Devlin, Lindberg and Holleran.

Eddie Miller's North junior varsity opened with a 45-28 win, led by John White with 18 points and Bill McIntyre with nine.

QJC Icemen Have Veterans

The Quincy Junior College Hockey team, again playing a strong independent schedule, has a good crop of veterans and several promising freshmen, and despite only a 1-3-1 record in its first five games, Coach Ken Hayes hopes to win his share of games.

6 Raiders On Suburban League All-Stars

North Quincy's league co-champion and Super Bowl entry dominates the 1975 Suburban League football all-stars, placing six players.

Representing North are End Cooper Jordan, guard Mike Nee, quarterback Mike Holleran, running back Brian Doherty and kicker Ed McElaney on the offensive team and Jack Hatfield on defense.

Quincy has three representatives, center Paul Ferris, defensive tackle Bill Popsie and linebacker John Riggs.

Bob McDermott Named Major College Player Of Year

Bob McDermott, former Quincy High standout, who played a major role at tight end in Harvard's drive to its first Ivy League championship this fall, was named by the New England College Sportswriters' association as the region's 1975 Major College Player of the Year.

McDermott was presented the Golden Helmet Trophy by the writers and the sponsoring Coca-Cola Company at the annual N. E. Football Awards Dinner.

The Harvard star established himself as one of the best pass receivers in the East this year, catching 30 passes for 493 yards, an amazing 16.4 yards per catch. Seven of his receptions were for touchdowns and was only one short of the Harvard, Ivy League and New England touchdown receptions record for a season.

Bob made the clutch play which set up Mike Lynch's winning field goal in the 10-7 win over Yale which clinched the Ivy title.

And the Ivy League coaches are not too happy that McDermott will be back next season. "I'm delighted to see Bob recognized in this manner," said Harvard Coach Joe Restic. "He dominated the tight end talent in New England in a manner which can't be matched at any other position."

Raiders Defeat Quincy 1st Time In 13 Years

When North Quincy's hockey team defeated Quincy Saturday night for the first time in 13 years, the win had more meaning for North coach Ron Erikson than it did for many people.

When the Raiders last topped the Presidents in 1962, Erikson was a senior playing for North.

"We have had a few ties through the years, but this was our first win since January of 1962, when I was a senior," said Erikson, following the big 4-2 Suburban League win at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The win was North's second in a row as the Raiders are off to their best start in years.

Saturday North will play

Weymouth South at 7:30 at the Youth Arena, while Quincy plays Weymouth North at 4:30 at Randolph. Next Tuesday the Raiders face Newton at 5:30 and the Presidents host Cambridge Latin at 4:30, both games at the Youth Arena.

Erikson was particularly pleased that his team came from two goals down to upset Quincy. Frankie Guest gave the Presidents a 1-0 lead in the opening period with assists for Bill Hamill and Dennis Bertoni, and Mark Giordani converted Guest's pass for a 2-0 lead in the second.

Jeff Gavin, a sophomore, put North on the board minutes later with John Andrews and Jim Moore assisting. North tied it on Steve Cronin's goal, soph John Cooney and Moore assisting, and later in the second period Glenn Hanson scored unassisted. In the final period Steve Keough scored an insurance goal unassisted.

"Quincy had the edge in play, but our defense and goalie Dick Wilson were outstanding," Erikson said. "Wilson had 24 saves, while we had 18 shots on goal. It was a fine overall performance. Quincy, as usual, played a good game, and we were a little bit fortunate to score our last two goals, especially the last one."

Earlier last week North had opened with a 3-1 win over Weymouth North as Paul Hurley scored twice and Cooney once. Wilson again was a standout in goal.

Quincy, with the brilliant Guest playing one of his better all-around games, bombed Cambridge Latin, 10-3. Guest had two goals and three assists and his defensive play was outstanding. Instead of trying for the hat trick when given the chance, he set up his mates.

Dennis Bertoni had two goals, Hamill had two goals and two assists, Giordani a goal and two assists, Bob Barry a goal, Dave Previte a goal and assist, Mike Conti a goal and assist, Brian Bertoni, Walt Pimental and Tom Cahill two assists each and Paul Lynch an assist.

"This was a good way to start the season, but we still need work on defense," Coach Bob Sylvia said. "We know we can score but we must strengthen the defense if we hope to return to the state tournament."

Pepe's Paces Women Merchants

Pepe's Express continued to lead the Women Merchants Bowling League last week with a 62-34 record.

Pepe's also had the weekly high team three of 1,448.

The standings: 1. Pepe's Express 62-34; 2. HoJo's 53-43; 3. South Shore Barber 48-48; 4. Quincy Motors 46-50; 5. Merrymount Lanes 42-54; 6. Body Smith Shop 32-59.

Leading averages are: Elaine Rozanski 105.5, Bev Putnam 103.4, Noreen Mastroianni 101.1, Edna Walker 100.7, Evie DuBois 99.8, Fran Taylor 97.9, Ellie Iacobucci 96.9, Mal Adams

96.2, Sandy Barrie 95.8, Jini Seaver 95.5.

High team single was Merrymount Lanes' 518 while high individual three was Elaine Rozanski's 322 and high individual single was Dotty Boyd's 126.

THE DOOR IS OPEN . . . COME IN

Mr. Leland Thompson is pleased to announce the publication of a new booklet written by a Quincy resident entitled "THE DOOR IS OPEN.....COME IN". This book explains how to be at the right place at the right time so that all connections made for future harmony can be developed now. This is the plan that Moses used thousands of years ago that all people can make use of for their step to harmony. Moses had something useful to say but not all people are aware of the full message. The same plan to organize a nation can organize a family. Enclose a 20 cent stamp and mail to Booklet, 1072 Sea St., Quincy, Ma. 02169, for your copy.

'The Spirit Of Christmas'

The following articles were written by members of the third grade class of Mrs. Kathryn Catter at the Merrymount School.

Their theme is "The Spirit of Christmas"

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

The spirit of Christmas is different. It is a time to celebrate the spirit of happiness. You get excited! You wonder what you are going to get. You hear people singing carols. When you go to play you can hear the bells tinkling in the cold. Traffic is heavy because every one is rushing around. The spirit of Christmas is really something to think about because it is a special day.

Rebecca Sage

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a time when the snow is out and it snows very much too. On the night before Christmas all you can do is wait with patience and try to sleep. While I was waiting, I could not sleep at all. I was reading a book. Then I heard a jingle and I knew it was Santa so then I was asleep. Christmas is the time when people have treats like lime jello and Christmas cake and other good foods to eat. On Christmas day lots of children play interesting games. But most of all Christmas is the time for love.

Cathy Hooley

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Christmas time is a very special feeling of excitement. Everybody is rushing around to buy presents. It is very hard to sleep on Christmas Eve because you're wondering what's going to happen the next day. Everybody is decorating Christmas trees and wreaths. Christmas is a time to celebrate. Lots of people hide presents where nobody can find them. They might hide them in the closet and nobody knows where they are. Everybody is dreaming exciting dreams like Santa Claus is going to come up and kiss you good night! My sister hides behind the Christmas tree. My Grandmother and Grandfather come to eat with us. Merry Christmas Everybody!

Colleen Dunn

WHAT IS THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS?

The spirit of Christmas is singing carols and the feeling of joy. It's a time of celebration. It's a time of happiness and surprise. It's a time of love. It's a time of ringing bells. To me the Spirit of Christmas means decorations. I like hanging gifts.

Regina Coletti

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

When Christmas comes with all good spirits. We'll have them inside our hearts.

You'll hear people singing and all the bells ringing. As children are rolling their carts.

We'll invite people over. When Christmas is over, to celebrate this happy day!

We sing, we dance. We even see the dog prance. When the guests will leave we'll show them out,

And ask them if they were getting stout.

I'll hide behind the Christmas tree.

And be as quiet as a flea. When morning comes we open our gifts.

If it is heavy we'll give it a lift!

We go to church to pray for thanking God.

For bringing baby Jesus here and wasn't he a very dear.

Mia Gonzales

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

I like the spirit of Christmas. If I do I'm sure you do too.

There's lots of things in your stocking for you and me to chew.

On Christmas night I try so hard to sleep.

When my mother hides the presents, I do my best to peep.

I like to decorate Christmas trees.

There's not much bees, flies, or fleas.

It's a feeling of great anticipation.

It isn't a bit bad because you always have fun,

If you try hard you'll get lots of toys.

I bet you're in the book of good girls and boys.

I hope you liked my poem - that's all I could write.

I wish you a good-day and a very good-night.

Main Library To Be Open Sundays On Trial Basis

The Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library have voted to offer Sunday service at the main library on a trial basis beginning shortly after the first of the year.

The exact date will be announced when the library administration and staff complete staffing arrangements.

Long under consideration by the trustees, the question was moved up on the agenda after Senator Arthur Tobin relayed requests which he had received from constituents that the Quincy Library be open on Sunday.

Tentative plans are to open for a four-hour period on Sunday afternoons with service available in general adult circulation, the children's room and the reference department at the main library.

Although the library's current budget does not include the cost of Sunday service, estimated by Library Director Warren E. Watson to be approximately $250 per Sunday, he urged the service be offered on a trial basis in order to determine the extent of interest.

Quincy Now 8th Largest City In Massachusetts

Quincy is now the eighth largest city in Massachusetts, according to census figures for 1975 released last week by State Secretary Paul Guzzi.

The census conducted by the state found 91,478 people in Quincy, allowing it to surpass such perennial metropolises as Lowell, Lynn, Newton and Somerville.

The top ten cities in the 1975 census included:

1. Boston - 637,966
2. Worcester - 172,342
3. Springfield - 168,785
4. Cambridge - 102,095
5. New Bedford - 100,345
6. Fall River - 100,339
7. Brockton - 95,688
8. QUINCY - 91,478
9. Lowell - 91,177
10. Newton - 89,183.

An interesting comparison can be made with the cities [and towns] that were in the top ten 150 years ago, when Quincy was a struggling community of 1,623 souls.

1. Boston - 43,298
2. Salem - 12,731
3. Nantucket - 7,266
4. Newburyport - 6,852
5. Charlestown - 6,591
6. Gloucester - 6,384
7. Marblehead - 5,630

Ricciuti Defends Snow Plowing

Storm To Cost City Up To $170,000

By TOM HENSHAW

The snow storm that struck during the holiday season last week may cost Quincy $170,000 in snow removal costs.

The estimate was made by Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti Monday night on the basis of a rule of thumb that a storm cost $8-10,000 per inch of snow, depending on whether it's wet or dry.

Ricciuti spoke in a vigorous defense of his department and its workers at a special meeting of the City Council's Public Works Committee amid an avalanche of complaints about snow removal.

The storm, which began in mid-afternoon Saturday, Dec. 20, and continued off and on until early Tuesday, Dec. 23, deposited some 20 inches of snow plus sleet and rain on the Quincy area.

Many Quincy streets were virtually impassable until long after the storm ended and great piles of snow remained on downtown thoroughfares and parking areas through the holidays.

Ricciuti blamed the snow removal problems on the magnitude of the storm, tired men and equipment, indifference on the part of motorists, and budget cuts instituted during the balmy days of spring.

And City Councillors who attended the Monday meeting were inclined to agree with him.

"We did not ask Mr. Ricciuti

Ricciuti Resigns As Public Works Commissioner

James J. Ricciuti has resigned as public works commissioner, effective Monday, Jan. 5 when the administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia takes over City Hall.

He said he plans to apply for retirement based on 10 years of service to the city and return to private business.

Ricciuti was city purchasing agent for two years, served as executive secretary to Mayor James J. McIntyre for four years and headed the public works department for the last four years.

He noted that during his tenure as commissioner the public works department spent some $35 million on various projects including new roads, water storage facilities, the Ross Parking Garage and the Lincoln-Hancock School.

"I enjoyed working for the city," he said. "I wish the new administration and the people with whom I was affiliated in the city government continued success."

1975 In Review

LaRaia's Recount Victory, Quincy's 350th Birthday, Burke's Resignation, Kennedy Jostling, Della Chiesa's Death Among Year's Highlights

By TOM HENSHAW

Politics provided the big story of 1975 in Quincy.

But it was scarcely politics as usual as Mayor Walter J. Hannon first won, then lost his bid for a third-term in a recount that saw votes change columns in blocks of 50.

The unusual shift in ballots that lifted Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia from a 134-vote loser to a winner by 483 votes was enough to bring on an investigation by Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti.

At year's end, Quincy was still awaiting the report.

It began on the traditional first Tuesday in November when a record 34,374 voters turned out to choose between the favored Hannon and LaRaia, an at-large member of the City Council.

MAYOR Walter J. Hannon thought he had been reelected to a third term but . . .

When the counting was over, Hannon had 17,060 votes; LaRaia had 16,926 votes and a pretty good case for a recount.

The recount was held on a frantic Saturday, Nov. 22, in City Hall and, in a stunning turn of events, six blocks of 50 votes each originally credited to Hannon were found to belong to LaRaia.

It helped give the challenger the victory, 17,231 to 16,748 for the Mayor.

Strangely enough, it was not LaRaia, the victim of the original error, but Hannon who demanded the investigation.

"I won't leave this office with any impression...." said Hannon. "I have nothing to do with the election, with counting votes. There'll be no aspersions cast at me!"

The result of the Hannon-LaRaia skirmish was not the only big political story of 1975.

WILLIAM DELAHUNT was appointed Norfolk County district Attorney after George Burke resigned in August.

The resignation of George Burke as district attorney after 16 years in Quincy and Norfolk County politics touched off a chain of events that spotlighted a rising political star in Quincy.

His name: James A. Sheets.

JAMES SHEETS won two elections in 1975. He was reelected to his Ward 4 City Council seat and was elected State Representative.

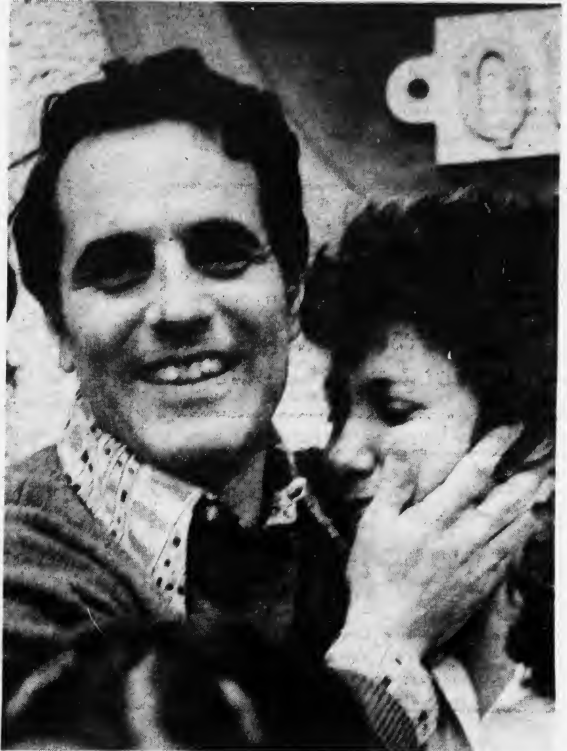

Two years ago, Sheets was an obscure professor of government at Quincy Junior College who decided to involve his students in local politics by running for the City Council.

Surprisingly, he ousted an incumbent, Albert R. Barilero.

When Burke resigned as DA to devote full time to his law practice, Gov. Michael Dukakis appointed State Rep. William Delahunt [D-Quincy] to his place, throwing open the House seat.

Sheets not only won the

TO THE WINNER! -- Joseph J. LaRaia and his wife, Louise, get the good news together -- he has been elected mayor of Quincy after long bitter campaign that ended in recount. Shift of six blocks of 50 votes in recount gave LaRaia upset victory over Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Brett Carries S. Quincy MBTA Opposition To Ford, Coleman

Mayor Walter J. Hannon is for the MBTA station in South Quincy.

Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia is against the MBTA station in South Quincy.

And now, if they didn't know before, they now know in Washington.

Rep. Joseph E. Brett (D-Quincy) told them.

Brett, who doesn't like the idea of a South Quincy station either, has been carrying on a running dialogue about it with anyone in the nation's capital who will listen. It's important because federal funds are involved.

The latest exchange came Monday in a letter from Brett to Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman, who came into the controversy when he answered a letter Brett had written to President Gerald M. Ford.

"I would point out to you," wrote Brett, "that Mayor Walter J. Hannon of Quincy, who had supported the concept of a station in South Quincy, has been defeated for re-election in the recent campaign and will be replaced by Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia, who is strongly opposed to the South Quincy station concept."

Earlier, Brett had received a letter from Coleman saying:

"The Urban Mass Transportation Administration recently circulated a draft environmental impact statement for the proposed South Quincy Station for review and comment."

"I can assure you that UMTA will give serious consideration to all comments received in response to this statement, as well as to the points raised in your letter [to Ford], before reaching any decision on Federal funding for a new South Quincy station."

Establishment of the Squanto Corporation, a leeway corporation for The Quincy Co-operative Bank, is announced by John R. Herbert, President and Chairman of the co-operative bank.

Officers of the new corporation are:

John R. Herbert, President; Ronald A. McKee, Treasurer; and Francis J. Mitchell, Clerk.

Directors are David J. Coleman, Everett P. Grossman, John R. Herbert, Francis J. Mitchell, Harold W. Moore, Forrest I. Neal Jr., William A. O'Connell, John J. Sullivan, Dominic R. Tedeschi and Alexander E. Warmington.

All of the officers and directors are officers and directors of The Quincy Co-operative Bank.

The Leeway Corporation was organized basically "to acquire and manage interests in real property and acquire, construct, rehabilitate, lease, finance, and dispose of housing facilities."

The name "Squanto" was chosen for the corporation because of its historic significance in this area. Squanto is credited with providing the leadership for the Plymouth colony in such matters as farming, fishing, piloting to unknown areas and additionally, serving as the interpreter for the Pilgrims.

Keeps Proposal Tabled

LaRaia Wins $93,000 Hospital Architect's Contract Showdown

Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia clashed headon Monday on neutral ground provided by the Quincy City Hospital's Board of Managers.

LaRaia won.

The issue was a $93,000 contract for an architect to design an addition to City Hospital.

Hannon had the architect, Donahue Associates of Quincy, picked out and needed only a vote of the Board of Managers to approve the award. The proposal had come up at a previous meeting and was still on the table.

"I would like to use my prerogative as mayor to award this contract," said Hannon. "There is nothing complicated about it. My prerogative is clear. I should be able to give the contract."

He said the contract should be awarded now to get the hospital building plans moving.

"Some people have said that Donahue is not qualified to be the architect on the hospital building," said Hannon. "True, he has never built a hospital but he has designed nursing homes and he has the consultants to put it together.

"I would not have brought his name forward if he were not qualified for the job. He has built other things for the city of Quincy. I would rather use a local architect than go to Boston or out of state for one."

But, LaRaia, with an assist from board member Dennis Ryan, succeeded in keeping the proposal just where it was, on the table.

"Why does the decision have to be made now, in the waning days of the administration?" asked LaRaia, who succeeds Hannon as mayor next Monday, Jan. 5.

"I feel strongly that I want to be responsible for every action right from the beginning. I should have some input into the process. I don't want to be saddled with a decision that is not mine."

"I doubt the motives of wanting to act on this right now with only a few days left in the administration."

"I have to answer to the taxpayers. If you [managers] vote on this and I have to take action against it I would have to use all the powers of the office against it."

"I am sure you don't want the taxpayers to go to any expense because of an abortive decision that you made today. I hope you will postpone it until next year."

After that, the managers refused to lay a hand on it.

Ryan, who had had the proposal tabled originally, declined to have it removed.

Besides, he said, notification of a special meeting must specify the reason for it and the notice sent out by Board Chairman George Tull said nothing about taking a proposal off the table.

When no one moved to take it off the table, Tull called a recess, during which Hannon and John Cheney, whom he appointed to the board two weeks ago, conferred outside in the corridor. Later, Ryan joined them.

Recess over, Tull still could not get a motion and the meeting was adjourned.

Storm To Cost City Up To $170,000

and the DPW people here to be taken to task," said Council President Arthur H. Tobin. "Let's face it. We had the worst snow storm in over six years."

"We aren't here to pinpoint fault but to decide what we should do in the future."

"I've had calls on storms before but nothing to compare to this," said Councillor John Lydon Jr.

"We had a tough snow storm," said Councillor James A. Sheets. "A lot of people are not satisfied. We're here to analyze what happened and see what can be done."

The first problem confronted by the department, Ricciuti said, was that the storm hit just as his people had concluded their 40-hour work week and were looking forward to a day of rest.

"The call back was on a voluntary basis," he said, "and we were satisfied with the response."

"Our city contains some 250 miles of streets," he went on. "To plow, sand and salt during a 60-hour storm becomes very difficult."

"Men get tired; equipment gets tired; equipment must be repaired. We are a limited department as far as personnel is concerned, having some 134 people."

"During the height of the storm, we still had our sanitary department to operate which utilized some of these 134 men."

"Decisions had to be made to allow these men to rest and be available for their normal duties."

Ricciuti said the work of snow removal was hampered by

"the indifference of motorists who do not have snow tires or chains." He said he personally saw several traffic jams Tuesday morning.

"Invariably," he said, "the lead cars causing these jams were the ones without snow tires. Our sanding vehicles were caught in the traffic jams, causing unnecessary delays in our operations."

Illegally parked cars also slowed snow removal and sanding operations.

"There are some cars," said Ricciuti, "which are still in the same positions they were prior to the storm. Many cars were parked on both sides of the streets, restricting normal activity of a plowing operation."

"One must bear in mind that these plowing vehicles are heavy and cumbersome and when removing snow the liability rests on the city for any damage inflicted to illegally parked cars."

"In some cases, we were not able to negotiate these streets."

During the storm, Ricciuti said, "temperatures plummeted to the zero area which caused us to have lumpy sand and lumpy salt, making it difficult for the machines to operate in a manner conducive to a successful sanding operation."

"The sanding motors are comparable to lawn mower engines; they are sensitive to moisture, bad weather conditions and they stop operating; they need parts and repairs constantly."

PREVENTING HOME FIRES

Does a fire in your home fall into the "it can't happen to me" category? Well, tragically, it can and does happen to families like yours every day. But if you're alert to the dangers, it doesn't have to.

To help prevent home fires, the National Fire Protection Association [NFPA] has just published a new 20-page booklet, "A Study of One- and Two-Family Dwelling Fires," that details how fire habits, safety precautions, evacuation plans, and living conditions can determine whether a home is fireproof and whether a family can survive a fire if one should start.

According to the NFPA, the most common causes for sudden outbreaks of fire in private dwellings are smoking [most often in bed], poorly maintained electrical wiring, faulty heaters, and flammable liquids. Ways to eliminate these hazards are outlined in the booklet which can be obtained free from the NFPA Publications Sales Department, 470 Atlantic Ave., Boston, Mass. 02210.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Channel your efforts toward the support of others, operate behind the scenes. Financial opportunities present themselves. Not the time to force legal matters — there are unknown factors here.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Friends and social gatherings bring opportunities to you. Indulge your dreams of "derring-do" with a book or movie. Tighten your budget and recoup from overspending on the holidays. Pay attention to mate.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Your mind is sharp and you can solve personal problems now. Don't brood or anticipate romance — let it take you by surprise when it comes. Spruce up personal appearance which brightens your mental attitudes.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — A new love could come into your life now. Resist jealous attitudes and enjoy the companionship. Problems with business and money affairs cause concerns. Do what you think best even if it makes it hard on you.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Tensions ease and restrictions appear to lift. Don't try to hang on to a romance which appears ended. Remember the good times and resist attitudes of self-pity. A new friend comes into your life now.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Unmarried Librans could find a future life-mate at this time. Overwork can cause health problems — better ease up. Career opportunities are around you, but think of the long term in paying out your energies.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — An unexpected situation arises requiring you to call on past experience and handle it carefully. Get out for pleasure with loved ones. Curb impatience at work and keep your performance top-notch.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Energies are re-couped and you feel vital and energetic. Travel and-or communications are accented. In business express your ideas with diplomacy. Keep your romantic life and professional life separate.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You achieve some sort of success regarding travel and-or communications which has great future benefit. Work full-steam on a pet project, adopting new techniques to lighten workload. Simplify office procedures.

Bad posture hits students

STITCHING WITCHERY

New fabrics may have odor

By BETTY W. KINSER

Dear Betty:

Can you tell me how to get the odor out of some of the polyester fabrics? One pair of slacks I've washed a hundred times, and still it has an odor. We shouldn't have to wear our clothes out washing them! — L.G., Bridgeport

I agree. I have a brother-in-law who had to spend an entire evening standing in the corner by himself because his shirt was offensive.

What to do? Have you tried a white vinegar rinse? A fabric softener? We would be happy to hear from any reader who has solved this problem.

Betty:

Are there two ways to add "rise" to pants patterns? — M.E.

Yes, you may add "rise" (length of crotch curve) by extending the crotch curve line, or by separating pattern horizontally from center back across to the side seam. Where you make the alteration depends on where you need more rise.

Dear Betty:

So sorry I goofed on my "edgings" on the napkins. I intended to say "lettuce" edging ... which always reminds me of beautiful "butterfly" wings. Must be a mental block or something like that. — Verna Craft, Herndon, Fla.

Butterfly or lettuce, it's still pretty, right? Thank you for writing.

NEW YEAR'S EVE will signal the return of Guy Lombardo, who will usher 1976 in during a live telecast from New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Singer Aretha Franklin will join Lombardo on Channel 7, Dec. 31, beginning at 11:30 p.m.

'New Year's Eve At Pops' On Ch. 2 At 11 P.M.

Count down the final minutes of 1975 with Arthur Fiedler. It's a live television spectacular from Symphony Hall with Arthur Fiedler, America's best loved conductor, and the famed Boston Pops Orchestra ringing in the New Year.

"New Year's Eve At Pops" begins live at 11 p.m. on New Year's Eve on Channel 2 and ends when 1976 has been properly rung in. What better place than Boston, home of the American Revolution, to ring in our bicentennial year?

The night will be packed with songs you'll want to hear and dance to. Maestro Fiedler will start the celebration with selections from "The Nutcracker," with dancers from the Boston Ballet performing the "pas de deux." But for the romantic "Waltz of The Flowers," Arthur Fiedler will invite the entire Pops audience to swirl around the room.

And then, while everyone is still on their feet, the Pops Orchestra will launch into a medley of dances from days gone by. Remember the cakewalk and The Charleston? There'll be a tango, a square dance, a waltz, a polka, the jitterbug, swing-time, a cha-cha, and rock 'n' roll. If anyone in the Symphony Hall audience gets through all of this they'll get a prize.

For a change of pace - and to catch your breath - there will be a sing-along including old favorites and new; like "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover," "I Want A Girl," "If You Knew Suzy," and "Those Were The Days."

But if you feel like dancing again, how about dancing to Fiedler conducting "The Twelfth Street Rag?" And there's more! "Auld Lang Syne," of course, and maybe even a little "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," as well as some more live surprises that will make ringing in the year 1976 one of your best ever.

Don't miss Arthur Fiedler's countdown to midnight - and then some.

The Snow— A City Nightmare

After last week's snow nightmare most people would gladly let Bing Crosby keep his "White Christmas".

It was unbelievable to say the least. Trying to get into or out of Quincy from Sunday through Christmas Eve was just short of a mission impossible.

Traffic crawled—in by inch, foot by foot—along the main streets. And wheels spun, rubber burned and tempers flared as motorists tried to use the side streets to avoid the clogged main streets and found the situation just as bad, if not worse.

Sitting in a traffic snarl waiting and praying for the car in front of you to move, you'd have thought that this was the very first snow that ever fell on Quincy and that we just didn't know how to cope with it. Quincy, of course, wasn't alone in this nightmare. Boston and other cities and towns—including neighboring Braintree—had their problems and headaches, too.

True, it was one of the worst storms in a number of years and even an A-1 job would still have triggered criticism.

We are not picking on any one, two or three individuals. But the city isn't going to win any award for this snowfighting job.

The city of course, as Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti has pointed out, has 250 miles of streets to plow, sand, and salt. It was bitter cold. And men get tired and equipment breaks down.

And the City trimmed the public works department budget.

Ricciuti didn't say so, but another problem is the fact that private contractors can almost make twice as much an hour on private jobs than working for the city.

But Ricciuti cites two other snafu causes: Cars without snow tires or chains—some with bald tires. Cars illegally parked hampering snowplows.

Those are a few of the reasons for the king-sized headache.

But, there were other reasons, too. Like snowplows parading around with blades up. Thus snow runs on main streets as well as on side streets.

Why is it that you can drive through some of the smaller towns and they have bare streets? Plows don't seem to be timid with their blades there.

A lot of people including Mother Nature, the city and motorists themselves—played a role in this monumental snarl.

If cars are illegally parked hampering snowfighting efforts, they should be towed. And maybe it is time Massachusetts had a law requiring snow tires or chains in winter.

Maybe more money should be allowed in the public works commissioner's budget for snowfighting.

But, if contractors insist on running around with blades up, they should be told to get lost.

We only hope that when the next storm hits, things overall will be considerably better.

It will be a long time before this "White Christmas" is forgotten.

THE BUREAUCRATS

"Why shouldn't we require pedestrians to be protected too?"

department had several people retire and a few died. New and inexperienced men had to be assigned.

"We instituted a driving course in the late summer and fall so that these men would acquire the experience necessary to operate snow equipment.

"But driving and learning to drive on a parking lot differs greatly with actual snow conditions."

Limits placed on the use of salt by the Environmental Protection Agency also was a factor for a while, said Ricciuti.

"As the storm developed into an extraordinary one," he said, "we made a decision to return salt usage to the maximum limit."

Ricciuti noted a lack of observance of city ordinances which require merchants and owners of investment property to clear their own sidewalks within a specified time after a storm.

"Much criticism has revolved around our sanding units," he added. "One must realize that sanders carry only a limited amount of material. When empty they must return to be loaded again."

"We are limited in this process by traffic and other impediments which cause a slowdown."

Ricciuti called attention to the fact that, when the DPW budget came up for hearing and vote last spring, "many of our expense items were severely cut, thus restricting some of the necessities of this department."

He compared snow removal in Quincy favorably to that at Logan Airport and on the MBTA lines.

"Logan Airport, whose runways are flat and not restricted by vehicular traffic, was limited to only one runway for many hours," he said.

"We know of the MBTA breakdowns and here we are talking about electrically driven cars on tracks which are flat and not impeded by vehicular traffic."

"We were not unique in this storm. Other communities were equal or worse. But all of our roads were open. Maybe cosmetically we did not win any prizes but we were able to move."

"We tried to do the best we could with what we have."

Meanwhile, City Councillor Warren A. Powers sought to find out what happened to the MBTA during the storm. Service was shut down on the Quincy-Cambridge Red Line for some time due to ice on the third rail.

Powers wrote to Executive Director Robert Kiley:

"Some time ago the MBTA had indicated to me and to Councillor John Lydon that the icing problem would be rectified through the installation of heaters or some type of corrective equipment to prevent icing so that Red Line service would not be disrupted."

"I would like to know what corrective measures, if any, have been undertaken by the MBTA; and when this problem will be rectified so that proper service may be rendered to the people of Wollaston, North Quincy and Quincy."

Anselmo Has Votes For School Committee Vice-Chairmanship

By HENRY BOSWORTH

On Jan. 5, as everyone knows, Joseph LaRaia becomes mayor of Quincy and as just about everyone figures, Arthur Tobin will continue his string [7th] of terms as City Council President.

But who will get the third most prestigious political post: vice-chairmanship of the School Committee?

Insiders say it is going to be veteran, outspoken Frank Anselmo. And, according to those same insiders, the man who will make it possible for Anselmo to win that coveted prize is colleague John Sullivan.

The way they tell it, Sullivan could have the vice-chairmanship if he wanted it. But, say they, he doesn't. Sullivan reportedly would have five of the seven votes including his own and Anselmo's if he wanted the vice-chairmanship.

But instead, according to the sources, Sullivan is going to nominate and vote for Anselmo. The Sullivan block of votes is expected to move with him to Anselmo.

Sullivan reportedly feels that Anselmo, who will be starting his 14th year on the school board deserves the job because of his seniority.

The vice-chairmanship vote, if it goes according to what those insiders predict, will bring back memories of a City Council presidency vote some years back.

That was when John Quinn gave the deciding vote to Charles Shea [now city auditor] when he could have had the job himself.

Quinn had pledged his vote to Shea in advance and remained loyal on inauguration day. If he had voted for himself, he and not Shea would have been the City Council president that year.

JOSEPH LA RAI A will be the 25th man—and sixth youngest—to take office as mayor since Quincy became a city in 1888. He's 43.

The five youngest: Russell A. Sears, 27, Charles Francis Adams, 29, Thomas S. Burgin, 33, James R. McIntyre, 35, Walter J. Hannon, 40.

LA RAI A is the third Democrat elected in 67 years in what was once upon a time, a Republican stronghold. The first was William T. Shea who served from 1908-1911 and the second, McIntyre, who served from 1966-1972. Hannon was the 19th Republican.

LA RAI A is also Quincy's second mayor of Italian Descent and has a long way to go to match the first in mayoralty longevity and popularity.

Amelio Della Chiesa who died last October, served 12 years as mayor—longest tenure in Quincy's history. Four years were under Plan E [remember that?] and eight under Plan A.

But the champion under a single form of government was Charles A. Ross who served nine years as Plan A chief executive.

THE CITY NOW has only three living former mayors: Burgin [74], McIntyre [45] and Hannon [44].

DID YOU KNOW that under Quincy's original charter, mayors served one-year terms? Joseph Whiton was the first elected to a two-year term. He served from 1917 to 1920.

QUINCY'S FIRST MAYOR was Charles H. Porter who took office Jan. 7, 1889. He was a Civil War veteran.

DEATH HAS CLAIMED only one Quincy mayor in office. John L. Miller died several months after his election in 1914.

MAYOR-ELECT LA RAI A'S inaugural coincidentally will come on the 16th anniversary of another milestone in his political career. On Jan. 5, 1960, he was sworn in as Ward 2 city councillor—his first elective post.

ONLY ONE OF the past 24 men to occupy the mayor's office at Quincy City Hall has gone on to become a national figure. He was Charles Francis Adams [1896-97] who served as Secretary of the Navy under President Hoover.

Adams, of course, had a pretty good name going for him. He was the great-great grandson and great-grandson of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams.

THE NEW CITY COUNCIL will be one of Quincy's youngest. Six of the nine members are 40 or under.

At 52, John Quinn is the dean in both point of service [starting his 10th term] and age. The others and their ages: Arthur Tobin, 45; Leo Kelly, 43; James Sheets, 40; John Lydon, 34; Dennis Harrington, 33; Warren Powers, 33; Paul Harold, 27, and Daniel Raymond, 27.

The 1962-63 council was younger with seven of the nine members under 40.

AND IF YOU think that some of today's city council meetings last too long, you should have been around when Quincy first became a city.

Instead of nine, there were 23 councillors all trying to get a word in.

You'd need a new City Hall just to store the resolves in.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Pepe Will Be Missed

By ERIC SWIDER

Dear Henry:

Please take Hector Lussier off the subscription list for the Quincy Sun. You're lost a subscriber, Claudie has lost her father, my kids have lost their pepere and I've lost a good friend.

He died last week after a two-year bout with cancer. If there is any consolation in knowing this, he enjoyed reading your paper, even though the thrust of this column occasionally confused him.

For over 50 years, Pepe was a businessman. I'm sure if he were in business today on the South Shore, he would have been a member of ours, because he was that kind of guy.

He started off in Williamatic, Connecticut taking and delivering grocery orders in his car to housewives who couldn't get around. He saved his pennies and started and ran a very successful grocery business in Central Falls, Rhode Island until the conflicts of food rationing, black markets, and hungry customers during World War II made him sell out.

Pepe got an idea over that whole thing so he decided to go into the laundry business. He worked hard at that but lost his life savings as the home washer and dryer replaced that industry. At 55, he opened a corner grocery store and quickly developed a reputation for having the best meats in town. When I started dating Claudie, I used to enjoy going down to his store and talk with him and watch him work at his trade. He prepared every cut of meat, every ounce of hamburger like it was going to be served at his dinner table.

Pepe had sound basic beliefs about people and life. He faced more than his share of adversity and never let it get to him. Until his last breath, he was sure that his doctors would eventually find a solution to his problem and he would get well.

Many times in the past 10 years, we would visit him and he would notice that I was either wrapped up in one of my unbelievable highs or lows and he'd listen me through. He never gave me advice, but just listened. When I was on a high, you could tell he was pleased but somehow I got the feeling that he thought I could reach higher. He'd span me a yarn about growing up on the farm in Canada that made me reflect on all of those humble virtues that he possessed but were elusive to me.

When I was low, Pepe wouldn't dissect my problem, for he had neither the technical skill nor the expertise to solve it. Instead, he would bring me over to his puzzle board and talk about his latest challenge and I could sense the enjoyment he derived in putting all of the pieces together. Occasionally, he would put together a puzzle face down. He assured me that sometimes it was even easier that way.

His outstanding virtue however was his ability to love. He never expected any in return but because in his own silent way you knew he was your friend, no matter what, lots of people loved him. He enjoyed making others happy and in recent years would set aside portions of his modest retirement check to buy surprise gifts for his family and friends.

The last surprise he gave me was a set of chisels and punches for which he was sure I'd find good use. I haven't yet figured out what they really are supposed to be for, but hardly a week goes by when I don't find some application for them in repairing one of Jeff's toys. When I would report on my latest repair job to him, he'd smile and assure me that he knew they were indispensable equipment.

Tomorrow would have been the day when we traveled to his house to receive his New Year's blessing. We won't be able to do that anymore, but I'm sure we'll be getting it anyway.

Lots of good people like Pepe Lussier live and die everyday. As a society, we don't care very much, so their struggles, their caring, their giving never makes headlines. But like I said, he was a good friend and I'll miss him.

Happy New Year.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

Deputy Fire Chief Opposes Lowering Passing Grade From 70 To 35

To All Persons Interested In The Future of Massachusetts
All Cities and Towns of Massachusetts
Dear Citizens:

As a Deputy Fire Chief of a municipal fire department and as a fire fighter with over a quarter century of experience, and as a former drill master of this department with the difficult duty of regulating the training and development of the department, I would like to thank the people of Massachusetts for the cooperation given to firefighters and fire departments over the years.

Now we have reached a point in time when I feel that I would be remiss if I failed to warn you of the great disservice being done to you and to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This concerns the recent lowering of the passing grade for fire entrance from 70 to a meaningless 35.

The claim by the test authorities who are responsible for this injustice that qualified applicants will surface is very unlikely in my opinion. It takes more than strength and agility on the part of the recruit to develop into a real firefighter. Much of the equipment and all of the apparatus used in the fire service today is complicated and sophisticated. Constant training, drills and study are a necessity. The majority of firefighters today attend or have attended college so as to be better able to discharge their duties.

I feel that those in charge of establishing the eligibility lists are making a major mistake. Correct the mistake before it's too late and the situation becomes irreversible.

A firefighter today must be capable of learning psychology, mathematics, hydraulics, pump operation, laws, rules, regulations, ordinances, topography, driving rules and regulations, building construction, plumbing, electricity, fire fighting and strategy, emergency medical training, heat activating systems, sprinkler systems, chemistry, labor relations, - the list goes on and on!

People of Massachusetts, when your life is in jeopardy would you place yourself in the hands of a physician who backed into his or her profession; a police officer who backed into his or her profession; an attorney or judge who backed into his or her profession; a teacher who backed into his or her profession? The answer is positively and emphatically 'NO'! Should your life be placed in the hands of a firefighter who backed into his profession by virtue of drastically lowered standards?

I daresay that any young person who is a graduate of the school system of Massachusetts could pass the usual written fire entrance examination if he or she makes a sincere effort. It requires diligent study and hard work but it can be done. No one ever said it was easy to enter the firefighting profession. The standards should not be lowered.

I bring this situation to your attention because I am concerned about our fine State and I see this undermining of the fire service as another step in the demoralization of Massachusetts.

A funeral is no place for on-the-job training.

Someday you will be called on to arrange a funeral and have to make a lot of important decisions with little time for deliberation.

A new booklet tells you much of what you will need to know...about funeral costs, optional services available, and the countless little details that could add to your grief...if you're not prepared for them. Offered as a public service by National Selected Morticians it tells you now what someday you'll have to know. And it could keep you from spending more than you should, or may need to, for a funeral.

Mail the coupon or telephone us for your free copy. Because the more you know about funerals, the better we, or any other funeral director, can serve you.

THE DOOR IS OPEN . . .

COME IN

Mr. Leland Thompson is pleased to announce the publication of a new booklet written by a Quincy resident entitled "THE DOOR IS OPEN...COME IN". This book explains how to be at the right place at the right time so that all connections made for future harmony can be developed now. This is the plan that Moses used thousands of years ago that all people can make use of for their step to harmony. Moses had something useful to say but not all people are aware of the full message. The same plan to organize a nation can organize a family. Enclose a 20 cent stamp and mail to Booklet, 1072 Sea St., Quincy, Ma. 02169, for your copy.

1975 In Review

Harold, Raymondi Elected To Council, Toland, Kennedy To School Committee

[Cont'd from Page 3]

Democratic nomination in the special election but the Republican as well and went on to an easy triumph in the final balloting.

A pair of new faces appeared on the City Council as a result of the November election in place of Mayor-elect LaRaia and Clifford Marshall, who was elected sheriff of Norfolk County.

Paul Harold, an unsuccessful candidate in Ward 1 two years ago, captured LaRaia's at-large seat and School Committeeman Daniel Raymondi took over for Marshall in Ward 2.

Re-elected were Council President Arthur H. Tobin and John J. Quinn, at large; Leo Kelly, Ward 1; John Lydon Jr., Ward 3; Sheets, Ward 4; Warren Powers, Ward 5; and Dennis Harrington, Ward 6.

The big surprise in the Council race was the showing of Harold, who finished second in the race for three-at-large seats ahead of Quinn, the dean of the Council.

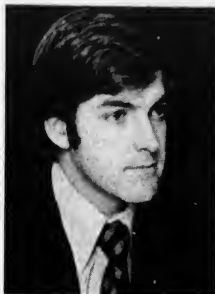

In fact, Quinn had to wait through a recount demanded by Harold Davis, the No. 4 finisher, before he was sure of retaining his seat.

Two newcomers won spots on the School Committee as incumbents Raymondi and Davis chose to run for the City Council.

Francis McCauley was returned to office, joined by Patricia Toland and Christopher Kennedy.

A familiar political name in Quincy came in a strong fourth. Francis Bellotti Jr. is the son of the Massachusetts attorney general.

QUINCY GOT TWO new City Councillors in November. Paul Harold (left) was elected at-large and Daniel Raymondi (right) Ward 2 Councillor.

AND THERE WERE two new School Committee Members elected, Patricia Toland (left) and Christopher Kennedy.

Kennedy Jostled By Demonstrators

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy [D-Mass.] paid two official visits to Quincy, once to the accompaniment of applause, the second time to the accompaniment of jeers, catcalls, pushes and shoves.

The cheers were heard during a January speech at the Kemper Insurance Co. in which he called for a $20 billion tax cut to spur the economy and a crackdown on oil companies as part of an energy conservation program.

His next visit was in April at a North Quincy Knights of Columbus communion breakfast and he was greeted by anti-busing demonstrators from South Boston who followed him to the subway station and stoned his train as it pulled out. "He never lost his composure," said Grand Knight Edward Keohane admiringly. "It could have been an ugly scene. The Quincy police did a good job keeping things from getting out of hand."

Ruth Gordon Helps Quincy Celebrate Its 350th Birthday

IT WAS A big birthday party with a big cake to match as Quincy celebrated its 350th birthday in April. The 5,700 pound creation was sliced and given away.

[Cont'd from Page 18]

Two of Quincy's best known sons and daughters, actress Ruth Gordon and State Supreme Court Justice Paul C. Reardon, came home for the city's 350th anniversary dinner at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph.

Ernest and George Montilio knew they were coming so they baked a cake - a 5,700-pound birthday cake that included reproductions of City Hall, First Parish Church, the Adams Houses and the First Railway.

Miss Gordon, who turned 79 in September, was back in Quincy during the summer for "An Evening With Ruth Gordon" at Eastern Nazarene College for the benefit of the Quincy Historical Society.

She held her audience enthralled for more than an hour as she talked about growing up in Wollaston in the early years of the century.

USS Quincy's Bell Comes Home

Another Quincy "native" came home, this one to stay.

The 1,600-pound bell from the cruiser USS Quincy was presented to the city as the World War II warship, which was built at the Fore River Shipyard in 1943, was being broken up for scrap on the West Coast.

The Quincy Point Improvement Project closed up shop after spending $8.8 million in federal funds on home, business and neighborhood revitalization over a four-year period.

"The success of these projects cannot be evaluated entirely by statistics in the number of properties and amount of dollars spent," said George Fleming, the director about to lose his job.

"Proper evaluation can only be made by walking through these streets and this neighborhood, talking with the recipients of financial aid and sensing the new pride people are taking in their neighborhood." Three long-term problems and controversies came no nearer solution.

The City Council went as far as to request a $12 million bond issue for an addition-renovation to North Quincy High School but the State School Building Assistance Bureau shot it down when the plan failed to meet land requirements.

The South Quincy MBTA station was still in the planning stage, after a marathon 11½ hour hearing which foes of the station claimed was "stacked" by proponents. A group of opponents went to Washington in an effort to block it.

A private study indicated that, unless a new Fore River Bridge is built by 1985-2000, the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard will be forced out of business or will have to operate below capacity. Ships projected for the year 2000 will not fit through the present bridge.

At year's end, all three of those projects were labelled "unfinished business."

Quincy's young athletes provided two of the high points of the year.

The Morrisette Junior American Legion baseball team captured the State and Northeast championships and journeyed to Rapid City, S.D., for the national tournament.

Unfortunately, the kids bowed to Cheverly, Md., 12-11 in 11 innings and then to Yakima, Wash., the eventual champions, by a score of 4-3.

[Cont'd from Page 20]

brand new Coach Dave Burke, won the Suburban League championship but lost to Woburn, 20-7, in the Super Bowl for the state title.

One of those under consideration for the coaching job at North Quincy had been Mary Pratt, a one-time professional softball player and all around woman athlete and coach for 30 years.

"If she is deemed most qualified out of 30 applicants she will be the next head coach of the North Quincy High School football team," promised Coordinator of Athletics Carl Leone.

But Burke got the job. Jeanne Rathgeb, 17, of North Quincy was one young lady who succeeded.

Jeanne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rathgeb of 225 Quincy Shore Drive and a senior at Archbishop Williams High School, was chosen Miss Quincy Bay for the 1975 Race Week.

She disclosed that she once played hockey for the Quincy Youth Hockey Association's girls team.

Two Quincy beauties, however, decided not to take part in the Quincy Bay Pageant.

Cecile Letorney, a member of the pageant committee, saw them shopping one day and offered them entry blanks but Dee Dee Lynn and Octavia Cooper declined with thanks.

They were married, they said, and that's how it was discovered that Red Sox stars Fred Lynn and Cecil Cooper were living in Quincy.

Quincy sports fans got another surprise after a tall 12-year-old with a good fast ball blanked Burgin Platter, 5-0, for the Sears team in the Quincy Junior Baseball League.

The pitcher was a girl, Paula Morrison.

Until then, no one paid much attention to her — except, said her mother, Meredith, "before the games the boys on the other teams ask, 'Which one is the girl?'"

Two well-known Quincy people — one a master politician, the other a master entertainer — died in 1975.

Amelio Della Chiesa was mayor of Quincy for 12 years, longer than any other man, until he retired undefeated in 1965. A Republican, he once risked all by introducing the late Sen. John F. Kennedy [D-Mass.] as the next President of the United States.

Max Zides of the singing team of Hum 'n Strum, long a fixture at the old Fox and Hounds on Sea Street, died only 12 days after he and his partner of 35 years, Tom Currier, were honored at the 25th annual awards dinner of the Montclair Men's Club.

And, oh, yes, the City

QUEEN OF THE BAY — Jeanne Ann Rathgeb, 17, of North Quincy glows with a special pride as she takes the traditional walk down the runway after being chosen Miss Quincy Bay for the 1975 Race Week festivities.

Council deliberated, pondered and thought about it, and finally voted to make the forget-me-not the official flower of Quincy.

Tozzi Concerned But North Rolls By Cambridge, Weymouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy Track Coach Lou Tozzi admitted "we are concerned with our overall progress because of lack of development in the skill events," but the Raiders showed few weaknesses as they rolled over Cambridge Latin, 71-15, and defeated Weymouth North, 50-36, in their first two meets.

Friday North will face Rindge Tech at 6:30 and Tuesday will meet Weymouth South at 5, both meets at Newton North.

"We are worried about the shot put, hurdles and high jump, but we have an outstanding group of runners," Tozzi said. "We have a lot of work to do yet before we can even think about duplicating last year's 9-3-1 record in our first year in the strong Suburban League."

"However, we are pleased with our overall program which is now producing more candidates for the team, especially after last spring's superb team and this fall's Eastern Mass. Division 2 championship."

North is especially strong in the distance runs with the brilliant Bart Petracca leading the way. A 4:15 miler and 9:28 two-miler, he is considered one of the three or four best in New England. He has been slowed down a bit because of injuries.

Ken O'Brien, cross country co-captain along with Petracca, is a top 1000-yarder, Bob and Marty Levenson, much improved juniors are expected to score well, junior Jim Gavigan is a hard working newcomer and Mike Morin, a junior, is a fine two-miler with 10:10 potential. These six made up the outstanding cross country team which went 12-1. Tozzi has high praise for them.

Other distant runners are sophomore Mike Barrett, who has been most impressive; sophomore Dave Abbott, juniors Ed Carl, Andy Laskowski and Mike Ketzner, and junior twins Peter and Phil Maloney.

North will also be strong in the middle distances with Jerry MacKenzie, a junior, fourth in the state 1000 last year and expected to be among the best this winter.

Senior Paul [Whitey] McGuigan, is versatile and a fine prospect, and Phil Strungis, a senior, and junior Steve Doherty are veterans who should do some scoring. Juniors Dan Kilroy and Fran Kelly, sophomore Tom Fennessey and freshman Dan McIntyre are other middle distance hopes.

There are several question marks among the sprinters but Senior Brian Doherty, football all-scholastic, was unbeaten last year both indoors and out. He is the league champion in the 300 and 220 but will run the 50. Senior Matty Constantino placed in the state 200, while junior Matty King and sophomores Russ Chisholm and Mike Larsen are promising. Newcomers are sophomores Larry Laing, Dan Thompson and Mike Dawson and freshman Bob Gordon.

Leading the hurdlers, which don't offer much depth, is Dave Lorman, a senior, who did 16 seconds in the 120-high hurdles outdoors and has a fine attitude. Junior Mike Adams and freshman Tim O'Neil are the other hurdle hopes. Tozzi expects young O'Neil, whom he considers a "natural", to develop fast and become outstanding.

Tozzi expects to run into trouble in the high jump and his leading hopefuls are O'Neil, Adams and sophomore Jim Conboy.

He also expects real problems in the shot put, with the league boasting nine boys who did 45-50 feet last year. Brian Doherty, Constantino, sophomore Mike Colby, the best of the newcomers; sophs Mike Gallagher and Jim Marinelli, freshman Ted Kuberski and senior Jim Coony, are competing in this event.

"The coaches voted for a mile relay this year and we don't have a definite team, but two of my runners, Petracca and MacKenzie, were on last spring's team which was second in the state meet," Tozzi said.

This is Tozzi's third year as winter track coach and his assistant is John Laverty.

In the opening breeze over Cambridge Latin, North's winners were Petracca in the 1000, Chisholm in the 50, Strungis in the 300, O'Brien in the 600, Bob Levenson in the mile, Morin in the two-mile, Lorman in the hurdles and O'Neil in the high jump. The relay team of O'Neil, Kilroy, Gordon and Petracca also won. The only event won by Cambridge was the shot. North's Colby was second.

North has only eight seniors on the squad and all but 17 of its points against Cambridge were scored by underclassmen, which pleased Tozzi no end.

North followed up with a 50-36 win over Weymouth North as Brian Doherty broke the school record in the 50-yard dash with a 5.7 second timing. Other Raider winners were McGuigan in the 600, Petracca in the 1000, Bob Levenson in the mile, Morin in the two-mile, and the relay team of O'Brien, MacKenzie, Petracca and McGuigan. North swept the 50 and two-mile.

BOB SYLVA, former Quincy High Star, and a linebacker at Norwich University, was named to the All-ECAC Division 3 football team this fall. Bob led the coaches' rating system with 219 points, had 27 individual tackles, 109 assists, three pass breakups, two fumble recoveries and one block of a point after touchdown attempt. "Bob displayed a great deal of football savvy and played several near-perfect games," said Coach Barry Mynter.

Quincy, North Boys Swim Teams Back In Action Jan. 6

The first boys' swimming teams in Quincy and North Quincy history are resting up until Jan. 6 when the Presidents meet Weymouth North and the Raiders face Cambridge Latin.

Although both teams lost their openers, North coach Bill Walker was pleased with his team's performance in an 88-67 loss to Waltham.

"We did very well and earned more points than I thought we would," Walker said. Most of North's opponents have had swimming for a number of years.

North's Kevin Greene won the 100-yard freestyle and the relay team of Greene, John Conley, Dan Fowkes and Mike Braun won the 400-yard freestyle relay.

North second places were taken by Richard Forest in the 50-yard freestyle, Braun in the 100-yard butterfly, Dave Palma in the 100-yard backstroke, and the team of John McKenna, John Strazzula, Braun and Jim Hynds in the 200-yard medley relay.

Quincy's opener was far less auspicious as the Presidents were outclassed by Brockton, always one of the state's best, 120-38.

Quincy failed to win any event but Allan Kenney was second in the 200-yard freestyle, Jimmy Lahive took second in the backstroke, Neal Rodberg was third in the 200-yard freestyle, David Ray was third in diving and the relay team was third in the 200-yard medley.

LaRaia Names Dr. Samuel Solomon City Health Commissioner

Dr. Samuel Solomon, 68, of 422 Washington St., a general practitioner in Quincy for more than 43 years, has been named Public Health Commissioner by Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia.

He succeeds Dr. Alfred Mahoney, whose term has expired.

Dr. Solomon is a graduate of Tufts College and Middlesex Medical School. He also studied at Harvard Medical School and served four years as assistant surgeon in the U.S. Public Health Service.

He was active on the staff of Quincy City Hospital.

He and his wife, the former Ethel Fleishman, have two children, Barry Solomon, director of health services at the University of Rhode Island; and Mrs. Joan Levin, wife of an associate professor of medicine at Northwestern University.

Dr. Solomon said he plans to phase out his practice and devote full time to his new position.
